The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioner:

Our Annual Septuagesima Conference was a great success. To enhance its dignity I placed it under the auspices of the National Church League, an organization which seeks to preserve the comprehensive character of our Church, by maintaining its official Protestantism. Its members are convinced that only a Church that is officially Protestant can be relied on to protect constitutional liberty; that such a polity as ours can never be conserved, if our Church repudiates its Protestant standards and falls into the hands of those who believe in the Divine right of Bishops and Priests to control the thought and conduct of the laity. This is the basic conviction of the National Church League. Along with the League were associated as Patrons, the following clergymen:

Rev. Karl Reiland, LL.D., New York.
Rev. Robert Norwood, D.C.L., New York.
Rev. John A. Wade, New York.
Rev. E. Clowes Chorley, D.D., Garrison, N. Y.
Rev. Carl E. Grammer, S.T.D., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. George Calvert Carter, D.D., Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Allen Van Meter, Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. Robert Rogers, D.D., Brooklyn, N. Y.
Rev. Alexander G. Cummins, D.D., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.
Rev. Percy Kammerer, Ph.D., Pittsburgh, Pa.
Rev. Clifford G. Twombly, D.D., Lancaster, Pa.
Rev. Luke M. White, D.D., Montclair, N. J.
Rev. Beverly D. Tucker, Jr., D.D., Richmond, Va.
Rev. Walter D. Capers, D.D., Jackson, Miss.
Rev. John N. Lewis, Waterbury, Conn.
Rev. James Stuart Neill, Manchester, Conn.
Rev. Quincey Ewing, Napoleonville, La.
Rev. Francis B. Whitcombe, Watertown, Conn.
Rev. Charles O. Scoville, D.D., New Haven, Conn.
Rev. Charles W. Hinton, Locust Valley, N. Y.
Rev. Edward S. Travers, D.D., St. Louis, Mo.
Rev. William B. Lusk, Ridgefield, Conn.
Rev. J. J. Dimon, D.D., Washington, D. C.
Rev. Romily Humphries, D.D., Baltimore, Md.
Dean George S. Southworth, Marquette, Mich.
Rev. Robert M. Hogarth, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Those who desired to take part in our deliberations were asked to register and pay a fee of $1.00. The registration was 170, the largest that we have ever had, and much the largest proportion of visitors from out of town. Sixteen dioceses were represented. A series of Reinicker Lectures at the Virginia Seminary by Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin at the same time cut down the attendance from the Virginia dioceses. The papers will be published in The Chronicle. All of them were most interesting and rewarding. Through the generous gifts of friends, we were able to entertain our clerical visitors from out of town at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, on Tuesday night. They had a fine time together, and it is whispered that they got together in a room for a smoker, and continued their confabulations till midnight. Those who came from Anglo-Catholic dioceses enjoyed the fellowship with a special relish. The attendance at the luncheon which the Rector and Vestry gave our visitors on the second day of the Conference was 160. It was resolved that the Rector of St. Stephen's be authorized by the Conference to invite the Bishop of Birmingham to attend the Conference in 1929. This request has already been mailed. Of course, the expenses of travel and entertainment will be provided. It is hoped that with such long notice Bishop Barnes may be able to accept. In that case the next Conference will be for three instead of two days. One of the most significant results was the determination to get up a similar Conference some time this year in St. Louis. Something may be confidently hoped in this line for the clergymen who expressed it, the Rev. Dr. E. S. Travers, and the Rev. C. R. Taylor came all the way from St. Louis to examine our Conference, and announced themselves as delighted with its spirit and methods. After that I shall hope for Conferences in Atlanta, New Orleans, Denver, and California.

"As wild his thoughts and gay of wing,
As Eden's garden bird, ..."

you may quote. But surely the trouble with us, is not too much imagination, but too little. Only those who expect great things, attempt great things. What I should like to see is a Protestant Episcopal Church, that would unite the free children of the Spirit. If there is to be a consolidation of Churches, let it be a consolidation of the Liberal elements in all the churches in a church that is delivered from the bondage of the letter, and from the ravages of the wild-boar of Sacerdotalism.

The Bishop has at last been forced to ask for a Coadjutor. His physician says that he is overworking himself and must have help. Much is to be said for the English method of getting bishops with small dioceses to assist the Bishops of great cities. So the Bishop of Rochester for years assisted the Bishop of London. How admirable it would be to have the assistance of the Bishops of Delaware and Easton in this manner. In this way the choice of a successor to the Diocese could be deferred. But when such a proposal is broached to a Delawarean or an Eastern Shore Marylander, at once he takes up arms. He is indignant that any one should think that Delaware, with its thirty clergy, or Easton with its thirty-seven clergy, should not require all the energy and the full time of a Bishop. Those regions are now all readily accessible by fine roads, over which the Episcopal automobile can speed swiftly and comfortably. But the people have not realized that any new adjustments are possible. The difficulty, of course, lies in their minds. These mental hazards are very troublesome, and I suppose we must accept the impossibility of such arrangements. May God guide our deliberations, and enable us to procure a Coadjutor, who will work harmoniously with Bishop Garland and continue the spirit that has made his administration of the diocese so successful in uniting all the elements of our Church in works of Christian service. The ideal choice would be a man of the same Churchmanship as Bishop Garland, at least ten years younger, fifteen years would be better, with experience in various fields, and in parishes small and large. There is much to be said for electing a clergyman of the diocese, if the right man can be found, but there is also sound objection to too much inbreeding—Colleges and Dioceses often profit by bringing in new blood.

Now that Lent has come, I hope that the members of the congregation will remember that these noonday services are ours, and that they have a claim on your support, if you can get off at the noon hour. Mr. Klink has been for so many years one of the chief pillars of the St. Andrew's Brotherhood services that I have to give him a dispensation. They would not know how to get on without him at the Garrick. But all the other parishioners who attend noonday services are looked for at St. Stephen's. Our chief speakers are Dr. Melish, Dr. Capers, of Jackson, Miss., where he is rector of one of the largest Churches in the South; Dr. Luke White, of Montclair, the successor of Bishop Stearly in the rectorship, who declined a call to succeed Bishop Freeman, at the Epiphany, Washington, D. C.; Professor Rufus Jones, of Haverford, and Bishop Cook, not to speak of myself and the local clergy who will help me out.

On March 25th, will be Confirmation. The class will meet every Friday till that date, at 8.15 o'clock, in the Vestry.

I call especial attention to the Ladies' Aid Society, that under the leadership of Mrs. Campbell, meets on Friday during Lent in the Guild Room above the Vestry, and makes layettes for distribution by Miss Lewis.

Thus far this letter has been entirely occupied with matters ecclesiastical, let me not neglect the domestic life. "The true pathos and sublime of human life," Burns tells us, is exhibited in the home. There is a great deal of wild talk now-a-days about the failure of marriage, as if the failure lay in the law, and the machinery, and not in the nature of the people. Herbert Spencer said, a golden society could not be created by people with leaden instincts. It is equally true that a happy marriage can not be made by the union of ill-tempered, mean-minded people. According to popular rumors, a brother-in-law is not usually the best qualified judge of a wife. But if there is any truth in this extraordinary epitaph, one feels sorry for that home. It is published in "The Spectator," of February 4th. "As a weekly monitor to the surviving wives of this Parish that they avoid the infamy of having their memories handed down to posterity with a patch-work character."

EPITAPH ON A MONUMENT IN HORSELEY-DOWN CHURCH IN CUMBERLAND

Here lie the bodies of Thomas Bond and Mary his Wife.
She was temperate, chaste, and Charitable:
but
She was proud, peevish, and passionate:
She was an affectionate wife and a tender mother;
but
Her husband and child whom she loved
Seldom saw her countenance without a disgusting frown:
While she received visitors whom she despised
With an endearing smile.

Her behavior was discreet towards strangers:
but
Imprudent in her family.
Abroad, her conduct was influenced by good breeding;
but
At home by ill temper.
She was a professed enemy to flattery, and was seldom known to praise or commend:
but
The talents in which she principally excelled
Were difference of opinion and discovering flaws and imperfections.
She was an admirable economist,
And without prodigality
Dispensed plenty to every person in her family:
but
Would sacrifice their eyes to a farthing candle.
She sometimes made her husband happy with her good qualities:
but
Much more frequently miserable with her
Many failings;
Insomuch that in thirty years cohabitation he often Lamented that, maugre all her virtues
He had not in the whole, enjoyed two years of Matrimonial comfort.
At length
Finding that she had lost the affections of her husband,
As well as the regard of her neighbours—
Family disputes having been divulged by servants—
She died of vexation, July 26th, 1768.
Aged 48 years.
Her worn-out husband survived her four months two days and Departed this life November 28th, 1768 in the 54th year of his age.
William Bond, brother to the deceased, erected
This Stone.

I do not publish it with any such limited application as is given it by the copyist, who sent it to the Spectator. I have no doubt that a critical sister-in-law could compose a similar "patch-work character" of her sister's husband. Such an epitaph has lessons for husbands as well as wives. It has lessons for every one. Let us try to be consistent, and make our lives all of one character, all of a piece, a whole, and so truly holy.

I notice that an admirable Church paper, the Reformed Church Messenger, has the custom of publishing a weekly hymn to set the devotional tone of the week. The following hymn I commend to the congregation for learning by heart as the hymn for this Lent. It was written by one of the great scholars and Broad Churchmen of the Church of England, Dr. Edwin Hatch. His chief studies lay in the dry field of Church Organization, but he made fruitful every subject that he touched. This hymn reveals the source of his power, and the ardor of his devotion.

Breathe on me, Breath of God,
Fill me with life anew,
That I may love what Thou didst love,
And do what Thou wouldst do.

Breathe on me, Breath of God,
Until my heart is pure,
Until with Thee I will one will
To do or to endure.

Breathe on me, Breath of God,
Till I am wholly Thine,
Till all this earthly part of me
Glows with Thy fire divine.

Breathe on me, Breath of God,
So shall I never die;
But live with Thee the perfect life
Of Thine Eternity.

—It is Hymn No. 380 in our Hymnal.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

The Woman's Auxiliary

Miss Canning, of the City Mission, was the speaker at the February meeting of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary.

She is in charge of the clothing department and made a strong plea for second hand clothing or money. On account of the great number of unemployed this winter the demand is very great for warm things—especially for underwear and stockings for children. Any contributions sent to 225 South Third Street, will be most welcome.

The Auxiliary gave Miss Canning twenty dollars for her work.

Boy Scouts of America—Troop 2

The contest which was held this month turned out to be very successful, our own troop being the victors. We defeated four troops and are now working hard in order to win the finals which will be held next month.

We are all looking forward to Friday, March 2, when we will be inspected by our Field Executive, Mr. Elliott. If we are up to our year's quota every boy in the troop will be awarded a Red Star which is evidence of a first class troop.

On March 9th and 10th one of the biggest scout exhibitions ever held will take place at the Commercial Museum. Outdoor Scouting will be brought indoors and every branch of activities will be demonstrated. A crowd of 50,000 people is expected to attend. This exhibition is given in order to show the public what Scouting really is; therefore, if you are interested, tickets can be obtained from Mr. Robinson for the admission fee of 50 cents. This affair will be one of the best shows Scouting has ever offered to the public, and I'm sure it will prove beneficial not only to the young ones but to every one that is interested in the welfare of the younger generation.

Community House

It will be of interest to the congregation to know from October 1st, 1927 (when our activities started after the summer vacations) until March 24, 1928, when this month's issue of the Parish News is going to press, the approximate attendance for not quite six months, has been 10,586, and 384 meetings in the Community House.

Young People's Club

The Young People's Club were glad to have so many from the congregation with them on Wednesday evening, March the 14th. The presence of Dr. and Mrs. Grammer and three of our Vestrymen, Dr. Cooper, Mr. Hauger and Mr. Ellis, was very much appreciated, and everyone seemed to enjoy the evening.

ELLA HEADMAN, Treasurer.

For a number of years James Burns, Jr., was the Business Manager of the Parish News, and his sudden death calls for some expression of our sense of loss and our appreciation of his work in St. Stephen's. He was a man of intense feeling, and his death, we hear, came shortly after he received the news of the death of a very intimate friend. While it has been some years since he was a member of St. Stephen's, we have not forgotten how he ushered in the middle aisle; how regular he was in his attendance, and his work on the Parish News.

"In quietness and confidence undeterred and undiscouraged, let us take the best part our spirit can."

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

Lent will be about over when you receive this number of the Parish News. We shall only have Holy Week left, so that I am safe in generalizing about the season. It has been unusually well observed. The attendance on the Noonday Services has been larger than usual and the addresses have been of an unusually high order. I hope that I may be able to secure again all three of the new speakers—Dr. Capers, Dr. White and Professor Jones. One of the best proofs of a Lent of self-denial is a generous Easter offering—I trust that we may have a fine gift and be able to reduce our debt on the Community House by a thousand dollars.

A most encouraging enlargement of our Parochial activities has been brought about by the acquisition of a troop of Girl Scouts. Ever since we organized the Boy Scouts, I have wished that we had a similar organization for the girls of the Parish. Now a troop of 30 girls has come to us. It will be St. Stephen's branch, and will gladly welcome into its membership the girls of the Parish. Its place of meeting will be in the third story room front in the Parish House on Thursday evenings, and it has the privilege of the gymnasium Tuesday evenings. Once a year the band will attend officially the Sunday Service. I want the Boy Scouts to agree to attend the same night and also the Young People's Club. It ought to be a great service.

Perhaps we ought to have it recorded for future reference in our Parish News, that the Fellowship of Faiths had its second meeting in St. Stephen's on Thursday, March 15th, at 8 P. M., when tributes were paid to Judaism. I give on page 8 my brief Address of Welcome. Appreciations of Judaism were expressed by men of various beliefs, Ethical Culturist, Unitarian, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Baptist, and an eloquent response was made by Rabbi Fineshriber. The Church was filled to its utmost capacity, and an over-flow meeting was held in the 12th Street Meeting House. The criticism of such fellowship by a narrow-minded Presbytery was based on a misconception of the implications of fellowship. Still I confess that the service did not please me wholly. A true Liberalism does not insist that worship should be repressed and opinions reduced down to the least common multiple. It was a mistake to think it necessary out of deference to the Ethical Culturists, I presume, to omit an opening prayer, and to avoid in a Christian Church any characteristically Christian hymns. If I went to a Synagogue or Ethical Culture Society, I should accept their service, and it seems to me that something of the same liberality towards our characteristic features ought to be expected from those who believe less than we do. Science ignores personal peculiarities and only considers averages and common properties, but Religion is like Art in its recognition of the sacredness of personality and in demanding for it adequate expression. The Fellowship of Faiths must develop a fellowship not merely in the common element of ethical idealism, but also a fellowship of frank recognition of the right of each faith to the fullest expression. When Bishop Brooks went as Bishop to a ritualistic parish, the rector asked the Bishop how he should modify the service for the occasion. The Bishop wrote back: "Turn it all on." That's true liberalism.

Miss Catharine Hussey Lewis

A link that united us with the early days of the Parish snapped when Miss Lewis was taken from us. If she had lived till next August, she would have reached her 80th year. She was a member of the first group gathered together by Mrs. Burd in the Burd Orphan Asylum, and must have been under 8 years old to have been eligible for that institution. So she must have been connected with the Parish for seventy-two years, as one of its wards. The parish is only 105 years old, and she knew it for more than two-thirds of that period. She remembered Mrs. Burd vividly, and had been a special favorite of Dr. Ducachet, who trained her to be a teacher. When I came to the parish I found her the teacher of the Parish School, a position to which she was elected in 1866, while still in her 19th year. By my time the school had manifestly outlived its usefulness. So with the permission of the Courts the secular education of the children was left to the public schools, and Miss Lewis was made the Parish Visitor, and helped us to gather the children into the Sunday School. Her special charge was to look after the very young, and the aged, and infirm and poor. The task was most congenial to her. She was peculiarly drawn to the children of those who had once belonged to her Parish School. The more difficult the case, the more unwearied her efforts. Waywardness, indifference and folly never seemed to embitter or to harden her. Although as an administrator of charities she had to exercise caution and prudence and often met ingratitude and deceit, she never allowed these experiences to make her hard and unsympathetic or indifferent. No one could possibly distribute the Church's benevolence with more sisterliness and friendship and less patronage or bullying. Her faith in God was as manifest as her love for mankind. She believed that she was under the protection of a Heavenly Father, and, frail woman that she was, knew no fear. It was her confident belief that God was guiding her, and the manifestations of his leading were sometimes extraordinary. It was her deepest desire that she might continue in her work till the last, and that wish was fulfilled.

For some weeks she had refused my urgent solicitations to take a rest, and go as the Church's guest to Atlantic City. All that she wanted, she said, was to keep on at her work. At last a heavy cold laid hold upon her, and we could only prevail upon her to go to the hospital on Sunday, March 11th. She had a private room and two nurses, and all that medical skill could do for her, but on Monday evening, March 12th, she fell asleep and entered into rest.

The funeral was on Friday, the 16th, at 2.30 P. M. The Rector and Mr. Kevin officiated, members of the Vestry acted as honorary pallbearers, and six young men of the Parish were the active pallbearers. The organist and choir volunteered their services, and flowers were sent by the Burd School, the Benevolent Society, the Woman's Auxiliary, the Mothers' Meeting and by individuals. No token of honor or affection was lacking. The Vestry assumed all the expenses of the funeral, and she was buried in St. Stephen's lot in Laurel Hill Cemetery in the grave of her mother.

Long will her influence remain in the Parish. We are grateful for her life and character, and for the influences that went out from her. It is good, too, to know that the Parish did its part by her so loyally, that she was never allowed to feel that her failing powers made her less valuable, and that for years her tasks had been carefully adjusted to her abilities. In her last half-conscious words, she revealed her consciousness of the atmosphere of affection and consideration in which she spent her last days. We are glad to have a picture of her in her youthful vigor. It will be hung in an appropriate place, where the Mothers, who were her special charge, can often see it. It will be an enduring record of a faithful Christian worker, and of a brave and loving spirit. Thanks be unto God for such a gift to our Parish.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

I publish, with her permission, Miss Burns' beautiful letter of appreciation of the Parish's attitude toward Miss Lewis:

5607 Whitby Avenue.

Dear Dr. Grammer:

I am trying to say something that will convey to you my deep gratitude for what has been done by you and your faithful helpers in St. Stephen's Church for my dear cousin, both before and since her death. I don't know how to do it. I am overwhelmed with the kindness, generosity and affection displayed on every hand. I feel I can never quite make myself understood to you and Mr. Carrigan for what has been done, and all so beautifully done. Will you please convey my thanks to your Clerical Family, and all the dear friends who sympathized with me (for her sake). I would like to write to them all, but my hand does not always obey my will, and my thoughts fly away from me. I feel like one whose mission is ended. I never realized what we were to each other until I lost her, and I will never cease to thank our Heavenly Father for her connection with St. Stephen's Church. It was her one great love to work for it, and I am so thankful that she was able to do it almost to the last; but, I fear, many a time, under a great stress.

I can only say thank you, but that sounds very tame.

Eleanor Burns.

ADDRESS OF WELCOME

To Fellowship of Faiths, St. Stephen's Church, March 15, 1928

CARL E. GRAMMER, Rector

It gives me pleasure to welcome the Fellowship of Faiths to this historic Church, which is peculiarly qualified to be your host, by the principles that led to its organization. In 1823, when St. Stephen's was founded, the ascetic note was dominant in the life of the Protestant Churches, and in a certain school of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Christianity was not supposed to have any close relation to the Arts, and the prevailing architecture of our Church was on Greek and Roman lines, deficient in aspiration and standing "forever finished in this hasty world."

The Gothic arches of St. Stephen's were noticeable innovations and were the outward tokens of an effort to effect a union between religion and the arts. The same synthesizing influence in due time asserted itself in the pulpit in endeavors to reconcile Religion and Science in the latter part of the 19th century, and later in Dr. Worcester's emphasis on Comparative Religion and Psychology. Such a Church is manifestly an appropriate place of meeting for the Fellowship of Faiths.

We are gratified that the theme of the evening is an appreciation of Judaism. We are proud to bear the name of St. Stephen, and have not forgotten the race to which he belonged and the Faith in which his heroic soul was nurtured. The artist often overlooks these facts. When I ordered a medallion of the Saint for the outer wall of our Community House, the artist presented for my approval a placque in which St. Stephen wore a cowl, and looked like an Italian monk. Of course, I could not permit such an anachronism, and had the Saint represented as a Jew. To my amazement this portrayal excited some comment in the newspapers. Such ignorance reminded me of the criticism of a little boy who, after hearing me for the first time, reported that he did not like the new minister, because he had said that Jesus was a Jew! Perhaps he thought he was an Episcopalian. How badly had he been taught to be ignorant of a fact of such profound significance! In this Church, however, our regard is not restricted to those Hebrews who accepted Jesus as the long desired Messiah. Let me call your especial attention to that window next to the statue of the Angel of the Resurrection. It is the gift of a daughter in honor of an eminent ecclesiastical lawyer, a Nestor of the bar. I suggested that an appropriate theme would be St. Paul, in Mars Hill, the representative of Religion, speaking in a seat of Law, in the city of Philosophy. But the lady refused with some heat. She considered St. Paul deficient in appreciation of her sex; and far too ascetic. To her mind, that spiritual splendor, both of Judaism and of Christianity, was "less than the least of all Saints." So we settled on Gamaliel speaking before the Sanhedrim in behalf of religious toleration, or at least against the use of force to protect the Truth. When we recall that Gamaliel was the disciple of that supreme Rabbi, Hillel, who fused, in such a spirit of sweetness and light, the lofty theism and moral strenuousness of Judaism, with the philosophy of Greece, I think that you will agree with me that a Church with such a window is a singularly appropriate place for an appreciation of Judaism.

Heartily do I welcome this Fellowship of Faiths. I re-echo the words of Goethe, "Don't tell me your doubts: I have enough of my own; tell me of your faiths." There is something in us that whispers in low but thrilling tones that life is well worth while, that it is, in truth, an inestimable boon. We believe that that inner voice gives us authentic tidings of invisible things. We realize that religion resembles Art, more closely than Science, and is an appreciation, a response to the Universe, a vision of the light that never fell on sea or land, which is cast abroad upon the Universe by the Spirit of man, which is the candle of the Lord. I marvel at the narrow-mindedness of the people who object to such a Fellowship. Such protests of ignorance receive no sympathy in the Episcopal Church, where every Sunday we read a lesson from the Old Testament and chant and read responsively some of the Psalms. It is our belief, as the Epistle to the Hebrews puts it so grandly, that "God in sundry times and in divers manners spake in times past unto the Fathers by the prophets," as well as in the last days by His Son.

While we do not care to hear about music from the deaf, or tone-deaf; nor about color from the blind, or color-blind, the response that Judaism awakes in religious spirits touched to fine issues, profoundly interests us. . . . I lend this Church in the conviction expressed so admirably by the philosopher Bradley, in a passage quoted with strong approval by that eminent philosopher and sometime Lord High Chancellor of England, Lord Haldane: "There is nothing more real than what counts in religion. To compare facts such as these with what comes to us in outward existence would be to trifle with the subject. The man who demands a reality more solid than that of the religious consciousness knows not what he seeks."

In this conviction I bid you welcome, and invoke upon you the blessings of the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, whom we here also adore, as the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The Woman's Auxiliary

The speaker at the March meeting of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, was Mrs. Jennie A. Griffith, who is a Christian Social Service worker, representing the Woman's Interdenominational Union at the Juvenile Court.

She attends the court sessions so that Protestant boys and girls who are unfortunately brought there for misdemeanors, may find counsel and help, just as the Catholic and Jewish youths are befriended by their official representatives.

Every day from 50 to 75 dependent and delinquent children under 16 are brought before this court, and Mrs. Griffith thinks the greatest chance to help them is after their first offence. So she tries to get some church organization in the community from which the child comes, to take special interest in his or her case. She says almost every case begins with truancy.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held April 19th, at 10.30 A. M.

"When difficulties surround us, when, after all our labours, nothing seems to be done, and everything remains to be done, in the midst of apparent failures, in the midst of very real perplexities, in the midst of the babble of criticism, and the strife of tongues, let us, like St. Paul, sit down and bravely and at once and always to embrace the first plain, practical step of duty which seems wisest at the moment."

Love is the realization of our own ideals —God.—Miss Bennett.

Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

The reports of all the societies are full of encouragement, and deserve to be read attentively. They bear out the impression that every one must have received at the service on Sunday night, May the 6th, and prove unmistakably that St. Stephen's is doing fine work as an institutional Church, as well as providing a place of worship in the centre of the city, for weekdays, as well as Sundays. I hope that this union service of all the worshippers in the Church, and all the members of the societies and groups using the Community House may become a regular annual occurrence, and bind together our congregations and workers in a closer fellowship. If we could get out at this service all of our attendants and Community House users, the Church would not be able to hold them, though they should be as closely packed as the people were in our congregation at the great Noon-day Service on Good Friday. When I recall the small number of the organizations in the Church when I became rector (there was not even a Woman's Auxiliary) and the great vacant spaces on Sunday morning in the centre of the Church, I feel profoundly grateful that God has opened to us so many channels of usefulness, and given us such unforeseen assistances.

I wish that I could feel as hopeful about the Episcopal Church as a whole, as I do about St. Stephen's. It is, of course, a subject of rejoicing, that the rector of Holy Trinity, Boston, Dr. Sherrill, was elected Bishop Coadjutor. But the compromise resolution on the subject of the Articles was less definite than we had a right to expect from the Diocese of Pennsylvania, in view of its history. This has always been one of the great Protestant dioceses, and it was reasonable to hope that it would oppose any lowering of the Reformation standard. The only argument advanced for taking the Articles out of the Prayer Book, was the statement that they did not belong in the book of devotion.

Against this it was pointed out, that Devotion and Faith belong together, if devotion is to be intelligent; that this theory was the basis of the recitation of the Creed in the Morning and Evening Prayer, and in the Communion Service; that this location of the Articles in the Prayer Book had behind it the usage of over 100 years in our Church, and of many centuries in the Church of England. People ought to know what their Church stands for. The Irish Church publishes in its Prayer Book the Canons of the Church. It would be a wise step to omit from our Prayer Book such out-of-date services as the Churching of Women, and the Forms of Prayer to be used at Sea, and such unnecessary repetitions as the full Litany and Suffrages, and Communion Service in the Consecration of Bishops, and put in their place the Constitution of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States. It would teach our people what they ought to know.

The bold statement that the Articles had better be published elsewhere, unreasoned, unexplained, a mere personal preference, stood thus unsupported against the usage of our Church for centuries, in many branches, and the tradition of the union of faith and devotion, manifested in our recitation of the Creed. This was the sole reason given for a change that is resented and opposed by many people. It is resented because it is an oblique and indirect way of getting rid of them, or weakening them. To drop them, without providing authoritatively for their publication elsewhere, is in my judgment a repudiation of them. But we are told that nothing of the kind is intended. It is not even meant to weaken them, it is urged. It is a mere change of place. But why change their place? What are the arguments?

1st.—The General Convention has passed the measure once, and it will certainly pass next time. Let that stand for reason number one. As if it was not the intention of this constitutional requirement of two passages, that the question should be argued on its merits each time.

2.—The Articles are no good anyhow. Let that stand for reason number two, though while all this ridicule is heaped upon them, it is stoutly asserted that no effort is being made to weaken them. Great is the power of ridicule, and the desire of people to find a path of compromise. A Quaker friend of mine remarked when I objected to the Church of England's sanctioning reservation, that anyhow those who did not want to practice reservation need not do it. It occurred to me at once that in a Quaker Meeting, those who did not want to sing or to observe the sacraments, would be in a bad way, if there were no rule, and those who desired to sing and observe the sacraments had the liberty of doing as they pleased. In a case like that we see that a law is the protector of the liberty of the majority; that those who want a hymnless service and those who wish to worship with hymns must establish a rule, if unseemliness and disorder is to be avoided. The same holds true of the Episcopal Church. I believe that the great majority of its lay members are Protestants and do not want the Protestant standard of the Articles lowered. It is very easy to ridicule the apprehensions of the Protestant element, but the folly of this cheap ridicule was made manifest in the Convention on Thursday, when 64 clergymen cast their votes for a nominee for Coadjutor Bishop of this diocese, who, it was admitted, substitutes for the Confession in our Communion Office the Confession taken from the Mass, in which confession prayer is addressed to the Virgin and Saints, who practices reservation for adoration, and observes the devotions at the Stations of the Cross. Some of us think that superstition and skepticism are the real names of Giant Pope and Giant Pagan, and that these two giants were not rightly described by Bunyan in his parable, as decrepit. While their methods of attack are different, they are confederates in this, that they are both the foes of a reasonable religious and holy hope. Skepticism refuses the soul the belief that fortifies it and superstition poisons the soul by drugging it into a false security, or by inflaming it with meretricious stimulants. What we want is the truth as it is in Jesus, the truth of the Gospels, in which God and the soul are brought close together, and His Spirit in our hearts is made our chief reliance and there is no need of interceding Saints, nor a local presence in Bread and Wine. These Articles that are derided in a spirit so unhistorical, and, I must say, with such small reverence for historic symbols and old flags, are valuable as protests against such unscriptural superstitions. But I must not be desponding. "God keepeth watch above His own."

> "It fortifies my soul to know,
> That though I perish, Truth is so,
> I steadier step when I recall,
> That though I slip, Thou dost not fall."

I am looking forward with much pleasure to my visit to Europe, and especially to attendance at the Cambridge Conference of Liberals, September 17th to 24th. I have already registered and engaged my room. We shall spend most of our summer in North Western France, in Normandy and Brittany and in the West of England. I feel that I leave the parish in good hands, and I am grateful for the harmony and progress that has marked the past year.

May God keep and bless us all.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

Here is a sample of the kind of person that wants to get rid of the 39 Articles. Shall we encourage him?

"I reside in a normally High Church diocese, where Catholic practice reigns supreme. With exception of three or four Anglican Churches, every one of our parishes has Mass said on Sundays; the Sacrament is perpetually reserved, Confessions heard, Eucharistic vestments used, as well as the general use of candles, incense, and various other Catholic practices. All of this is acceptable to the great majority of the communicants. I venture to say that within a few years Catholicity will be an accepted part of our faith and worship.

"The Anglo-Catholic is simply and sincerely fighting for the recognition of the truth in our Episcopal Church. I have made a deep study of the history of the Anglican Church since Her very beginning. I have written at length on the subject, and I deny most emphatically that the Anglican Church is Protestant. On the other hand, I have found that Protestantism has been forced upon the Anglican Church, chiefly through the medium of the Puritan Protestant influence in the English Church following the Reformation, and except for this influence, all the various Catholic practices would have remained within the Anglican Church.

"The Anglo-Catholic is not trying to Romanize the Anglican Church; on the contrary we are really establishing the true Catholic faith as taught by the Catholic fathers, who founded and developed our Church. It is our common birthright and we are the exponents of truth.

"The Thirty-nine Articles are not consistent with the doctrines of the Anglican Church. They were not written to govern the Church docrimentally [sic]. It has been proven that they were originally conceived to satisfy the German princes who sat upon the throne of England at the time, and to, if possible, keep within the English Church all of the people that were gradually breaking away and forming outside and non-conforming Churches. Thus, it seems to me, the Thirty-nine Articles were invented to satisfy a certain period, rather than to become the rule of faith for all time, or in short, to preserve unity.

"I most certainly agree that there are two religions within our Church, and that also, the same Church can not peacefully house both. I also believe that truth will prevail and that the whole Anglican Communion will eventually accept Catholicism. Because Protestantism has proven unsatisfying. The Anglican Church has stood at a standstill in the United States because of the internal strife within Her, and this evil must be removed if the Church must grow. I believe sincerely that the life of the Apostolic Church depends upon Catholicism.

"Yes, Dear Sir, I am an Anglo-Catholic, because I believe in the Catholicity of the Anglican Church, and if we are to be Catholic, we must be so whole and entire. I am a layman, the same as yourself, and I venture to say that the Catholic spirit will soon envelope the entire Church.

"Protestantism must go, and the manifestation of Catholic truth come into its own, Then, and then alone, will our Church fulfil Her mission on earth."

A Prayer for Airmen

Sing a new song to God, our King,
Praise now the Lord of speed and wing;
The circling stars His power declare,
The birds receive His loving care,
And to His people He has taught
That time and space to Him are naught.

God of our ocean, earth and air,
We feel Thy presence everywhere;
On pastures green Thy creatures feed,
Through waters deep Thy hand doth lead;
High in the clouds our airmen roam,
Oh, guide their flights and bring them home!

When on the wings of wind they fly
Ambassadors, 'twixt earth and sky,
Grant them Thy gifts of strength and skill,
Grant them Thy courage and Thy will,
And, under them, midst all alarms,
Stretch forth Thine everlasting arms.

—Christine S. Polk.

Report of the Accounting Warden

It is a pleasure to report the finances of the Church in a very satisfactory condition. The Endowment Fund at the close of 1927 amounted to $659,768.06 and was fully invested.

The receipts for the year 1927 came from the following sources:

Interest on Endowments and Bank Deposits	$ 38,429.44
Envelope Contributions	2,380.83
Pew Rents	3,287.24
Burd School	500.00
Community House, for use of Auditorium	107.50
	$ 44,705.01

and the disbursements were as follows:

Salaries of Clergy and Assistants	$ 16,880.00
Organist, Music and Choir	9,469.37
Pension Premiums	1,057.50
Diocesan Assessment	1,724.69
Interest on Community House Mortgage	1,708.61
Repairs	408.91
Operating Expenses	12,011.79
	$ 43,260.87

The receipts for Special Parochial Purposes were:

Communion Alms	$ 1,106.51
Envelope Contributions	988.40
Interest on Endowments	1,583.58
Amounting to	$ 3,678.49

and the disbursements were:

Communion Alms	$ 1,106.51
Paid to Treasurers of various Parochial Objects	2,859.75
Amounting to	$ 3,966.26

The receipts for Diocesan and General Church Objects amounted to $5,818.57 and the disbursements were $5,818.52.

The receipts for the Community House Debt amounted to $606.50. The amount contributed in 1926 for this purpose was $1,041.25, making a total of $1,647.75. One thousand dollars was paid on account of the mortgage on the Community House, leaving a balance now due on that mortgage of $34,000. We have at the present time a balance on hand of approximately $1,200 which we are hopeful to shortly increase, at which time a further reduction will be made in the Community House Debt.

The receipts for envelope contributions and pew rents for general church purposes showed a falling off of about $800 during the year 1927 as against 1926. The receipts for communion alms and envelope contributions were practically the same. The receipts for Diocesan and General Church Objects were approximately $800 less than in the year 1926, but it is to be borne in mind that during the year 1927 the members of the parish were meeting obligations in connection with the Diocesan Campaign, the payments on which would more than offset the deficit in general contributions to Church purposes.

It is to be hoped that without in any way diminishing the contributions to Diocesan and Parochial charities the members of the parish can continue to maintain their contributions towards the parochial needs and at the same time, and from time to time, make contributions for the liquidation of the Community House Debt. With a loyal and zealous support our Church, with its strong financial independence, is in a position to continue a most useful work in this city.

Respectfully submitted,
I. Smith Raspin.

Report of Lenten Services and Wednesday Noonday Services

It is very gratifying to report the continued success of the services of the Lenten Season. Excellent and profitable addresses were made by visiting clergymen who have assisted us in former years, and in addition by those who were with us for the first time. The average daily attendance was maintained and the generous contributions were sufficient to cover our expenses, notwithstanding the increase in the number of similar services now being held during Lent in our own vicinity and elsewhere in the city.

The largest attendance was at the service on Good Friday, which was addressed by our Rector and filled the church to its utmost capacity.

Balance May 2, 1927	$ 300.00
Receipts	1,291.51
	$ 1,591.51
Disbursements	1,210.89
Balance May 1, 1928	$ 380.62

Wednesday Services

Following the Lenten Services in 1919 a plan of holding a noonday service in the middle of the week was put into effect somewhat in the nature of an experiment. It was soon shown that this service filled a need and has become one of the regular services of the church and is entering its tenth successive year with good average attendance.

The slight excess of expenses over receipts is caused by having during the vacation period in August, clergymen from outside the Parish to conduct the weekly service for which an honorarium was given.

Balance May 2, 1927	$ 237.85
Receipts	250.95
	$ 488.80
Disbursements	264.75
Balance May 1, 1928	$ 224.05

Respectfully submitted,
W. Gardner Crowell,
Treasurer.

Report of the Benevolent Society

This season's activities of the Benevolent Society of St. Stephen's Church commenced November 7th, with a membership of eighteen sewers, of whom sixteen reported for service at that time. The work done by this faithful band has been most satisfactory, and in this connection it is gratifying to state that one hospital expressed a decided preference for garments made by our Society.

The Rummage Sale, held in November, was a great success, due to the help of the many friends interested in our work. The generous donation of Mrs. John Coats Browne added materially to the receipts, the sum total of which was $396.09. This very welcome asset enabled us to accomplish a greater amount of work than could otherwise have been done.

The Woman's Board of the Jefferson Hospital paid $125 to us for making 250 rompers. For this extra work our women were most grateful.

Owing to unemployment the past winter was a hard one for many families. For this reason we gave out work until, I regret to say, our treasury was depleted.

Ten thousand four hundred and twenty-five articles were made for twenty hospitals and institutions; the greatest number ever made by the Society.

Another Rummage Sale will be held in November, and it is earnestly hoped that through the cooperation of the church members, the sale will prove an even greater success than the last.

It was greatly regretted by all our members that on account of illness, Miss Ewing was compelled to resign as Vice-President. We hope in the fall she will be able to resume her usual activities in the Society.

In the death of Miss Lewis we lost a dear and valued friend, whose place, I fear, can never be filled. She will be especially missed by the sewers for whom she was always ready to do a kindly act, often carrying work to sick women who could not come for it.

The final meeting was held on May 11th, when the usual luncheon was served, followed by moving pictures.

Isabel P. Davis,
Secretary.

The Woman's Auxiliary

Seven stated meetings were held, beginning with a corporate communion in October, and the last meeting of the season was in April. There are sixty names on the list, thirty-three only contributing. There was an average attendance of nineteen, one resignation and two new members and five deaths.

The Auxiliary lost by death two revered active members, Mrs. Frank H. Whiting, a vice-president, and Miss Elizabeth C. Washington, delegate to the Committee of Colored Missions and Treasurer from St. Stephen's Parish of the United Thank Offering. Miss Mary de Haven Bright now officiates as Treasurer, and Mrs. Katharine Miesse is a new delegate on the Committee of Colored Missions.

News was brought from China by Miss Mabel Sibson, of Wuchang, a graduate of the Philadelphia Deaconess Training School, who has been teaching in Wuchang and assisting one of the native clergy in social service work. Dr. Elmer N. Schmuch also addressed the Auxiliary that morning, and both speakers emphasized keeping up the morale of all missionaries in the Orient by continued interest and support during these troublous times.

In January Miss Elizabeth Howland told of the interesting work at St. Mary's School for Indian girls at Springfield, South Dakota, where the pupils are trained in every line of work in the making of a home. She brought the enthusiasm of a young girl to the scholars, and it was a delight to her hearers to listen to her accounts of routine work.

The Philadelphia City Mission on Third Street, was represented at the February meeting by Miss Canning, who is in charge of the clothing department, and she made an urgent appeal for second-hand clothing to meet the needs of the many unemployed who apply for necessary clothing. Twenty dollars were donated and members are asked to send clothing at any time to 225 S. Third Street.

In March Mrs. Griffith, the Christian Social Service worker, representing the Women's Interdenominational Union in the Juvenile Court, related many incidents of rescuing children, particularly after a first offence, by getting in touch with the nearest church in the district from which the child comes, and having special inquiry made in the case and some human interest shown.

Mrs. George Woodward, President of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, sent a request that her letter printed in the annual report, should be read at a meeting of the Auxiliary of every parish, as it contained the outline of the year's activity, and promise, and the suggestion that a retrospective glance should be cast to see in so far such promise had been fulfilled.

If the text-book, "A Church Awake," was not studied during Lent, it is suggested that it be read during the summer. To attend a Summer Conference is an experience well worth while, as the conferences play an important part in the educational life of the church, and Miss Helen Washburn will give any information required, as it is desired that some one may attend from St. Stephen's, to go to the conference at Frederick, Maryland.

The Auxiliary initiated a memorial gift to the United Thank Offering from members and friends of Miss Washington, presented through St. Stephen's at the annual service held at the Church of the Saviour, on April 27th. Action was also taken to contribute $50 this year to the budget of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary instead of the $100 asked for.

Several members took part during Braille Week on the Diocesan Day by assisting in the lunch room, and all have participated in contributing to the Christmas packages, missionary appeals and donating periodicals.

Fifteen dollars were contributed by the Auxiliary toward the tablet for Miss Lewis, in addition to individual amounts given.

It is not possible to chronicle the many opportunities offered the women of the Church to attend meetings every month, devotional and educational, anniversaries and outings and bazaars, all animated with the same spirit of service and fellowship.

Let me conclude with the quotation that as "we pray that God will be merciful to us and bless us," we should remember that our "only justification for imploring God's mercy is that through our activity His way may be known upon earth, His saving health among all nations."

Laura Bell,
President.

Yearly Report of St. Stephen's Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society

This has been an important winter in the history of the Girls' Friendly Society. The national organization was fifty years old last November, and about one thousand members from all over the United States gathered in Boston to celebrate this great event—including one of our own members, Miss Bertha Walshe.

It was a most inspiring convention, the main topic throughout all discussions being "Widening Horizons." A visit was also made to St. Anne's Church, Lowell, Mass., where Miss Edson formed the first branch of the Girls' Friendly Society in America with twelve girls who were her Sunday School scholars. One charter member was present at the beautiful service held in St. Anne's for the visiting members and delegates.

Later in November St. Stephen's Branch celebrated its fortieth birthday, by having an anniversary dinner, to which were invited all past and present members and associates, also the Diocesan officers of the Society and the Vestry of St. Stephen's. One hundred and thirty-nine were present and the general opinion was that the occasion was a most enjoyable one.

One very pleasant feature of the winter is our acquisition of a much-needed associate, Miss Blanche Moore, who has already made herself a much-beloved one and fills a large place in the life of the whole Friendly, as well as in that of her band.

Various means were used to raise the customary "Special Effort" money this season—the money which is devoted to missionary work done by the Branch. A silver offering was collected at the interesting illustrated talk given by Dr. Moore on Mexico; also several members had "parties" at their homes, when each guest paid 25 cents. These parties were not only a source of pleasure, but of financial profit. Movies, a waffle supper and a card party also helped to bring the total raised this past year beyond any amount as yet collected—about $435, and perhaps more. This money will be distributed among the many needs (national, diocesan and parochial) presented to the Branch. On Special Effort Night, when this money was presented by the members, there was a splendid vaudeville entertainment, gotten up by Miss Irene Wilder, many of the performers being grown children of our own members.

Miss Canning visited the Branch one evening and gave an interesting talk on our City Missions. We had a Hallowe'en Party, also an evening of tableaux, representing the titles of books.

Following are some of the ways in which the Special Effort money collected last year has been distributed during the past winter: contributed toward G. F. S. Garden Party; $50 given to American Red Cross for relief of Mississippi flood sufferers; $50 to St. Stephen's Sunday School for two banners; $100 to St. Stephen's Community House; 100 filled stockings and 50 dressed dolls sent to Philadelphia General Hospital at Christmas; cost of Anniversary dinner; $25 to Philadelphia Home for Incurables Building Fund; $25 to Greater Woman's Medical Hospital Fund; second installment ($20) to Diocesan Campaign Fund; contribution toward educational work in Philippine Islands (Bontoc scholarship); and purchase of materials for Lenten sewing.

The associates as well as members of the Society have worked faithfully throughout the entire season to bring about the generous sum realized for their mission work, and the friendship and steadfastness of our present leader has been a source of great encouragement to all in the branch.

Burd School

January 1, 1928, marked the Tenth Anniversary of Miss Tappen's management of the Burd School. During this period 79 girls have come under her care and guidance and it is largely due to her influence that so many of our girls have asked for the privilege of a college course. In October Miss Tappen returned from her vacation greatly benefited by the required rest and change of scene. Shortly after her return a tea was given at the school, to take the place of the usual spring exercises, which had to be deferred owing to Miss Tappen's ill health. There was an informal meeting greatly enjoyed by all who attended. Dr. Grammer made the address and presented the prizes for the past year. Miss Tappen's gift to the school of a Swiss clock for the large reception room, was also presented by Dr. Grammer and received with much delight.

Mr. J. Prentice Murphy, Executive Secretary of the Children's Bureau, visited the school early in the year. He has been opposed to children being placed in institutions. These convictions were greatly modified after visiting and inspecting the Burd School. He expressed his approbation of our school and asked the privilege of sending groups of Normal School pupils, studying social science, for visits of inspection.

There are now thirty-seven girls in the school. Three have left during the year. Five girls were confirmed. Excellent reports are received of our post-graduate students from their various colleges and schools. In this connection it is interesting to state that Virginia Downward completed her course at the University of Pennsylvania last year and received an appointment as teacher at the Willow Grove Junior High School, in charge of the Science Department.

In August the girls will go to camp for a month after having had the privilege of two weeks' holiday with relatives or friends.

It is a source of satisfaction to all those interested in the progress of the school to know of the growing pride and loyalty with which our post-graduates of today acclaim their connection with the Burd School.

I wish to thank all the members of the Board of Visitors for their cooperation and assistance..

Respectfully submitted,

Emily K. Campbell,
Chairman.

Mothers' Meeting

The Mothers' Meeting reports a successful year with 180 names on the roll, 20 new members, and 1 death.

At eight meetings through the season we have had an attendance of over 100.

Our closing party on April 26th was enjoyed by 160 members and about 40 guests.

Our entertainment on that evening, suggested by Mr. Carrigan and approved by Dr. Grammer, was the interesting moving picture, Seventh Heaven. Dr. Grammer presided and ice cream and cakes were served.

The moving pictures, provided once a month by Dr. Grammer and managed by Mr. Carrigan, continue to be an attractive feature of the season.

One hundred and thirty members attended the service on Sunday evening, May 6th.

No organization in the church could feel more deeply the sense of loss in the passing of Miss Lewis in March, than the Mothers' Meeting.

On Thursday evening, March 15th, Dr. Grammer left a large meeting in the church at which he was presiding, to hold a beautiful and comforting Memorial Service in the Community House for the Mothers' Meeting.

Many of the members attended the funeral on Friday, March 16th, and flowers were sent.

Our collections this season have amounted to $84.40.

On May 2nd our cheque for $120 went to

Mr. Frazier in payment of our yearly pledge for the Diocesan Campaign Fund.

One hundred dollars was turned over to Dr. Grammer from the proceeds of our Fair, for the Community House.

We have given $10 to the Memorial Fund for Miss Lewis; $10 to the United Offering in memory of Miss Washington, and our usual $5 for Altar Decorations for Palm Sunday.

On July 21, 1927, over 100 members enjoyed our Annual Outing, this time by special busses to Atlantic City.

We had the pleasure of having with us Dr. Grammer, Mr. and Mrs. Kevin, Mr. and Mrs. Carrigan, Miss Lewis and Mr. Streaker.

Respectfully submitted,

Blanche M. Harper,
President.

Players' Guild

The activities of St. Stephen's Players' Guild this year were directed to the production of two plays, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," a lovely little story of the moral regeneration of a boarding house, and "Nothing But the Truth," presented Friday and Saturday, June 1st and 2nd, a comedy which has been amusingly presented on the professional stage. The coaching this year has been under the able direction of Mrs. Ruth German. J. Lewis Armstrong is president of the group of 12.

Altar Society

The Thirty-fourth Annual Report of the Altar Society is herewith presented. At the annual meeting, held on January 4th, 1928, Miss Anna E. Eisenbrey, the Superintendent of the Altar Society for over thirty years, presented her resignation, which was received with profound regret. It was, upon motion, resolved that the following resolution be adopted and incorporated in the minutes:

Resolved, That the resignation of Miss Anna E. Eisenbrey of the superintendency of the Altar Society, which she has held for so many years with such advantage to the church, be accepted with great regret, and with the liveliest sense of her fidelity and the fine example that she has set to her fellow-members.

This condition is herewith annexed to this acceptance, viz., that she and her sister will allow their names to continue on the list of our members as honorary members, and that of Miss Eisenbrey as honorary superintendent.

A copy of the resolution was sent to Miss Eisenbrey.

Miss Susan C. Thackara was elected to succeed Miss Eisenbrey.

During the year one new surplice has been made and five new surplices are in the process of being finished.

A pair of white Bible markers and white Altar Book markers have been made, and three stoles relined.

Four Altar Hymnals out of date for duty in our Church service, have been sent to the Indian Mission, at Springfield, South Dakota; also a silk chalice veil, a linen credence cloth, white markers for Bible and Altar Prayer Book and a black stole, all in fairly good condition.

Miss Thackara's personal gift to this Mission was a new fair linen cloth which was sent with the donation from our Parish.

The Treasurer submits the following report:

St. Stephen's Aid Society

The meetings of the Aid Society were fairly well attended during Lent. The interest in finishing the work necessitated an extra meeting on Friday in Easter week.

Miss Lewis' death was greatly lamented, but we hope to continue the work under Mrs. Higham's able guidance.

One hundred and sixty-two garments were made.

The Parish Visitor

The Parish Visitor's report is for three weeks. In that time 25 visits were made, including visits to the Home for Consumptives, Philadelphia General and Jefferson. An old man 86, was helped to get a pair of shoes, a visiting nurse sent to a woman in serious condition from cancer, two layettes to expectant mothers, and partly worn men's clothing given where needed. Through the kindness and generosity of a member of the church, a shut-in, also a member of one of our societies, are to receive a monthly sum during the summer. Weekly aid is given a woman, paralyzed and crippled, and several others given monthly help.

An 18-year-old girl, a stranger in the city, without funds or friends, came in to see if the church would give her $3 to pay an agency who promised her a position at housework. The help was given and the girl promised to return on her first free afternoon. As this happened less than a week ago, we have not yet heard from her.

The Parish Visitor would like to report that each one visited expressed love for Miss Lewis and regret and sorrow for her loss.

Idella W. Higham.

Report of "Whatsoever" Circle of King's Daughters of St. Stephen's Church

When the last meeting is held next week, this Society will have held seventeen meetings during the past season, with an average attendance of eleven members. Most of us come for supper, and this gives opportunity for social intercourse as well as an early start on our work, which consists chiefly in sewing. This season we have made 12 dresses, with bloomers, for the Hope Day Nursery, 22 infants' garments for the Sheltering Arms and eight heavy flannel caps which were sent to some patients at Mont Alto.

We held our usual Cake and Candy Sale in February, which brought us $83.15; also we had a card party in March which proved quite a success and added $47.60 to our funds. During the season we have sent Thanksgiving and Valentine gifts to a patient at Mont Alto and fruit and flowers to the sick. At Christmas we contributed toward the Church baskets, also gave a basket to an aged couple ourselves. Twenty-four stockings were filled with toys and candy and given to the Hope Day Nursery. One hundred dollars was given to the Community House debt and contributions have been made to the Greater Woman's Medical College Fund, the Diocesan Campaign Fund and to Miss Lewis' Memorial Fund.

Two new names have been added to our membership.

Bertha T. Walshe,
President.

Young People's Club

The Young People's Club is a social organization, but we try to do for others as well as ourselves, and we feel that we have been particularly fortunate this season in our charitable work.

On May 21, 1927, we took 40 children to the Zoo, and after showing them around, we gave them milk, sandwiches, ice cream and cake, and sent them home a tired but happy group.

In July the young people had a picnic, going to Valley Forge. They all had a very nice time.

In September, we spent a day at Atlantic City, which we enjoyed very much.

October 26th we had our Hallowe'en dance. The young people were in fancy dress, and the auditorium beautifully decorated. At the proper time suitable refreshments for the occasion were served, and we all decided our party was quite a success.

On November 2nd (our regular monthly supper) Mr. Reifsnyder treated us to a turkey dinner. We had 35 present. During the evening we were entertained with songs by Mary Page Grammer and Katherine Page, who with Dr. and Mrs. Grammer were our guests at dinner. We spent a very delightful evening.

These suppers we have the first Wednesday in each month (which I consider a very important feature), are just like large family gatherings, where we meet and eat and have a good, wholesome time, made possible through the kindness of Katherine Krebs, who prepares them. We all appreciate her willingness to do this work.

On November 9th we had a Rummage Sale, to raise money for our work.

December 14th we had our Annual Bazaar. Part of the proceeds we use for charity work, and part we give to Dr. Grammer for the Community House.

Mr. Reifsnyder treated us to another turkey dinner in December. We had an old man and his sister for guests, gave them each a Christmas gift and sent them home happy, with a well filled basket of turkey and fixings left from the dinner.

On January 11th, we had a party of 25 children, sent to us by the social worker from Jefferson Hospital. After a supper of sandwiches, cocoa, ice cream and cake, they were entertained by a magician, which they all enjoyed very much. We then gave each child a pair of shoes, two pairs of stockings and two suits of underwear, and there were at least 25 happy children that night.

On February 9th, we had a theater party. Our guests were Dr. and Mrs. Grammer, and any one who has been to the theater with Dr. Grammer knows he enjoyed it, and I am sure all the others did.

February 29th, we had 25 poor mothers to supper, giving them chicken croquettes and creamed oysters, coffee, rolls, ice cream and cake. It was a pleasure to see these women enjoy something they did not have to prepare themselves. After supper we had a movie and singing, and sent them home happy, each with a box of candy.

We decided this year instead of spending all the money Dr. Grammer so kindly gives us for an outing, to give a party and invite all the congregation, which we held on March 14th, and we feel it was a great success. We were sorry more of the congregation could not have been with us, but hope if we have another, more will come.

On April 25th, we had a card party, to raise money for the Community House.

We made a gift to the Mississippi flood sufferers; to the Lewis Memorial Fund, and gave Dr. Grammer a check for the Community House.

We wish to thank all who have co-operated with us, especially Dr. Grammer for his very liberal allowance for summer outings.

We feel we have had a successful season, and have been able to help others not as fortunate as ourselves, besides having some attractive social events.

Hannah G. Reifsnyder,
President.

Report of the Young People's Fellowship of St. Stephen's Church

The Young People's Fellowship is one of the most recent of our parish organizations. It started a year and a half ago with ten members and now has an active membership of about 35. The primary purpose in beginning the Fellowship was to afford a platform for the discussion of young people's problems in the light of Christian principles; secondarily, to provide an evening parallel to the Sunday School which meets in the morning.

This year's meetings of the Fellowship were opened October 16, 1927, with the election of Mrs. Ruth Brown, President; Miss Gertrude Bixler, Secretary; Mr. Richard Robinson, Vice-President; Miss Violet Kuhns, Assistant Secretary; Miss Violet Humes, Corresponding Secretary; Miss Lidie Hammel, Treasurer; Mr. Howard Reifsynder and Mr. Robert Kevin, Counsellors.

The meetings are held in the Guild Room of the Parish House every Sunday at 7 P. M. There have been many helpful discussions and several very interesting speakers have visited us during the year. St. Stephen's Fellowship has become a member of the Young People's Fellowship of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, having some 48 branches. This has been a considerable inspiration to our work.

The annual convention of the Diocesan Fellowship in which we participated was held at the Church of the Atonement, 47th and Kingsessing Avenue, in the late fall. Bishop Garland presided. Our Fellowship entertained the presidents and secretaries of the Diocesan Fellowships February 9th. They were given a one-act play and refreshments, and a conference on the general work of the Diocese was held.

On the first Friday of the month a social and business meeting is held. On Friday, April 13th, the Fellowship sponsored a card party which was successful in every way.

The Fellowship more recently undertook the responsibility of raising enough money to provide a marker and tablet in memory of our late parish visitor and friend, Miss Kate Lewis. So far there have been 138 responses, and a total of $505 has been received. We wish to take this opportunity to thank all who co-operated.

On Friday, October 5th, of this year, it is planned to have a "Pep" meeting for the Fellowships of the Diocese in St. Stephen's Church, when we expect at least 1,000 young people to be present. Mr. Kevin is chairman of the Diocesan meeting and is planning to have the new Bishop-Elect, Dr. Sherrill, as the speaker on that occasion.

There are no Fellowship dues or obligations and consequently the year was opened with an empty treasury. A collection box placed by the door provides sufficient income for the normal operation of the group. During the year $13.40 was taken in that way, $10 was donated by a friend; and $19.75 was received as the income from the card party. Disbursements were $16.78 and the treasurer's balance is $26.37.

Respectfully submitted,
Ruth Brown,
President.

Presentation Service, Friday, April 27th

Bishop Garland celebrated the Holy Communion. Right Rev. Walter Henry Overs, former Bishop of Liberia, preached.

Meeting of Parish Treasurer, Mrs. Baker, announced offering of $12,166.90. Sixty-seven thousand five hundred and fifteen total for Pennsylvania; $4,513.41 ahead at end of December. In 1925 U. T. O. was $86,031.67.

This year it is expected to go well over a million.

The Sunday School

On Saturday, June 27th, last, our annual excursion had two special cars on the 8 A. M. Reading train to Atlantic City. This generosity on the part of our loved church, enables us to give a day at the seashore to about 130, which includes, besides the scholars and teachers, a few of the relatives of our children as well as some friends. For this great privilege we are very grateful.

In the middle of September we opened the fall and winter session, and after a conference with the Rector and Mr. Kevin, we had our Rally Day in early October, a reorganization, and a new system of lessons introduced. Miss Josephine Hecker was cordially received as Secretary with several new teachers from the Deaconess House.

Midwinter brought us to the joys of the Christmas season with a well-performed play, called "The Christmas Ship." During this week we were enabled by requests, to entertain some 2200 in our Sunday School room and elsewhere, at the Seamen's Church Institute and at the Navy Yard. The teachers were made happy with the usual large quota from the Sunday School, which the Rector presented to the Bishop on Sunday, March 25th, for confirmation.

The Lenten Season and Easter brought a happy response from talented scholars in the Easter Carol Service and Pageant of Sunday afternoon, April 15th. We for years, at this time, expect the return of many who have graduated as scholars or left us as teachers, and so this festival occasion saw the church well filled with our friends and relatives in a most happy way. The Pageant, "In the Garden of the Lord," was well portrayed with colorful costumes and excellently rendered dialogue. The offerings to Missions presented at this annual service was $236.95.

So we go happily on with lessons from the life of the Master each Sunday, besides especially celebrating "Mother's Day", "Children's Day" and other festivals. The Great Reaper has taken Miss Lewis from our midst. We miss her very much. Scholars and teachers move away and are transferred to other schools, but others are added from the throbbing, changing life at the heart of our city; and we keep ever young and going in the great work for The Christ.

Faithfully yours,

George H. Streaker,
Superintendent.

Polly Wants—Girl Scouts

Come, join our Pollyanna Girl Scout Troop. We wish to meet you all. Now, since we have headquarters in St. Stephen's Parish House, we call it "Our Scout Heaven," and Dr. Grammer is our wonderful "Chicko."

Our meeting night is every Thursday evening at 6.30 to 7.30 P. M.

Why not come and learn all the many things Girl Scouts do and how they do it? We have quite a few activities in the form of clubs.

"Our Buddy Club"—Means every Girl Scout a friend to every other Scout.

"The Indian Endobonuh Club"—Means outdoors to learn more of God's great handiwork.

"The Cheerio Club"—Means to help and cheer all we meet.

Do you know the poem, "Gladness of Nature"?

Is this a time to be gloomy and sad,
When our Mother Nature laughs around,
When even the deep blue heavens look glad,
And gladness breathes from the blossoming ground.

The Outlookers Club — (Not shut-ins) sends toys, books and cards to hospitals.

The Birthday Club—Watches how old you are to join the Girl Scout Troop. Are you 10 years, or 12, 14, 16, 18 or 20 years? Come along, then.

The Mothers' Club—For Scout Mothers who help us to learn to cook, sew, keep house and do laundry work. It's good housekeeper's test.

Our Sunny Hour Club—Sends letters to those who are disabled. We sent letters, calendars and gifts way out to Canada.

The Hospital Club—Takes books and toys to Jefferson and other hospitals.

The Community Club—Just sent three boxes of clothes, shoes, books and toys to the Deaconess' Home, at Sixth and Vine streets; also two big boxes of merchandise to Goodwill Association, 22d and Christian Streets.

Now, you see how busy we are. Every Buddy Scout will plant pretty flowers on some dear soldier's grave this coming Memorial Day.

We have two Pollyanna Scouts who passed their test in first aid and then after camp entered the hospital, one in Camden Cooper Hospital, the other in Children's Hospital, 22nd and Bainbridge Streets. Both passed and graduated and are now lovely nurses. Another, the third, is still in Hahnemann Hospital training. So you see, you can find out what your vocation is, and Scouting will help you.

Such fun working for Merit Badges, to wear on your pretty uniform. Oh! I must tell you that we really have two uniforms—the cotton khaki and another which we always keep with us and wear—it's our "Smile" Uniform (a Pollyanna plays the game). No matter how hard, she plays fair, also that is one reason she always wins.

Won't you come and play the game with us? We shall watch for you.

Greeting from Pollyanna.

Troop 2, Boy Scouts of America

Since my last report to the parish the troop has gone steadily along. During the summer we were able to have eight boys attend the scout camp at Treasure Island, where they had the opportunity to pass tests as well as have a good time, and I wish here to thank those who helped make this possible.

In December we held our first annual dinner which was made possible by a few of our friends to whom we are very much indebted, and I wish at this time to express my sincere thanks for their kindness and the interest they have shown the troop in the past year.

In January we entered the Inter-Troop District Contest, and came out victorious, defeating four troops—every one we competed against. In the finals we got fourth place, for which we received a pennant, and we are very proud of it. This contest consisted of the following: Knot tying, Signaling—both codes, First Aid, Nature, Leaves and Animals, also Birds.

We are very proud of our two boys who entered as signalers—Fred Schmid and Joseph Pawilonis. They are very good in this respect, and deserve a lot of credit.

In January we started using the Patrol System. This has proven very successful, and is a wonderful method of developing leadership. The Patrol Leaders are held solely responsible for their individual patrols and the success of the patrol depends on the cooperation of each and every fellow. The two organized patrols are the Cobre, under the leadership of Fred Nieman, and the Pine Tree, under the leadership of David Wallace.

The enthusiasm of the patrols is kept up by the keen competition which has developed between them.

On January 1st I had the pleasure of advancing to Assistant Scoutmaster one of our Scouts who has worked his way up in Scouting since 1924, Mr. McKenna. To him we owe a great deal for the splendid cooperation he has given us since we organized.

I wish to make mention here of the excellent work rendered by Mr. Hopkins, who has given freely of his time to help bring up the moral standing of the troop. His official capacity is that of Drill Master and his efforts in this line are to be commended.

March the 2nd we had our first annual inspection and won the Red Star, which makes us one of the leading troops in the district.

Our troop committee is functioning very well. We have had about seven meetings during the year, and here I feel I would be doing a great injustice if I did not mention the wonderful help our good friend Mr. Streaker has given us. Through his earnest efforts we have had two very enjoyable evenings in the auditorium with pictures which were very interesting.

In summing up the troop's work for the year we have had 20 overnight hikes and 30 afternoon hikes, with an average attendance of 15 scouts.

During the year a total number of 300 tests were passed.

Six Scouts were advanced to Second Class and two to First Class.

Twenty-two Merit Badges were earned during the year.

Our total enrollment at the present time is 30 Scouts and 4 officers.

Respectfully submitted,
R. M. Robinson,
Scoutmaster.

Garden Party at Wyck

A word as to the annual garden party and fair at Wyck, Mr. Haines's place, at 6026 Germantown Avenue, to be held on Thursday, June 7th, from 2 until 8. St. Stephen's always takes an active part in this affair, and members are asked to show their interest by taking tickets, donating domestic and fancy articles, and by taking supper in the garden at a moderate price. The proceeds will go to St. Ambrose Mission, which is located opposite the Mormon Church in Kensington, and it is hoped to raise one thousand dollars for the annual pledge to the Diocesan Campaign.

Church Periodical Club

Much has been written about the power of the printed page. It is easy to use these words, but not so easy to realize in how many ways the power may be applied. In the midst of our pleasure in study or reading, let us give a thought to the multitudes who have no access to books and periodicals.

Let us share with them these sources of pleasure and improvement. For books are needed, not only by missionaries, but by many persons unable to obtain them in other ways; in schools; in community libraries; in hospitals, and other institutions.

And there is use for all our magazines. This is the way in which most people can help along the work of the Church Periodical Club.

Forty members of St. Stephen's continue to send regularly their current magazines and forty-two subscriptions are entered in the names of the recipients. Five of these still go to the soldier boys at Camp McClellan, near Anniston, Alabama.

Our Sunday School leaflets are passed on to others in need of them.

Calendars are mailed at New Year's, and cards are sent at Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter.

Many magazines are taken to Jefferson Hospital.

Books were sent to the Seamen's Institute; to the Marines under General Butler in China; and to the men of the Merchant Marine.

Money was given to purchase books for the new Community Library at Hulmeville, Pa., a mission in Bucks County.

Letters of appreciation are constantly being received. One missionary writes: "Your help in supplying us with pictures, books and Church papers has spread the Gospel in almost unspeakable places and lit lamps of faith that are burning brightly now. May each year increase your work and the Lord bless you in so greatly blessing others."

Can the Church Periodical Club do better than to continue and increase this work as its special contribution to the great cause of evangelism?

Mary M. Roberts,
Librarian.

The Parish Letter

My Dear Friends:

In this issue of the Parish News you will miss the familiar greeting, the words of wise counsel, and the message of inspiring helpfulness with which our loved Rector has been wont for many years to open our work for the winter season.

But rather than delay the issue until his return from England he has desired that we should begin the activities of the year as though he were here.

Even then, it is only because for the past month he has been confined to a hospital bed in London, that you do not receive the letter that would normally have had the place of this one.

In the second week of September while on a short visit to Ireland, preliminary to his attending the liberal conferences at Cambridge and Cheltenham, Dr. Grammer was suddenly taken ill with the recurrence of an internal disorder from which he has suffered in the past. He at once abandoned his visit to Ireland, hurried to London where he placed himself in the hands of a competent physician, and entered a hospital where he could have the necessary care and attention that his illness demanded.

After nearly two weeks a slight operation was deemed necessary and that was performed. He rallied quickly from the operation and, according to a cable from his physician to Mrs. Grammer, astonished those attending him by his rapid recuperation.

His days in the hospital were made bright by the visits of many friends who with flowers and books and companionship lightened tedious days of convalescence.

Necessarily the plans for attending the liberal conferences in England to which he had looked forward all summer with keen anticipation, were cancelled. But the hosts of friends he had made before his illness, among those of the English clergy who will be present at the conference sessions, will bring him much of that he has missed.

I wish I could give you something of the love and cordiality he has given me in his letters from abroad during the summer. Never was the time so short for writing that he contented himself with merely a word or two of the places he was visiting. But each letter brought with it pages of solicitous inquiry for his congregation, and especially for those who were sick and distressed. Nor did that suffice; to those who were plunged in sorrow here at home he wrote continuously. His letters to me were filled with observations upon the religious life and health of the places he visited. He was a keen observer of those little things that so ordinarily are inconspicuous to the tourist. The crisis that the Prayer-book rejection in England has precipitated, the influence of the cathedral life abroad upon the clergy and their people, the realignment of political and Church parties, and the rife social questions of the day, particularly England's reaction to America's problems, all brought comment that was not only enlightening and instructive, but at once brilliantly illuminating for his keen analysis.

His present plans call for sailing on October 17th, when, he is assured, he will find himself comfortable for traveling. He should arrive home near the end of the month to friends who will joy in his return.

My only request of you is for loyalty and co-operation to him, such loyalty and co-operation that I know in advance you are glad to give. Let us serve him who is our Rector and Him whom our Rector serves, as one already among us, and go forward to our tasks for the year with zeal and thankfulness that he is given back to us.

On the first Tuesday of October the Diocese of Pennsylvania met to elect a Bishop-Coadjutor to assist Bishop Garland in the discharge of his duties as Diocesan. The choice of the convention after three ballots had been cast, was for the Rt. Rev. Edward Makin Cross, Missionary Bishop of Spokane, Washington, a man who though still young, has built up an important work in the West for the extension of the Church of Christ's Kingdom. Bishop Cross, should he accept the election, can not come to us until next February, when he will have completed five years as missionary bishop. But if he comes he will return to the city of his boyhood. He is a graduate of the Philadelphia Divinity School and the recipient of an honorary Doctor's degree from that institution.

There is one other matter of particular interest that came before the special convention of the Diocese, a matter that directly affects the future of the cathedral project in this city. Under the inspiration of the cathedral building programs in Washington and New York, for some years past many leaders in the Diocese of Pennsylvania have felt that this city should be equally represented with a cathedral of the Protestant Episcopal Church. The choice of Roxborough, by many considered to be an unfortunate one, as the site of the proposed institution was finally decided upon by Bishop Garland, a little more than a year ago.

The question whether the Diocese wanted to build a Cathedral in Roxborough or elsewhere, however, had never been presented to a convention of the Church in this city.

Many have felt, as Dr. Grammer and I have felt, that the construction of cathedrals in the twentieth century, is somewhat of an anachronism. Speaking of the English Cathedrals, Dr. Grammer in one of his letters to me this summer said: "The Cathedrals here are great historical monuments, but as influences they are fountain-heads of Toryism and Anglo-Catholicism. The dead hand of the past prevents the Church of England from adjusting itself to modern conditions. At the afternoon services at Westminster Abbey there are great crowds of tourists, yet the lessons are miserably read, the hymns are not well selected or sung congregationally, and there is not a word of exhortation or teaching. And that with a great staff!"

The Diocese at the special convention definitely decided, if any legitimate inference can be drawn from its action, that it does not want a cathedral in Philadelphia. For it voted down a proposal that had the approval of Bishop Garland, to authorize the Standing Committee, the Executive Council, the Church Foundation, and the Bishop, when they saw fit and when a fair price was offered, to sell the present Church House and ultimately put the proceeds into the Cathedral project.

To be sure the route was more devious. For the Church House, it was proposed, should be moved to the Bishop Mackey-Smith residence, on South Twenty-second Street, the present episcopal mansion. The money accruing from the sale of the Church House on Rittenhouse Square when sold, was to be used for the construction of an episcopal residence on the Cathedral site in Roxborough, and another residence on the same site for a Coadjutor. In the course of time, it was intimated, although not actually proposed, the Bishop Mackey-Smith house might be sold and from the proceeds of that sale, another Church House be erected on the Cathedral grounds.

But by a decisive vote the Diocese refused to consent to any such action. It refused to yield the privilege of selling the Church House on Rittenhouse Square to the special bodies suggested by the Bishop and the Standing Committee, and in so doing probably tabled permanently, or at least postponed indefinitely the expenditure of any Diocesan money in that way.

To many of us, the proposal of a Cathedral might have been more popular, had some more central location than Roxborough been chosen. But to decide that fifty years from now, the center of the Diocese would be in the neighborhood of Roxborough, seemed too much of a guess, and filled with elements of uncertainty.

As one witty clergyman of the Diocese remarked, "You can take the hub of a wheel and place it on the rim and call it the center, if you wish. But you must not complain if then the wheel will wobble." It is unquestionably true that the center of the Diocese will always be where the arteries of entrance to the city converge. And no better location can be imagined than Rittenhouse Square for the permanent headquarters of our Church's activities in Philadelphia.

But all these things, while important, are nevertheless details of our Church's life and task. It is regrettable that they must take up so much of our time and attention. Our serious business is to discover more and more of the truth and wonder of God. The great business in which we are engaged is to find out more about God and to pass the good news on to men and women who are impoverished in soul for the want of it.

The souls of people are being starved today. Food that was once good for their soul's health, has partly become unfit for eating. Nor can mere rhetoric and fancy sustain a soul. A horse cannot adequately be fed only on hay.

Newspapers and moving-pictures conspire to keep people on the "newsy" side of life. There is much newsy, cheap, newthought nonsense that passes today for Christianity. It is charming chiefly to those who have superficial minds to shelter it. It is our business to cultivate our minds as well as our souls, to sift the gold from the dross, to be able to distinguish that which is temporary and transient from that which is eternal, and to live as disciples of Jesus Christ.

Disciples are learners, and learners will ever need teachers. Teachers need books. Our Teacher is Jesus, our Book is the record of His life, and we can be worthy disciples if we are true to the best ideals of His Church.

It is eminently proper and right in this place that I should speak a word of appreciation for the forty years of service which Mr. George H. Streaker has given the Sunday School of St. Stephen's Church. His length of service was a notable record for it betokened him a man who was unsparing in his effort to give all that he could to the inspiration and better living of young people. To the end of his life, he will keep the secret of living that has long been his, and that is the secret of perpetual youth. An interest in the young, a sharing of their problems, and above all, a constant and sincere love for them in their achievements and in their failures, keeps the boy alive in every man and the girl in every woman.

Faithfully yours,

Robert Kevin.

The Benevolent Society

The Benevolent Society meets on the first Wednesday in November. It is their hope to carry on the work as successfully as in other years, but to do this money is needed to pay the sewers. This Society does a great amount of good, it not only supplies the hospitals and homes with articles for their use, but it gives sewing to many poor (some very old) women, who otherwise would be in dire need. The Society is planning to have a Rummage Sale this Fall to help meet its financial needs, but even a Rummage Sale must have your co-operation. Money is required at once for the sewers, and the Rummage will be held just as soon as anything is here to make the sale. Won't you bear this Society and its benevolent work in mind, and send checks or money to the Community House, for the Society, and send all your discarded articles for the coming sale?

Hearts, like doors, can ope with ease,
To very, very little keys;
And don't forget that they are these:
"I thank you, sir," and "If you please."

Report of the Lewis Memorial Fund

In the early part of April, 1928, the Young People's Fellowship of St. Stephen's Church, with the approval of the Rector, decided to collect funds to provide for the erection of a suitable marker for the grave of Miss Katherine Hussey Lewis, and a bronze tablet as a further memorial in the interior of the Church.

There were 164 subscriptions made, amounting in total to	$537 60
Interest from Corn Exchange National Bank & Trust Company	75
Total	$538 35

This amount has been turned over to I. Smith Raspin, Esq., Accounting Warden, St. Stephen's Church, from which he has paid the following items:

Bill of George Burnett, No. 3849 Ridge Avenue, Philadelphia. I Westerly Granite Grave Marker, cut with deep letters:

KATHERINE HUSSEY LEWIS
August 15, 1848—March 12, 1928
Teacher and Parish Visitor
St. Stephen's Church for 61 years
Who went about doing good.
A Memorial of Love and Appreciation $225 00

Bill of Shannon Metalcraft Corporation, No. 11 Letitia Street, Philadelphia, for Standard Bronze Tablet, marked as follows:

KATHERINE HUSSEY LEWIS
August 15, 1848—March 12, 1928
Teacher and Parish Visitor
St. Stephen's Church for 61 years
Mother to the Orphan
Sister to the Weak
Minister to all who were Heavy Laden

At a cost of	$150 00
Less cash discount of 2 per cent	3 00
		$147 00
Bill of Laurel Hill Cemetery Company for levelling grave and planting ivy	$8 00
		$380 00
Balance Remaining		$155 35

At the final meeting of the Young People's Fellowship, held in the Community House on June 8, 1928, the design of the Bronze Tablet, of which a pencil sketch was presented, was approved; and decision was made, endorsed by the Rector, to apply any surplus contributions, after payment of all bills, to a "Lewis Memorial Fund," to be dispersed by the Rector in such ways as he might approve and which in his opinion would have met with the approval of Miss Katherine Hussey Lewis.

The Young People's Fellowship hope that the contributors to this Fund will approve of the handling and disposal of the monies subscribed to this cause, and wish to earnestly express their appreciation and thanks for the generous contributions and co-operation.

The tablet, which is in the corridor of the Parish Home, will be unveiled on All Saints' Day.

The Sunday School

In pursuance of Dr. Grammer's plan of several years' standing, when the time was appropriate to reorganize the Sunday School and install a trained and paid teaching staff accustomed to the most modern methods of Sunday School work, this fall the time seemed ripe to begin.

The future of St. Stephen's Church as a parish religious center is inevitably tied up with the attention that is given to the religious training of the children and young people of the Church. Such a policy is true not only of St. Stephen's Church, but of the Episcopal Church as a whole. Unless the Episcopal Church is willing to sink back into semi-oblivion as a vital force in the moral and spiritual direction of twentieth century civilization a greater account has to be taken of the training of the young.

Fifty years ago the Christian Church in America attained a pre-eminence in the life of the times purely and simply because the Sunday School movement which then had its real inception in this country, devoted itself passionately to the teaching of the life and work of Jesus of Nazareth. But that crest of influence has waned. The Sunday School has depended upon its past glories to carry it along, without realizing that the young people of the country today are barely being influenced by the Sunday School at all.

The only solution for such a situation is an earnest and devoted return to the training of children for Christian principles of living, by using all that the past and present has to offer in the way of new learning, whatever psychology, pedagogy, and the newer understanding of the Bible has to give.

That can be gained only by the use of trained teachers, preferably college students and graduates and by the introduction of the most improved and modern methods that are known to education.

These general principles can be applied gradually to our Sunday School work at St. Stephen's Church. A beginning is being made this year by a change in the superintendence and teaching staff. Probably progress will not be very apparent for a long time to come but if the foundation is built upon a rock, as the Rector is confident it will be, the house cannot fall.

Among the newer teachers, some of whom are unknown to the congregation, and for whom we speak a hearty welcome are Miss Esther Hazlett, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Whitney, Miss Mary Mangigian, Miss Marian von Kessler, and some of the students of the Church Training School and Deaconess House.

Burd School Camp

One of the most profitable summers in the history of the Burd School was spent this last season. During July the girls of the School visited their homes, but August was devoted to outdoor life in two camps, one in New Jersey and one in Pennsylvania.

In each camp scores in athletic attainment were achieved by the Burd School girls among all the others. So much so that several were invited to return next summer, during the month of July, to serve as counsellors to other girls who attend from all sections of the East.

At Camp Kit-ke-hah-ke, Echo Lake, Pennsylvania, the following prizes were awarded to the older girls of the School who attended it:

Bernice Bovell, a star medal for having been the best all-round camper; Muriel Bowman, a medal for star diving; Elsie Martin, a medal for track; Adelaide Mastick, a medal for swimming; Elva Thomas, diving prize; Mary Pointer, honorable mention for handcraft; Florence Kilian, honorable mention for handcraft; Margaret Cooper, gypsy degree; Eleanor Evans, second place in handcraft; Kitty Bowman, Atlanta degree.

The younger girls of the school were at Camp Niwauna, Branchville, New Jersey. There Lillian Gwynne received the senior cup and diving medal; Cicely Pointer received the Junior diving and swimming medal; and camp letters were awarded to Ivy Perry, Marie Carter, Eleanor Bacon, Miriam Mitchell, Edna Hallahan, Gwendolyn Moore, and Dorothy Witherow.

Boy Scouts of America
Troop 2

In submitting a report for the summer months it gives me great pleasure as we have done some very creditable work during this time.

On July 31st, our troop left for Treasure Island, the official Scout Camp, under the leadership of Asst. S. M. Hopkins, and upon their stay at camp they accomplished the following honors: David Wallace, Patrol leader of the Pine Tree Patrol, was admitted to "Wimachtendienk" the highest fraternal order in Scouting. Troop 2 also won the Unami Award, one of the highest awards that can be won in camp. Three boys were advanced to First Class, namely, Fred Schmidt, Leon Snyderman and Jack Girogasian. Three boys were advanced to Second Class. We received honorable mention in the Treasure Island Regatta. Three boys received Totems for special achievements in Camp Craft. Sixty per cent of our Scouts attended an overnight camp thereby winning the Camp Craft Coup. Due to the entertainment we provided at the Camp Fires we were awarded the Social Coup. The Patrol System which we told you we were starting in our last report has proven very successful and we were awarded the Patrol Coup at Treasure Island. In all we made a splendid showing at camp and the leader, Mr. Hopkins, is to be congratulated.

The Scoutmaster has completed the Scout Leaders Training Course in Advanced First Aid given by The American Red Cross and has received his diploma.

On Friday, October 26th, we will have the pleasure of having Mr. Finley McKichan tell us of his adventures in the Adirondack Mountains. We invite all of the parishioners that might be interested to attend this meeting.

We have been very busy the last few weeks planning our winter's program and we are all looking forward to an active season.

Richard Robinson.

Mothers' Meeting Outing

One of the most enjoyable excursions of the summer was the trip of the Mothers' Meeting, Thursday, July 19th, to Riverview Beach on the Delaware. Although Dr. Grammer was on his vacation in Europe and unable to attend, and the picnic missed his usual companionship, the day was replete with joys.

Approximately 130 were in the group who boarded the Wilson Line steamer, at the foot of Chestnut Street, at 8 o'clock in the morning to prepare for the trip down the river. Riverview Beach is below Wilmington, and so nearly three hours were consumed before the Beach was reached.

A luncheon spot beneath the trees was first selection, and about noon the mothers began to eat. The accompaniment of many children with their mothers to the Beach soon helped to consume two large fifty quart cans of milk and quantities of ice cream. But the day was not spent in eating.

After luncheon, bathing attracted the younger members and young and old delighted in tramping through the woods and enjoying the amusements with which the Beach was liberally provided. All the activities of a real vacation of a week to the shore were packed into the events of a few hours.

At 6 o'clock in the evening the group was gathered together and preparations made for the return journey. Tired mothers, happy and radiant, many with sleeping children in their arms, filled the boat and settled down to the pleasure of the ride home up the river. A few hours later saw the end of the boat ride, and of the day, and the beginning of another happy memory that will last as long as life itself.

The Young People's Club will resume their weekly meetings in the Community House, on October 3rd.

The Girls' Friendly Society begin their Fall work Monday nights, commencing October 1st.

The King's Daughters will hold their first meeting October 2nd.

All other societies will commence their activities between now and November, and further notice will appear in the Weekly Bulletin.

DEFINES CHRISTIANITY

Clergyman Says It Includes Kindness, Honesty and Courtesy

The Lutherans official organ of the United Lutheran Church, published in this city, offers the following definition for Christianity as coming from an eminent clergyman:

In the home it is kindness.
In business it is honesty.
In society it is courtesy.
In work it is fairness.
Toward the unfortunate it is pity.
Toward the weak it is help.
Toward the wicked it is resistance.
Toward God it is reverence and love.

One bitter feeling towards another shuts out the whole sunlight of God's love.

Justice between men or between nations can only be achieved through understanding and goodwill.—Jane Addams.

Bad humor is a bad counsellor, and envy does not do any good.—Paris Temps.

Let those who would die on the field of battle, give better proof of their patriotism, and a higher glory to their country, by promoting fraternity and justice.—Franklin.

War is old—pathetically old. Tragically futile, hopelessly antiquated. Peace, heroic and sacrificial, is the new vision, which only young men can believe in.—Ex-President Faure, of France.

Let us be content, in work, to do the thing we can, and not presume to fret because it's little.—Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

It takes little time to administer a rebuke, but it takes a long time to forget it.—Chinese Proverb.

The more I study nature, the more I stand amazed at the work of the Creator. I pray while I am engaged in my work in the laboratory.—Pasteur.

Strive not to banish pain and doubt,
In pleasure's noisy din;
The Peace thou seekest from without
Is only found within.
—Cary.

My crown is in my heart, not on my head; not decked wih diamonds and Indian stones, nor is it seen; my crown is called "content."—Shakespeare.

There are souls in this world which have the gift of finding joy everywhere, and of leaving it behind them wherever they go.—Faber.

Parish Letter

My Dear Friends:

For another month I greet you in the place of our Rector, a position since he has returned to America, I am quite unworthy to occupy. Nevertheless the task of writing a letter to you at the present time would have been too great a drain upon his strength, and in its place he has asked me simply to tell you how he longs to be with you, and how deeply he desires to return the love and sympathy which the congregation has visited upon him.

Shortly he will prepare for an operation at the Episcopal Hospital in which he and his family and physicians have every confidence and hope. Although the operation might have been delayed, the desire for as early a return to his work as possible, prompted Dr. Grammer's decision to have it performed within a brief time after his return home.

I need not say that all of us will visit him daily in our prayers and in our spirit to lend our strength to his, for his early recovery in an hour of trial.

By this time probably all of you have learned of the decision of the Rt. Rev. Edward Makin Cross to decline his election to the Coadjutorship of the Diocese of Pennsylvania. But you may not know that another election has been called for by the Bishop and the Standing Committee of the Diocese to take place on Tuesday, December 18th.

It is a matter of no small regret and probably no little harm to the Diocese that two men elected to the office have seen fit to decline it, but I am not persuaded that Diocesan conventions for the electing of a Bishop, filled often as they are with political maneuverings of the kind that most right-thinking people would deplore, are not without the guidance of the Holy Spirit.

As Christians we look back to the Council of Nicea in 325 A. D. as one of the milestones in our progress. For it was there that the Divine Sonship of Jesus was reaffirmed by the Christian Church in tones so unmistakable that they will never be lost. It can hardly have been other than God's will that this eternal truth should have been voiced for future ages, and to the confusion of pagan ideas which were then threatening its life.

And yet observers at the Council of Nicea described its delegates as "simpletons" for the most part; many of them were crudely ignorant of the fundamental doctrines of Christianity and quite lacking in the ordinary Christian graces. And another writer dubbed the delegates there "a pack of wild animals" rather than Christian bishops.

A Roman Catholic theologian once declared that the Christian Church must be inspired, else it never could have performed the glorious testimonies to Christ from one end of the earth to the other as it has, and in the channels at its disposal, without the Spirit of God moving through its midst. There is more than just a witticism in such a remark. We can truly believe that God does often work through inadequate hands, weak wills, uninspired minds, and doubtful hearts. The Christian Church early in its history recognized that the validity of its sacraments was not affected by the human channels through which they were transmitted, and that is just another way of saying that God and His people meet face to face and heart to heart.

The idea of another convention to elect a Bishop may be painful to some of the delegates who meet there and to the congregations who send them. But there should be no discouragement and no criticism. The need for a Coadjutor is no less today than it was when Bishop Garland asked for one last May. If anything the need is greater, for the burden of the Winter's work must now be thrown on our Bishop's unrelieved shoulders, and we can readily believe that God will not abandon His people, but through them will work for the selection of a man as Bishop who will be capable of assuming the responsible duties of leading and guiding a part of His Church.

But a word for our own work at St. Stephen's Church.

Dr. Grammer has been delighted with the loyal way in which the congregation has taken up its tasks for the Winter, even in his absence. Few things could encourage him more in his illness than a confidence that that policy of loyal and faithful cooperation will continue. In his absence you will have my weaker and lesser leadership. But that handicap may readily be overcome with a generous and whole-hearted response on the part of the parish itself.

Immediately before us are two national anniversaries, Armistice Day, November 11th, and Thanksgiving Day, November 29th. Each of these in itself is sufficient for itself. Neither can fail to evoke in us a response equal to its lesson. The services when they will be observed should be largely attended. On their occasion prayers should ascend to the throne of God for the cessation of all wars for which Armistice Day is now a symbol, and a joyous thanksgiving for the benefits of peace.

An instance of the splendid manner in which the parish is already working together is afforded by the recent gift to Dr. Grammer of a new academic hood. To that gift each of the nine societies of the Church, the Girls' Friendly Society, the Young People's Club, the Mother's Meeting, the Women's Auxiliary, the King's Daughters, the Altar Guild, the Benevolent Society, the Players' Guild, and the Young People's Fellowship, contributed.

Again, each of these Societies has begun its yearly work and taken it up in an enthusiastic spirit. It is a token of splendid accomplishment.

Ten years ago, in the teaching of Chemistry, students learned of an agent in chemical reactions that was known as a "catalys." I mention ten years ago, because much can change in that time. But a catalys, while taking no part in a chemical reaction itself, nevertheless hastened and made possible the realignment of elements that was desired. For example an electric wire might be laid in a pan of water but no separation of elements into hydrogen and oxygen would have begun until a current was applied.

The thought of a catalys is a familiar one. It has many applications in life. It is said of Mozart that a game of billiards gave him the inspiration for his aria in the beautiful "Magic Flute" quintet. In that sense it was a catalys. Galileo's invention of the pendulum came when he chanced to notice the motion of a huge bronze lamp swinging from the roof. The German poet, Schiller, for instance, was said to have writwith the greatest ease when his nostrils were assailed with the odor of a decaying apple, and so when writing he always kept a handful of apples in his desk drawer. Shelley found that to munch bread helped him to compose. And Zola was so stimulated by artificial light in writing that even at midday he would pull down the shades to his study and light his lamp.

Probably a catalys in our modern day serves Chemistry much the same way as alchemists in the Middle Ages hoped that the "Philosopher's Stone" would serve them. It was to have been the magical means whereby baser metals were to be transformed into gold. Absurd though that idea was, there are a number of things which the Philosopher's Stone can do in life.

"Bobby" Burns could immortalize an unnoticed field mouse with his pen. Shakespeare could take the sordid and villainous intrigues of kings and make them into a noble literature. Michael Angelo could take a piece of marble, shapeless and uninspiring, and make of it an imperishable monument.

Friendship can transform the selfish soul into a thing of beauty. The summons of his country can change a humdrum clerk or salesman into a hero. Imagination of a Russell Conwell can change wasted by-products of industry into acres of diamonds. A Marconi can change air which we breathe into an orchestra of heavenly sounds.

The alchemy of time, and the catalys of sunlight, has changed rotten and decayed vegetable matter into fuel, and common carbon into a diamond of the "purest ray serene." Such is the alchemy of life.

Some would call it the chemistry of God.

There are, then, instruments of change in the world. Small, almost unobserved agents, unimportant in themselves, nevertheless can pave the way and hasten the day of mighty changes in the heavens and on the earth.

To the function of a catalys in society, I believe the Church of Christ has been called. For ages this function was obscured. Until comparatively modern times the Church and its services were a temporary release from the world. Conditions of living, with poor plumbing, miserable ventilation, and almost no sanitation, produced a condition of existence that was almost intolerable from our point of view, yet for thousands of years millions of downtrodden, poor working people endured it, finding occasional respite in the comforts of religion.

Today most of that is changed. People no longer go to Church to get a decent spot in which to breathe, or for rest that they could not get during the week. They no longer consult the village priest about rain, but the weatherman; nor the altar of God in earthquake times, but the seismograph.

The Church has outlived its usefulness as a respite from unlivable conditions. In so doing, I think she is coming back to the original purpose for which Christ intended her.

A bit of leaven in a lump of dough is a catalys that makes bread and that is what Jesus desired the Church should be in society. If the Christian Church has a future that is clearly marked out for her, she is to be a dynamic, creative force in the affairs of men giving them, through religion, a new idealism that will point a way in the uncharted seas of the future.

Cordially yours,

Robert Oliver Kevin.

Women's Auxiliary

St. Stephen's Branch of the Women's Auxiliary celebrated a corporate communion October 18th, followed by their first business meeting of the fiscal year.

Many reports were read of donations made and plans for the year's work.

A special plea was made through the delegates for funds to help the church's work of educating and training seven thousand colored workers in the South.

Another asks for funds to carry on the work of befriending the tubercular strangers in Arizona who go there seeking health. Many arrive without funds and their loneliness is tragic. Starting with a few tents twenty years ago there are now several homes and a summer camp. They have at present an endowment of $95,000, but a fund of $200,000 is much needed.

Miss Thackara would like pieces of material with which to make quilts: cotton, silk or wool, for the Indian women at Mission, South Dakota.

Beulah E. Hollar,
Secretary.

The General Convention

For two weeks, from October 10th to October 25th, the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church met at Washington, D. C., to meet the many problems that were to come before it for solution.

Although it was generally felt that a crisis in the Church might be faced because of several doctrinal difficulties about which deputies to the Convention were known to have differences, some of them as highly explosive as dynamite should someone touch them off, much to the surprise of everyone after its adjournment the Convention was pronounced to have been one of the most amicable that had ever met, and pervaded throughout by a spirit of good-fellowship and good-will.

That is not to say that the differences did not appear, but as one reporter expressed it, everyone took his defeat "with a grin."

One of the outstanding achievements of the Convention was the retention of the Thirty-nine Articles of Religion in the Prayer Book. No small part of the credit belongs to Dr. Grammer who by pamphlet, letter and the Church press circularized the delegates with the Evangelical Education Society and the National Church League, and carried a resolution to retain them, without a dissenting vote.

Dr. Grammer's writings were published by the Evangelical Education Society and the National Church League and sent widely throughout the Church. They aroused so much interest, together with the activity of Judge Marsilliot, of Memphis, Tennessee, that petitions bearing the signatures of 35,000 Churchmen and Churchwomen, asking for the retention of the Articles, were presented to both houses of the Convention.

Another outstanding achievement was the closing of the revision of the Book of Common Prayer. Although the revision was closed with some of the offices in an incompleted condition, notably the Baptismal Office, still much is to be said for finishing the revision at this time and placing it in the hands of the Church at large. The use of the small manuals issued from time to time as the Revision progressed has been a source of constant annoyance to both clergy and people. Summarized, the following changes were finally authorized:

1. A rearrangement of the Contents of the Prayer Book.

2. A new office for Holy Baptism. In this the objectionable phrases, "forasmuch as all men are born and conceived in sin," and "the old Adam in this child," are dropped and the offices for the baptism of infants and adults are combined into one service. Unfortunately, while some of those phrases are excised, references to them are not, such as "that they may crucify the old man." In this the revisors seem to have lacked imagination and a sense of humor.

3. A new office of Religious Instruction, which is a renaming and revision of the Catechism.

4. Final revision of the Marriage Office.

5. Revision of the Service for the Consecration of a Church.

6. Revision of Service for the Institution of a Minister.

7. Many new family prayers.

8. Additions of collects, epistles and gospels.

9. Additional changes in the Holy Communion.

10. Changes in the Confirmation Service.

11. Changes of rubric in the Marriage Service.

12. Revision of the Office for the Visitation of the Sick.

13. Also in the Communion of the Sick.

Points of interest in the revision of the prayer book likewise included insertion of prayers for the dead, such as the following:

"O Eternal Lord God, who holdest all souls in life; Vouchsafe, we beseech thee, to thy whole Church in Paradise and on earth, thy light and thy peace; and grant that we, following the good examples of those who have served thee here and are now at rest, may at the last enter with them into thine unending joy; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

This was passed without a murmur of dissension although some opposition was expected from the Southern Evangelical Churchmen. On the other hand the anointing of oil, or the office of Unction was permitted. The word "militant" was omitted from the invitation to prayer in the Communion service, changing it to, "Let us pray for the whole of Christ's Church."

An unusually fine sermon was preached at the religious service of the Convention by Bishop Charles P. Anderson, of Chicago. Extracts from it follow:

"While recognizing the might of the State in the political realm, the Church can not admit the omnipotence of the State in the realm of conscience, nor its infallibility in the realm of doctrine, nor its impeccability in the realm of morals. Nations operate under the sovereignty of God and should they set the law of God at defiance, the Church of God must fearlessly contend that 'righteousness alone exalteth a nation and that sin is a reproach to any people.' 'Go ye and tell that fox,' said our Lord of King Herod. And the day has not yet come when the brilliant iniquities of the mighty should escape rebuke in the name of the Lord.

"The Church, however, cannot consistently claim religious freedom for itself unless at the same time it claims freedom for the State. Church and State are distinct in purpose and power, but since they overlap each other and dovetail into each other, it is to the interests of both that mutual friendship and cooperation should abound. The doctrine of a free Church in a free State contains within itself an incurable incompatibility. The reason why there is so much controversy over it is that the two freedoms can never be reconciled in theory. It can never be more than a hope that they will work out more harmoniously in practice than on paper. Neighbors get on best by keeping up their line fences. Church and State get along together best by keeping up their line fences. Both must find self-expression. The State must be free to deal in its own way with its own heterogeneous constituency and cannot be expected to be at the beck and call of some one religiously homogeneous group, when there are many such groups. The State must be free to keep order, levy taxes, to establish or demolish tariffs, to regulate commerce and traffic, to legislate on matters pertaining to marriage and school, to accept or reject World Courts, and Leagues of Nations, to declare war or to advocate the outlawry of war as it has recently so happily done. In the discharge of these functions the State can brook no ecclesiastical interference from any quarter, Catholic, Protestant or Jewish.

"Unhappily, the priceless possession of religious liberty which has been won at great cost, is being threatened in our day. It is threatened by a conception of nationalism which takes the form of an intellectual imperialism, claiming not only omnipotence but omniscience, penetrating the recesses of the mind and branding constructive criticism as treasonable. It is threatened by a dominating secularism which takes offense at being told that 'the things which are seen are temporal and the things which are unseen are eternal.' It is being threatened by commercial and political interests which would use the Church for their own ends but otherwise abuse it. Is there to be a renaissance of religious intolerance in this land to which men came for freedom? Is Erastianism to be reborn in America where the separation of Church and State is fundamental? Are men to be compelled by law to teach their children a special brand of religion and to set them against the general trend of science, especially in these days when the reconciliation of science and religion is getting under way? Are ministers of the Gospel to be put under pressure to idolize the present social order, which brought about the greatest catastrophe in history, as if the Gospel of Christ had no further light to shed on human relationships? Are blacklists to be made of many of our pioneers because they are ahead of their times? God forbid! . . .

"I plead for a free and courageous pulpit, not a pulpit that invades territories.

"Here is the battleground of the Church. . . . . Throughout the world there are many people who see that the real issue of the day is between Christ and the world. They are moved to become followers of Christ, but perplexed as to how to reconcile discipleship with the spiritual mediocrity and narrow outlook of many a parish. They desire to find in the Church the vehicle through which ardent discipleship can find an outlet. Throughout the world there are many priests, far removed from the limelight, living in places where Christ is not popular, who are gladly giving their lives in making new allegiances to Christ and securing fresh verdicts for Him. These are the people who should have the backing of this convention. They can be cheered or chilled by the things on which this convention lays emphasis. It will break the hearts of many earnest disciples if this convention squanders time over obsolete issues or current questions of only secondary importance. 'Forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those things which are before, let us press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.' . . ."

SYMBOLS

Love is like a sunrise glowing,
  In the silver May;
Love is like a red rose blowing,
  Down a Garden way.
Like a jewelled, golden ring,
Like the coming of the Spring,
Like all Beauty. Yes, and sometimes
  Like a winter day;
But what Love is who can say.

Life is like a Master, driving,
  Sometimes cruel, sometimes gay;
Life is like a river rushing,
  Down a stony way.
Like a stormy, winter night,
Like a rainbow, heaven-bright,
Like all things that are, and sometimes
  Like a dream by day.
But what Life is none may say.

God is like a father yearning
  Over children gone astray;
God is like a mother giving
  More and more of love alway;
Like a brother, like a friend,
Like all things that do not end;
Like the holy urge that thrills us
  Always when we pray.
What God is, ah, who may say.

By M. C. H. in The Churchman.

The Church is deeply appreciative of the kindness of Mrs. Dudley Lane in planting two ivy vines on the Ludlow Street side of the Church Building. Visited with first her interest and then her tender care, the ivy bids fair to grow and make of our edifice "ivy-mantled towers" indeed.

Seek out the good in every man, and speak of all the best ye can; then will all men speak well of thee and say how kind of heart ye be.—Adolph Goss.

God gives us what He knows our wants require, and better things than those which we desire.—Dryden.

PHILADELPHIA YESTERDAYS

From the Public Ledger, October 27th. Turning Back the Pages

Ninety Years Ago Today

The activities of officeholders at the polls on Election Days was deplored by a correspondent who expressed the wish that "we had a Jefferson to guide us now." In a gloomy rejoinder the editor said the spirit of Jefferson lived in only a few "old-fashioned spirits like John Quincy Adams," who were generally considered "impractical," and declared the destinies of the Commonwealth appeared to be in the hands of "blacklegs."

A mad dog was killed in College Avenue, near St. Stephen's Church in Tenth Street, after it had bitten four persons. "Our dog law," said the editor, "which caused a momentary stir a few weeks back, has become, like most of our precautions against burglaries and robberies—fit only to be forgotten.

Fifty Years Ago Today

Dr. Richard A. Cleeman was appointed a member of the Board of Health to succeed James Steel, resigned.

A great bank robbery in New York was the most exciting news of the day. Seven masked burglars entered the vaults of the Manhattan Savings Bank, overpowered the watchman and forced him to reveal the combinations and escaped with nearly $3,000,000.

Bishop Stevens, returning from the Lambeth Conference in England, resumed his official duties at a communion of clergy in the Episcopal Church of St. Luke. Later a reception was tendered him in the Academy of Fine Arts.

WYCK

Contributions of money for the garden party and fair last June were received from Dr. Grammer, Mr. and Mrs. Reifsnyder, Miss Roberts, Miss Tappan and Miss Emily Bell, and tickets were purchased by Miss Gebhart, Mrs. John C. Browne, Mrs. James, Mrs. Pancoast and Mrs. Reath, Miss Mockett, Miss Sharp and Miss Janet MacAlister, all of which were gratefully acknowledged individually at the time as well as thanks given for articles contributed, but this printed announcement emphasizes the fact of generous support, and special mention should be made of the service rendered by the Misses Davis and the young people of St. Stephen's who so ably helped Mrs. Browne in the cafeteria.

The children from the Hope Day Nursery were brought ont to Wyck by Miss Mockett as guests of the Woman's Aid, and gave an interesting series of drills and dances in costume on the lawn.

The feature of a trained pony and dogs was contributed by the President of the Woman's Aid, and at the meeting in October when final accounts were made out, the proceeds of the garden party and fashion show earlier in the season enabled the Women's Aid to contribute 1,000 dollars to the Diocesan Campaign Fund for St. Ambrose Mission, 190 dollars to St. George's, Richmond, 150 dollars to St. George's, Venango, 100 dollars to Deaconness Young for St. John's Settlement House and 100 dollars to Rev. Mr. Fulforth on his retirement from the North Convocation after many years of service in the diocese, so it is hoped that all who read this will be pleased to know that they have helped where help was needed and have made many burdens lighter.

Parish Letter

My dear People:

It is inevitable that our thoughts should shortly turn to the birthday of the Son of Man.

Some are now planning for it in the traditional way: gift-lists are being prepared, greeting cards are being printed, and the stores of the city will soon burst forth with a new beauty. Despite the commercial motives involved, places of business nevertheless will be pervaded with a sense of new life coming into being. And we would not be without it, something would be lacking, the human spirit needs that symbol.

But we must not be so swamped with symbols as to lose sight of the spiritual reality they represent. For after all, they are but tokens of things higher and deeper, and it is to a consideration of those infinite things that I invite you for the moment.

It is probably true, as many have said, that Christianity is at a cross-roads. But is it not also true that Jesus Christ is the horizon? Oftentimes in the heat and the struggle of life we forget it, but Christmas is the dawn of a new year, and at the dawn we lift up our eyes.

Dawn creates the horizon when the darkness of night is gone, as Christmas-tide reminds us of that dawn of the Light of the World, which has defined the human outlook through all the years.

The holiest aspirations of the race have been born at the dawn of some new time for it is then that the far-flung horizon is set clearly before us. It was so, two thousand years ago, when heaven bowed down to earth and touched it in a little town of Bethlehem and a new hope was born in the hearts of men. There burst the dawn of an Everlasting Light upon the eyes of a world grown accustomed to the dark, and those who saw it believed that they were born anew.

It will always be so. The ground whereon we stand will always be holy ground for it is of the same earth that stretches toward that horizon which is Jesus Christ. Whether Christianity be at a cross-roads or no, this one thing we know, that heaven and earth are one and will ever meet in Jesus Christ. In Him we find the meets and bounds of our humanity and the scope of our divinity. We have only to look at the horizon and see the miracle of the union. Christmas heralds the coming of the Light. It is a flame we should welcome, because it sets before us the horizon to beckon us on and on.

When the Christmas season is upon us we may not have time to stop and inquire whether this is so or why it should be so. But while we have the time, let us ponder it and test whether it be true.

In his "Foundations" was not Chamberlain right, when he wrote: "No battle, no change of dynasty, no natural phenomen, no discovery possesses a significance which can be compared with the short life upon earth of the Galilean. His birth is in a sense the beginning of history. The nations that are not Christian, such as the Chinese, the Turks, and others, have no history; their story is but the chronicle on the one hand of ruling houses, butcheries and the like, and on the other represents the dull, humble, almost bestially happy life of millions that sink in the night of time without leaving a trace."

There is a ring of truth in those words that bites into our consciousness. If we inquire why it is true we know that it is true primarily because of the character of our Lord. Jesus was not the pale figure of Church windows, the anemic, unreal being of the ecclesiastical artists. He was a man. We call Him The Man.

Scientific sociology arranges four types of character: the forceful, the convivial, the austere, and the critically intellectual. Jesus was forceful without harshness; He was convivial but never weak; He was austere and not disagreeable; and He was critically intellectual while still a young man.

The accounts in the gospels tell us how He drove out the money-changers and faced death with unmoved courage, yet little children clung to Him with joy. He attended the banquets of the rich, but His companions thought of Him as the Holy One of Israel. He fasted long and at times prayed all night, but He ate and drank like other men and spoke of the fulness of life. He gave a new law, more positive and profound than those of old time, and was crucified at the age of thirty. He had all the virtues of the character types and none of their defects. He combined their qualities in one harmonious whole and thus became a new portent, the dawn of a new light in the creative process.

By such tests, if we must have them, we can hold as genuine the significance of the Christmas story. His birth was attended by not only the unearthly light that flooded the shepherds as they watched upon the hills, but by the splendor of an earthly light that has bathed the hearts of men who bowed before Him then and now.

While I am writing this, the most recent word from Dr. Grammer's bedside in the Episcopal Hospital is that he is mending rapidly and will shortly be on the road to a complete and sound recovery. From day to day now he is able to sit up in longer periods of time. He has been the recipient of hundreds of cheering gifts and messages which, while showing the solicitude of the congregation, nevertheless have been immensely helpful and encouraging to him. We can believe that no small part of his recovery can be attributed to the love that has surrounded him afar-off and nigh.

In his convalescence he has desired me to invite as often as is conveniently possible, preachers who have been distinguished for various causes throughout the Church. In consequence of this I have invited the Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Shoemaker, the Rector of Calvary Church, New York, for the Sunday morning service of December 9th. I have not yet heard from him, but I do hope he will find it possible to come.

Although still a young man, Dr. Shoemaker has distinguished himself by leadership in a movement that while popularly called "Buchmanism," from the name of its founder, Frank Buchman, has nevertheless attained wide significance in the Church. In reality it is a movement that puts a new emphasis upon Conversion, a cardinal doctrine of the Christian faith, but one which in our own Church has been more often honored in the breach than in the observance.

The merits of the movement are being hotly debated by those who have come to close grips with it. On every side it is acknowledged that something of the sort ought to be done to make real the Christian religion to those who are not of it. And so "Buchmanism" is distinguished for an emphasis upon the value of small prayer groups; a leaving to the guidance of the Holy Spirit what shall be said and done; for a soul-searching analysis of the hearts of the participants to discover what secret sins or hindrances there are that shut the worshipper and the average person untouched by the Spirit, from complete and full union with it; and for an absolute standard and equality before the sight of God of all sons of men.

Illustrating this latter point the story is told that Shoemaker and Buchman, on one of their visits to Europe met Queen Marie of Roumania and interested her profoundly in the cause upon which they had set their hearts.

When subsequently the Queen visited America, and reporters asked her whom she would desire to see first of all, she said, "Sam Shoemaker." And she did. The story continues that when Dr. Shoemaker entered the royal apartment in a New York hotel, the Queen of Roumania called out, "Hello, Sam," and he replied, "Hello, Marie."

The story is refreshing, if it may not be true.

Against the claims of the movement, it is urged by critics, that its philosophy and psychology are based upon an undue appreciation of Freudianism, and its emphasis upon the importance of the sexual functions in life; that the contemplation of such problems leads to morbidity on the part of believers; and that frequently the intimate revelations made of the inner life at such a time and in the spirit of real religious devotion, provokes a subsequent "let-down" that causes the penitent to shun the companionship of those who know his story. All this may or may not be true. But "Buchmanism" has a message for our time. Possibly some modified form of it will eventually find a real place in our religious life. At all events we are most hopeful that Dr. Shoemaker will tell us of it in the coming weeks.

Other special preachers who have been engaged for December, are the Rev. Dr. Rufus M. Jones, Professor of Philosophy at Haverford College, who has been a most successful Lenten preacher for us at St. Stephen's Church; and the Rev. Dr. George Cadwalader Foley, Professor of Systematic Divinity at the Philadelphia Divinity School. Dr. Jones will preach the evening of December 16th, and Dr. Foley, the evening of December 2th.

Lest this "letter" grow into the length of an epistle, may I close with the wish that the oncoming Christmas and New Year may bring you prosperity but not too great prosperity so as to destroy the zest of struggle, the comfort of sacrifice, and the sense of oneness with the rest of mankind; may it be satisfying but not too satisfying, so to keep alive the eager desire for justice and the abolition of misery and fear in the lives of the less-favored; may the New Year, and with it the Christmas dawn, be not overfull of peace, thus to stir us to fight for a warless world. And may you be brought a little nearer to a world free from suspicion, and wrong, and to a world a little worthier of the Great Commander and Divine Prophet whose birth we celebrate.

Affectionately yours,

Robert Oliver Kevin.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

There were nineteen members present at the November meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Miss Bright, Treasurer of the United Thank Offering in St. Stephen's was the speaker. She told an interesting story of the United Thank Offering.

The Woman's Auxiliary back in the seventies began holding triennial meetings at the same time and place as the meetings of the General Convention. The heart of that meeting was the Corporate Communion.

In 1866 Mrs. Soule of Pittsburgh asked Miss Emery if she would suggest an offering for the next triennial Communion for some special purpose. Miss Emery suggested two: A church building at Anvik, Alaska, and the outfit, traveling expenses and a year's salary for a teacher in Japan. These two objects required $2000.

In 1889 at the triennial only $400 was given, but the amount was soon pledged to complete the $2000. Once such a plan was begun it could not be given up—and now the Corporate Communion is for all the women of the Church and the offering at that service has grown to over a million dollars in 1928.

At each offering an amount is set aside for a certain building, and in this way gifts have been made to the Training School for Women in Sendai, Japan; St. Hilda's School for Girls in Wuchang, China; St. Augustine's School, Raleign, N. C; Hooker School, Mexico; the Hospital at Farmington, N. M.; the School at Guantanamo, Cuba; St. Paul's School at Lawrenceville, Va., and many others in all missionary fields.

The women of the Church give as members for their church's program, for enterprises in diocese, parish and community and that being done, they choose to give a little more, and those "little mores" make up this wonderful offering.

Miss Bright hopes every woman in St. Stephen's will give just a little more.

Beulah E. Hollar, Secretary.

The ideal is nothing more nor less than that which is practicable in the long run.

Why We Carol

Christmas would not be Christmas without the carols that have marked its celebration from the very beginning of its observance. Bishop Jeremy Taylor called the Angel's Song, "Glory to God in the Highest, and on earth peace, good-will toward men," the first Christmas carol, and it might very well have been.

There is an old English hymn which begins:

> The first Nowell the angels did say
> Was to three poor shepherds in the fields as they lay.

Nowell may also be spelled Nowel or Noel. It is an old French-Norman word and was used as a synonym for the Nativity of Christ and for Christmas itself.

The English word "carol" is from Middle English, and comes from a verb meaning "to sing joyously." Just when the custom of singing Christmas carols in the streets came into vogue, it is difficult to say, but it is almost certain these were of a devotional nature and it was only later that a jovial kind were substituted.

But few of the earliest hymns used by the Christian Church have come down to us. Few of those we possess are earlier than the Middle Ages. There is a tradition, however, that as early as the year 129 it was the custom in Rome to sing Christmas carols. From the Fourth Century comes our earliest Christmas carol of human composition. It reads:

> Why from his narrow orbit's bound
> Turneth the burning sun away?
> It is because the Christ is born
> To be himself the Light of Day.

The Christmas carols we know need not be repeated, but here is one that perhaps few know, yet it is one of the daintiest and sweetest poems in the English language. It is by Christina Rosetti:

> What can I give him
> Poor as I am?
> If I were a shepherd
> I would bring a lamb,
> If I were a wise man
> I would do my part—
> Yet what can I give him,
> Give him my heart!

The famous old Christmas song, "Holy Night," is perhaps the most beloved of all Christmas carols. The words were written in 1818 by Joseph Mohr, a German. The melody was composed by Josef Gruber, a German schoolmaster in 1863. The aged poet, the composer, and the young women of the village formed the choir which first sang this exquisitely beautiful hymn, and they were accompanied only by a guitar. For many years the song was known only locally, but it was introduced finally to the outside world by a strolling band of singers who chanced to hear it.

Christmas Baskets

No small part of the joy of the Yule-tide comes with the cheer we are able to bring into the lives and homes of others. That is why grown people enjoy Christmas in a deeper sense than even children do, it gives them the opportunity to make children happy and that is one of the most richly rewarding experiences that falls to the lot of human kind.

At St. Stephen's Church it has been an annual custom to provide baskets for Christmas dinners to hundreds of poor people, and by doing that we make Christmas something more than simply a sacred feast for ourselves. This year it is Dr. Grammer's wish, although he may not be able to participate actively in the direction of it, that the custom should be continued and that the Christmas baskets be provided as of old.

The committee of the congregation which last year managed the collecting of offerings and the distribution of baskets, with their consent, will be continued this year. They are Mr. Howard Reifsnyder, chairman; Mr. T. Munroe Dobbins, Mr. James Carrigan, Mr. Howard Freeston.

Appeals for these baskets will go out within a few days. It is hoped the congregation will be able to respond as generously as it has in the past.

The Sunday School

Preparations are under way for the annual Sunday School Christmas entertainment which this year will be held Friday night, December 21st in the Community House auditorium. The feature of the entertainment will be the giving of the Dicken's Christmas Carol in dramatic form. The play will be staged and acted by the children of the Sunday School themselves, in some cases assisted by members of the Dramatic Guild where older parts are required.

In addition there will be a minstrel show, contributed by two of the boys' classes, and a special feature arranged by the Primary Department. The direction this year will be by Mrs. Alexander Whitney, of Oak Lane, one of the teachers.

The Russian Choir

Judging by the many compliments that have been received as a consequence of the singing of the Russian choir of forty voices from the Greek Orthodox Church of St. Mary the Virgin, Sunday night, November 25th, it may not be amiss at this time to say that there are many interesting features about the work of that choir and its organization that are appealing in their nature.

Because I wanted their work judged upon its merits alone, I did not mention on the Sunday night when they sang that the choir is made up entirely of workers at the Philadelphia Gas Works and the Atlantic Refining Company, men and women who through the week spend their time in the most manual kind of labor, making gas and distilling oil, and only on Sundays and in the evenings give vent to the spiritual impulses within them in the creation of song.

But their work is such a quality as to have won for them praise from music critics throughout the city and beyond. They have made several records for the Victor Talking Machine Company, and the litany they sang Sunday night has only recently been made in record form.

In judging work of that kind, we must be on our guard against expecting Russian singing of the Grand Opera quality. It is frankly peasant singing, and peasant singing of the kind that was heard in the Churches of Russia for ages before the Revolution, but which since has been largely stilled. For that reason it is often necessarily shrill, but withal plaintive, imaginative, and deep—voicing the spiritual aspirations of a people midway between barbarism and civilization.

It is naturally a volunteer choir, no member of it is paid a salary of any kind and the fees which it receives by singing in our Church and in others goes entirely to the building of their new Church which is situated at 28th Street and Snyder Avenue. A knowledge of these things helps our appreciation.

The Players' Guild

In the latter part of January the Players' Guild of St. Stephen's Church will present "Mr. Pim Passes By," for the benefit of the Mother's Meeting of the Church, and will probably give two other performances of the play to which members of the congregation and friends of the players will be invited. The cast includes Miss Emily Shroder, Miss Grace Armstrong, the Misses Gertrude and Florence Allison, Mr. J. Lewis Armstrong, Mr. Frederick Fantz, and Mr. Charles Cleeman.

The play itself is an amusing comedy of provincial English life. Two years ago it was presented by Plays and Players and there scored a popular success.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Friends and Parishioners:

I regret that our Parish News comes out so late this month. I postponed its appearance till the 2nd Sunday in January, thinking that I might publish in it the decision of the Vestry on an important question of parish administration. I find, however, that the monthly meetings of the Vestry have been changed to the 2nd Monday in the month. This date will be too late for this issue. This change of meeting was agreed upon in the Spring, but it had escaped my memory.

Before I speak of my own personal feelings on returning to the Church after such a long sickness, I must refer to the wonderful escape that we had from a disastrous fire. On Thursday evening, January 3rd, the Mother's Meeting was to be held in the Parish House in the second story, and the Girl Scouts were to have a meeting on the 3rd floor. Some of the members of both organizations had already arrived and were in their rooms, when the electric lights suddenly went out. As they sat in the darkness Mrs. Gensheimer, of the Mother's Meeting, who knows the Parish House so well, that she can find her way around it in the dark, entered the building and carried some towels to the room on the first floor, where the surplices and hangings are kept. As she made her way thither in the dark, she heard the exclamation that the Church was lighted up. A glance, however, revealed to her that the Church was on fire. Calling out the alarm she at once opened and fastened back, with great presence of mind, both outside doors, asked a passerby to notify the policeman that the Church was on fire, and herself went over and phoned the Verger. Policemen, firemen and Verger were speedily on the spot. The marble around the switch board next to the effigy of Colonel Burd was torn away, and the fire was soon extinguished. In a few more moments the flames would have reached the organ, and if that great mass of inflammable material, with its numerous draughts, had ignited, the Church would have been badly damaged indeed, if not totally destroyed.

In this escape, I see a manifestation of God's righteousness and goodness. His righteousness was shown in that, Church or no Church, bad workmanship brought disaster. There was something wrong back of the switch board, and the defect brought its appropriate penalty. The goodness of God was manifested in the presence at the time of a quick-witted woman, and in the prompt stoppage of the fire.

In the same way God's justice and mercy were revealed at Tacony. The Church there burned down because God will not change His ways to prevent error from bringing disaster; but His mercy was seen in that two days before, the Diocesan office awoke to the peril of this uninsured property and had it insured. Put down that piece of foresight to the credit of the Church House, when you hear the economists declaim against its expensiveness.

The pillage of our Community House illustrates the same principles. We live in a lawless community, and the Churches, like private individuals, must suffer for the conditions for which, by the way, the Church people are, in a large part, to blame on account of their supineness and lack of public spirit. Yet God is merciful to us; the loss was not so great as to cripple our activities.

In such a fashion, it seems to me, a Christian Theist ought to look upon the occurrences of life. God is not an absent landlord, He is a present God, working through all things. Adversities are His files and His chisels; blessings are His polishings and oilings. Inanimate nature He rules absolutely, and human nature, with its mysterious gift of free will, He overrules.

It is thus that I look upon my sickness. The physical laws were observed, and injury to a bodily organism brought pain and disaster, but law was tempered with mercy. I return to the Church full of gratitude for the goodness of God. Innumerable were His mercies to me. My stay at the Episcopal Hospital was made so delightful by the charming atmosphere of the place, the combined humanity and skill of the doctors, nurses, and the countless tokens of the affection and sympathy of the congregation that I felt all the weeks which I spent there, as if I was in a heavenly place. Wonderful and moving to me was the outpouring of the affection and loyalty of the congregation. I am deeply grateful for it.

It is great cause of gratitude that through the generosity of the hospital, of the surgeon and physicians, and the liberality of the Vestry, I come out of this long and expensive illness free from the burden of debt. Singularly have I been blessed in a staff whose members have worked together in my absence with fidelity, efficiency, harmony. Especially great is my debt, indeed, I should say the whole Church's debt, to Mr. Kevin for the cheerfulness, ability and loyalty with which he has fulfilled the additional tasks my sickness threw upon him. I do not claim that my methods and policies are perfect, and unimprovable, but it is plain that if I was to come back, it was the course of wisdom and loyalty to continue to sail the ship on the course that I had set. This Mr. Kevin did most loyally and efficiently.

When I spoke in the Church on the first Sunday in the New Year, I expressed this gratitude orally, but I wish to have some record of these expressions, so I repeat them here.

For the same reason I repeat the expression of gratitude to God, that I made standing in that beautiful and much-loved Chancel.

Whitehead has said that religion is what people think in their solitariness. Never did I feel so solitary as when I realized that I was seriously ill, alone, far from home, on the other side of the Atlantic, in a foreign land. And never did I feel more upheld by the realization that God was beside me to guide me, to uphold me, requiring me to rise by His aid to the duties of the situation. I assure you that I knew no depression of spirit in that London Hospital, and had a lively experience of the truth of the great text, God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble. When I recall what a sensitive child I was and how lacking in fortitude, I cannot ascribe my mental condition to natural endowments, but appreciate that it was due to the goodness of God.

Surely life can have no greater blessing than a constant sense of the nearness, the power, the goodness, the holiness of God. We flee to Him in time of trouble, and He welcomes the prodigals and takes us in His arms. But we ought by prayer and the use of all the means of grace to gain a constant sense of our relation to Him, as His children and of His relation to us as our Father, and Creator, our Preserver, our Over-Lord, our God.

It is a marvel to me that so many people allow their faith in God to be undermined by doubt without making any real struggle to preserve it. Perhaps they only see the responsibilities and duties that it brings in its train and are ignorant of the support and strength it bestows. A half and half faith knows nothing of this last.

But whatever may be the cause, they miss in this way the greatest source of consolation and strength that humanity knows. Here is matter for many sermons.

I must not omit to mention one cheering aspect of my sickness, and that is that the operations which I underwent, the one in England and the other in America, like operations for adenoids, or for the removal of tonsils, were operations which all the physicians assure me will prove after a reasonable time to have renewed rather than lessened my vigor, so that I return to you not a broken man, but a man who has been repaired and restored to the vigor of an earlier day.

Since I am speaking of sources of gratitude, I must not omit the great victory of idealism at the polls in November. All the Protestant Churches in our land have with a united voice commended our great national effort to lessen the evils of alcoholism —our own Church among others. Great as have been the admitted economic benefits of the experiment, the full blessings have never been reaped. The law has neither been loyally observed by the classes who have the most to lose by lawlessness, nor loyally enforced by the agents. The country is determined to go on with the experiment and see what can be accomplished by better enforcement, by better observance and by the unmistakable revelation that this policy is the will of the majority. We ought to hear no more about a minority forcing on the country this reform. The churches looked on the election as presenting a great moral issue, like the elections that dealt with the extension of slavery. And it must be to the churches a great sense of thanksgiving that what they regard as the right, won. We must now continue our work of education on the evils of alcoholism and as well as our insistence on law observance and law enforcement.

In our own Church there is great reason to rejoice over the last General Convention. It was a fine convention, and I was particularly gratified that it took the view that I advocated about the 39 Articles. I deprecated the hauling down of a historic flag, and warned the Diocesan Convention that such an action would injure rather than help our Church. That was precisely the decision of the General Convention. As I exerted myself to get this view a hearing I was delighted at the radio message that Mr. Kevin sent me announcing the result. My one regret was that Pennsylvania had not led the way by taking that stand.

Our diocese has met with a temporary check in the declination of the election of the coadjutor-bishopric. I feel strongly that no man ought to allow his name to be presented, if he will not accept the responsibility. If he has been consulted, no conditions at home or in his parish which he could easily have ascertained, ought to be permitted to interfere with acceptance. The office of a bishop must be protected from such treatment.

I am confident that this mistake will not be repeated. As for the man whom we may elect, I hope that he will speak modestly of himself and generously of other bishops.

Let us pray that the convention may be rightly guided and make a wise choice.

When we see how all the universe of material things is bound together by mutual influences, who can doubt that the spiritual world must be still more closely co-ordinated. What tree, for example, is united to another tree by such cords as unite friends, bonds that laugh at time and space. Can we, then, doubt that the fervent prayers of God's people are a power in the universe? How can any follower of Jesus, who was such a man of prayer, and enjoined such persistence in prayer doubt the efficacy of prayer? I am sure that the prayers of the congregation were of great value in my sickness. We must not fail to pray for our Church, and for our Parish Church, both clergy and people, and especially at this time ought we to pray God to help this diocese.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

Then pealed the bells more loud and deep!
God is not dead; nor doth He sleep!
The wrong shall fail,
The right prevail
With peace on earth, good will to men.

—Longfellow.

The Woman's Auxiliary

The December meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary had twelve members present. There was no speaker.

Plans for future work, and reports of monthly meetings at the Church House filled the time.

The Missionary Box Committee sent a wonderful box this month to St. Peter's Mission, Carson City, Nevada, containing an entire winter outfit from hat to shoes, for the mission worker there.

The Scholarships in the Indian's Hope Committee have doubled in price this year, but notwithstanding that, all pledges have been paid for the year.

The Diocesan Committee made a plea for money to buy a horse for Miss Drinker, a worker among the mountaineers at Linville, N. C., so that she can visit the homes of her people.

Miss Roberts, Secretary of the Church Periodical Club, sent out several Christmas boxes of books, toys and knitted articles.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held January 17th, at 10.30 A. M.

Beulah E. Hollar,
Secretary.

The Girls' Friendly Society

wishes to extend its hearty thanks to all who kindly contributed and assisted so willingly toward the Rummage Sale, held in the Gymnasium of the Community House, on Saturday, November 24th. Through the cooperation of all the members, and many kind friends, we feel greatly repaid for our efforts.

The programme of the Society, which began in October, has provided several enjoyable evenings in an educational way—First we had several speakers who enlightened us on the political situation, the forestry bond issue and pollution of streams and the Welfare Federation.

Some of the members have had instruction in the making of lamp shades.

On November 12th, a special supper was given to the Neighborhood Conference. Miss Smythe gave an interesting talk on budget making for branches of the G. F. S.

A Hallowe'en Party and a Thanksgiving Party were given, in which the members showed their talent in many ways.

Daisy Patterson gave us a delightful evening with an illustrated talk on her recent trip to England, Scotland and Wales.

A course in Current Events has been started by Miss Anne R. Daley, who gave us one delightful evening and the other meetings are being looked forward to with great interest and pleasure.

Hedwig Kauffman,
Secretary.

Polly's Christmas Greetings

A Happy New Year, from St. Stephen's Pollyanna Girl Scouts.

Oh! What a jolly time this is helping the Greatest Scout in the world, Dear Jolly old Santa Claus.

What fun to make the cripple kiddies, and incurables, happy. The Pollyanna are very busy these days. We had to take in five new little girl scouts, who were brought to us by their mothers and grandmothers, who are members of the Mothers' Meeting of St. Stephen's.

Now come and join in the fun, on Thursday evening of each week, on the third floor of the Parish House, 6.30 P. M., until 7.30 P. M.

Yes, we are up there in our Scout Heaven.

We are glad to hear our "Wonderful Cheerie," Dr. Grammer, is getting well again.

Did you know we had a real surprise luncheon given to our troop on Thursday, December 7th, by our friends, Mrs. Davis and daughter Gertrude.

Playing the "Glad Game," means speaking love and kindness wherever you go, and when we are grateful for all our blessings our Heavenly Father sends us more and more in return.

Pollyanna Girl Scouts have discovered Santa Claus's secret, by playing the glad game all year.

Now, don't you want to catch some of this peace and joy? We will show you how. First step in line, yes right on St. Stephen's Parish House, then forward march up, up, to the top.

Will chat again Next Year.

Pollyanna.

Troop 2
Boy Scouts of America

Our troop is in a very good condition at the present time, although we have dropped nearly one-half of the members. This was done because they were not reporting regularly. We now have eighteen real active members, all doing good work.

Since our last report the troop has to its credit twelve merit badges. These were won by Scouts Schmid, Grindle, Snyderman and Girogasian.

In order for a scout to earn a merit badge he must be a First Class Scout, and we have at the present time ten boys who hold this rank.

In order to increase the number of first class scouts in the troop, the scoutmaster offers a prize each month to the one who advances the most.

Scout Harry Bloomquist was the winner for October. For November Schmid and Snyderman were tie. Each was presented with a Merit Badge Sash.

On Friday night, October the 26th, we had a very interesting lecture, given by Mr. McKichan, of District 10, on his experiences in the Adirondacks. He brought with him the snow shoes and mittens he wore, and let us try them on. He told us how to hunt with our cameras instead of guns. We enjoyed his lecture very much, and hope he will come again.

During the month of October we also had a Hallowe'en party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins, playing all kinds of games and listening to ghost stories. Every boy did something towards entertaining. It was a masked affair and a good time was had by all.

Once a month we visit some place of interest. Last month we visited the Inquirer Building, and saw how this paper was printed.

On Friday, November the 9th, we had, through the kindness of Mr. Klingensmith, a visit from Capt. J. N. Patton, who spoke to us on knots. This was very interesting because the Scout must depend on his knots, to help him in most everything he does.

We regret very much to say that all of the Assistant Scout Masters we had have left us.

Mr. McKenna and Mr. Nolan have now a troop of their own in District 3. While we feel their loss, we must remember it is some other troop's gain.

Mr. Hopkins, who has been with us since we organized, resigned on Friday, December 7th.

We are very happy to tell you that our Scout Master received his fifteen year veteran pin at the last Court of Honor—a long time in the game. We count it a rare privilege to have one so long connected with the organization as our Scout Master. He has completed eighteen years in scouting. At the present time he is taking a course in Advanced Scouting at Temple. He expects to graduate the latter part of December.

We have already begun to make plans for our annual camp. However, I might add, that our troop committee is hard at work trying to get a place where we can have a camp of our own, and some place where we can go on week ends.

We are getting ready for our annual inspection, which will take place in March. At the last inspection we were made a red star troop. This means one of the best all around troops in the district.

In summing up this report I feel that we are forging ahead, and that we will soon be one of the leading troops in the city.

Francis Grindler,
Troop Scribe.

The Players' Guild

In the latter part of February the Players' Guild of St. Stephen's Church will present "Mr. Pim Passes By," for the benefit of the Mother's Meeting of the Church, and will probably give two other performances of the play to which members of the congregation and friends of the players will be invited. The cast includes Miss Emily Shroder, Miss Grace Armstrong, the Misses Gertrude and Florence Allison, Mr. J. Lewis Armstrong, Mr. Frederick Fantz, and Mr. Charles Cleeman.

The play itself is an amusing comedy of provincial English life. Two years ago it was presented by Plays and Players and there scored a popular success.

A friend is one who walks in when the rest of the world walks out.

'Tis the human touch in this world that counts,
The touch of your hand and mine,
Which means far more to the fainting heart
Than shelter and bread and wine:
For shelter is gone when the night is o'er;
And bread lasts only a day,
But the touch of the hand and the sound of the voice
Sing on in the soul alway.

The Players' Guild

On February 28th the Players' Guild of St. Stephen's Church will present "Mr. Pim Passes By," for the benefit of the Mother's Meeting of the Church, and will probably give two other performances of the play to which members of the congregation and friends of the players will be invited. The cast includes Miss Emily Shroder, Miss Grace Armstrong, the Misses Gertrude and Florence Allison, Mr. J. Lewis Armstrong, Mr. Frederick Fantz, and Mr. Charles Cleeman.

The play itself is an amusing comedy of provincial English life. Two years ago it was presented by Plays and Players and there scored a popular success.

The Rector's Letter

Dear Friends and Parishioners:

This past month has brought us two bereavements. Mr. Reifsnyder was still in middle age and his death was a great shock. I publish separately the remarks that I made at his funeral. May it long be true that he, being dead, yet speaketh to us through his example, and the inspiration of his memory. His personality was so strong and unique, that it is difficult to realize that he has been taken from us.

Quite different was the death of Mrs. Hall. She had reached ripe years, her strength was failing, and we can but feel that Death was a good angel carrying the weary laborer in the vineyard to her reward. What a loving, loyal, uncomplaining spirit she was. How she will be missed at the Girl's Friendly, where she was not only the Senior Associate, but also the oldest person in the band. I feel with Mrs. Hall as with Miss Kate Lewis, that it would not be easy to estimate how much her quiet influence contributed to the vitality and peace of the organization. As there are little glands in the body whose efficacy for years escaped the physiological, so I am persuaded there are in the Church quiet, faithful, loyal, loving members who are without our knowledge pouring helpful and healing influences into the organization. Such a one was Mrs. Hall.

At her funeral there should be only a few tears, concessions to nature, the predominant feeling should be rejoicing that she has entered in the joy of the Lord, into the rest that remaineth for the people of God.

The Septuagesima Conference was held for the fourth time at St. Stephen's. It has become a recognized rallying place for Liberals and Evangelicals.

I did not think it wise to attend and turned all the arrangements over to a Committee of the Protestant Episcopal Church League.

We are greatly indebted to Dr. Cummins in particular for his admirable work. As the letter which I wrote to him for reading at the banquet, gives my ideals for the Conference, I publish it here.

Christianity has always been at the crossroads. But surely not since the Reformation has there been greater need of spirituality, courage, insight, and learning on the part of the clergy. So much of our old Learning has lost its value with the modern realization of the true nature of inspiration, of the progressive nature of revelation, and of the final authority of Reason; in the large sense, as the response of man's whole nature to the totality of things. Surely we need to restore Metaphysics and Moral Philosophy to their proper place in the training of our ministers. Psychology and Sociology are all very well, but they must not be allowed to supplant these more fundamental departments. Old and young, we ministers need to educate ourselves anew to meet these new problems. I am persuaded that we waste our time threshing the straw of those outworn theories of the Church, Sacraments and Bible. I find it difficult to be patient with those who profess to believe in freedom, yet refuse to admit that if the Church is free and liberal, then men of similar minds are free to associate themselves, without incurring the charge of sectarianism, or narrowness to carry out their common purposes ... The Anglo Catholics have their Sodalities and Confraternities, etc., and have extended by them their exclusive views and their aesthetic propaganda, as a means of spreading an atmosphere in which their theology can bud and bear fruit. But the Liberals have been singularly lacking in any vivid sense of the value of associated effort. They appreciate organization in the State, but not in the Church. I hope that the Liberals in our Septuagesima Conference will recognize the value of organization. Most of them will, I think, agree that it would have been a mistake if the recent General Convention had dropped the Articles from the Prayer Book. This, however, would have occurred but for organization.

The recent election in November showed, among other things, not only how determined our Country is to try through the experiment of Prohibition, but as the vote in Maryland particularly disclosed how distrustful the Country is of so despotic a form of Church Government as Romanism, with its exaltation of the divine right of a class to rule and its excessive demand of docility and obedience in those who are not officials. It is basic that a man of any religion, or no religion, has the privilege of running for office in the United States; but nothing can deprive the voter of the right to decide whether the religion professed by the candidate is a form that will help him to discharge his obligations to our Republic. Let a Mussulman or a Mormon be put up for the Presidential Office, and the absurdity of the claim that the voter must not consider the religion of the Candidate will be revealed. One of the lessons of the last election was the strong Protestant feeling of the country. Some may call this bigotry, but with the record of such Catholic Countries as Spain and Italy with their dictators and with the presence of strong Catholic parties in Continental Europe, I call it good sense. Anyhow this Protestantism of our people is a significant fact, for those who wish to equip the Protestant Episcopal Church to do a large work in our land.

Vain, indeed, it seems to me is the effort to unite Liberal Theology with autocracy in Church Government. We need to be thorough-Protestants if we are to help Progressive thought.

I confess, too, my deep distrust of the Aesthetic tendency to beautify and enrich worship by using postures and ornamental usages, that were the natural means of expressing doctrines, now discarded. Let the new wine have the new wine skins. I wish that in Architecture, Music, and Church Ritual we could have the new freedom and new insights manifest themselves naturally. . . Few things give me more disgust than to see men going through genuflections, etc., that mean so much to a convinced Anglo-Catholic, or a Roman Catholic, but which I know that the Liberal uses merely aesthetically or as a prudent concession. Surely religion is meant to harmonize and unify our lives. Need we be surprised that our people drift into unintelligent views of the Sacraments, localizing the presence in bread or on the altar, if we act as if we believed in a local presence. I plead for a courageous consistency.

I should like to say a word about the need of some doctrines in a Church. The right of the individual to be free, is conditioned by the right and need of the organization to stand for something. Mysticism has its value, but so has the Logical faculty its rights. Because our views of truth are tentative and probably will be superseded, many people think themselves excused from forming any views, or inculcating those they hold. But surely this is a great mistake, let us speak out and declare the truth, as we understand it with all possible clearness. This is the road to the larger truth. Only the definite leads to definite results. Quakerism has not spread because of its vagueness. Nothing but its organization and discipline saved it even in Fox's day. Doctrinal vagueness was counter balanced by the meetings, regulation of dress, speech, marriage, etc. . .. We have no such discipline, we do not want it, but with our liberty of conduct, we stand in special need as an organization of great moral enthusiasms and clear spiritual teaching. What will become of us without them? It is so easy for people to adopt the lazy theory that opinions do not matter and that the whole realm of religion is beyond reason.

I trust that our Conference, in addition to associating, as Liberals and Evangelicals, in a closer fellowship, for I hold that we are basically one, believing as we do in a spiritual conception of the Gospel, and relying, as we do, on the inner witness or Truth's inherent credibility. . . will also stir us up to study more earnestly, to grasp more firmly, and teach more clearly the great truths revealed in the New Testament, and through God's pregressive education of the world. . .

My little grandson, under two years old, has been delighting us by his efforts to talk. In some mysterious way he manages to catch the meaning of our sentences. He can't distinguish words, much less syllables. We know this because in his efforts to talk he imitates the sentence and not the words. His utterances are approximations to the sentences, only now and then does a word stand out. Yet he will understand a command. How does he do it? Of course, the answer is that he apprehends the sentence as a whole. He gathers the meaning of that smear of sounds, so to speak. Now his power of grasping the whole, without comprehending clearly the parts, is in essence a mystic sense. It is a method of reasoning that doesn't proceed by analysis, but by synthesis. The child adds together impressions. He argues not from premise to conclusion, but from the conclusion he works backward. He has an innate conviction that there is meaning in our utterances. He connects the sentence, the gesture, the smile, all the circumstances of the utterance, and he infers our meaning—from the transaction as a whole. Gradually he notes the special significance of the sentence, and eventually of the words. In time his indefatigable mind will break up the sentence into words, distinguish verbs and nouns without any grammar, as M. Jourdain talked prose without knowing it, and will show by the coining of strange words that he has learned the general rule of the formation of the comparative without the help of teacher or book.

How absurd it is to think that environment produces faculty, when one sees faculty in this way drawing meaning from environment, and then making deductions from that meaning.

Now just as the child proceeds from the impression of the whole, so does the religious mystic. He is one to whom the Soul of things brings a message, the beauty of nature, the wonder of character, and personality, this whole complex and wonderful creation are to him a manifestation of God. As St. Paul puts in Romans 1: 19, 20, "God hath shewed it unto them. For the invisible things of Him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even His eternal power and Godhead."

It is this ability to catch the meaning of the whole that makes the poet, the seer, the mystic. Mysticism is not opposed to logic, it affords logic the material on which to work, as the child's comprehension of the sentence leads on gradually to his knowledge of words and grammar.

Lent will soon be upon us. Let me urge the members of St. Stephen's who can attend Noonday Services to attend St. Stephen's. We shall be particularly grateful if we can have a large band of ushers to take up the offerings on Wednesday and Friday. If this collecting is done quickly and thoroughly, we have no trouble in financing the Noonday Services.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

Dr. Grammer's Remarks at Mr. Reifsnyder's Funeral.

The close friendship that has existed so many years between Howard Reifsnyder and myself makes it difficult for me to speak any words of testimony to his Christian service and character with the proper self-control. Yet this very intimacy gives its chief value to my witness, and makes its utterance the more obligatory.

His sudden death has brought sorrow to a wide circle, and stricken St. Stephen's to the heart. A Church, properly conceived, is a fellowship. Howard Reifsnyder was supreme among us in his vivid realization and loving expression of this element of Church membership. It was, in truth, but an intensified expression of his attitude to all men, especially to the unfortunate, and disadvantaged. Interest in others, sympathy, kindness, affection poured out of him like power from a great dynamo or genial warmth from a glowing furnace. Hundreds, indeed I am not exaggerating when I say thousands, (bearing in mind Old St. Stephen's Club) could testify to his tireless generosity and helpfulness, to his patience with the weak, though they fell again and again, to his inexhaustible compassion. His great heart never ceased to yearn after the wayward and incorrigible, whom he continued to remember in his prayers, after they had drifted beyond his aid. A great personality, loving and unique, has been taken from us.

One of his rarest and most beautiful gifts was his entire reality and sincerity. Never under any circumstances did he pose as being other than he was in any respect. He could afford to open his heart to people, for he had nothing to hide.

This is not the time to speak of his varied endowments—of his appreciation of beauty, and his interest in historic associations, his extraordinary sense of values and his abilities as a great merchant. Neither can I dwell on his services to St. Stephen's Church and the Burd School, though I must mention that he was the chief founder and sustainer of Old St. Stephen's Club which cheered and helped so many thousands of enlisted men during the World War. To him we also owe our daily Noonday Service on Wednesday at St. Stephen's and the Young People's Fellowship.

But to-day we think not so much of his achievements and activities as of what he was in himself, of his humor, his comradeship, his unworldliness, his friendliness with all sorts and conditions of men, of his loving heart, his tender sympathy, his touching humility, his earnest desire to have the mind which was in Christ Jesus, his faithful use of all the means of grace as an aid to walking close with God.

We are grateful to God for the example and influence of such a life, and sad as it is to have him leave us, we can but be grateful that he was spared the pain of a long lingering last illness and was taken by a short road to the higher service and the fuller blessedness. Let us not fear to follow him in thought. In our Father's house are many rooms. This is the cellar, and he has ascended to the upper stories. I hope and pray that under the inconceivable conditions of that higher life, he may know how much he is missed and honored and loved here. May God grant it and may He give us the grace to follow the example of this sincere and loving Christian. Amen.

Williamsport, Pa.,
January 22, 1929.

My dear Dr. Grammer:

Permit me to sympathize with you for the death of a beloved friend. I feel very keenly the loss which St. Stephen's and you, my dear rector, have sustained. Mr. Reifsnyder was an example of practical Christianity. I believe he felt at all times the nearness of the Master.

Cordially and sincerely yours,
Joseph R. Clair.

How wonderful is the profundity of Shakespeare. These lines from the Winter's Tale, are basic in many a philosophy.

"Nature is made better by no mean,
But nature makes that mean;
So, over the art
That better nature is an art that nature makes."

When Tennyson died this play of Shakespeare was lying open on his bed. Doubtless his eye had recently fallen on these words.

The Woman's Auxiliary

In spite of the bad weather January 17th, twenty-five members attended the meeting of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Miss Drinker, whose address at the Church House was reported last month, was the speaker.

She pointed out a correction she would like made. Last month it was said she wished a fund with which to buy a horse. She wishes to hire a horse once a week to cross the mountain near Linville, N. C., to teach handicraft to the children in a little public school.

Miss Drinker had with her many lovely things which the mountain people make—linens, rugs, bags, table covers, etc.

The next meeting will be held February 21st.

The Daily Noon Services

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 31, 1928.

Dear Friends:

In accord with annual custom, we beg to submit a brief report on the "Daily Noon Services" in "Old St. Stephen's," which will soon round out their seventh year.

The meetings have continued with regularity and promptness and with average attendance around 100.

Able speakers from both near and afar have administered the Word each day and of whom we may truly say—"being allowed of God to be put in trust with the gospel,"—even so they spake. I Thess. 2:4.

The most notable gathering of the year occurred on April 20th at the 1000th service, still fragrant with happy memories.

The Friday service continues specially attractive through the able treatment of the Bible School lessons by Mr. Barnhouse, and the Christian fellowship which prevails among the large company of believers representing a variety of churches, yet with no thought of denominational lines; a beautiful symbol of the invisible Church of which our Lord himself is the Head. Col. 1:18.

As to finances for the year ending December 31, 1928:

Total receipts, all sources	$1,055.42
Total expenditures	1,039.59
Balance on hand, and no unsettled obligations	$ 15.83

(Audited and found correct. E. H. C.)

The administration of affairs has continued in fullest harmony (Ps. 133:1), and to Dr. Grammer and his able staff and to the kind people of St. Stephen's generally, as well as to all who aided in any way, we would again express sincere appreciation.

As illustrating the immeasurable value of these Services, we but quote the headlines of some interesting events:

1. A young Jewess hears the gospel here for the first time, and is now a joint-heir with Christ.

2. The message of an old-time hymn was transmitted through a nearby 'phone to the listener at the far away end, from the chimes in "the old Church tower."

3. One of our Jno. 3:16 medallions caused the distribution of 10,000 others, two of which handed to a lone farmer and wife in a Kansas field resulted in their conversion. Commander Byrd is also carrying one on his journey toward the South Pole.

4. A traveler, incidentally dropping in, returned thanks for the message which he stated specially helped him on his 3000 mile journey.

5. At a single service, seven souls manifested their desire to be saved.

6. Many attending regularly, express gratitude at the opportunity of here learning more and more of Him in whom is hid all the wisdom and knowledge of God.

7. A stranger dropping in, results in "preaching the Word" to several hundred prisoners in the South; also the weekly publication of a continuous series of Bible Studies in the "Southern Churchman," and other far-reaching developments.

8. The "up-building" of believers, and "edifying of the saints."

9. The opening of other doors to those who minister here.

10. The beginning of many happy fellowships which will doubtless find their sweetest echoes within the realms of a boundless eternity.

And thus upon the human tide
Our words and deeds are cast,
Not knowing just how far they reach,
Or just how long they last;
But this we know that Christ Divine,
Can use in wondrous deeds,
The power of His Holy Word,
Where'er the Spirit leads.

As we therefore consider this brief review of the results of the "Open-Door" at "Old St. Stephen's," we ask you to join with us in Psalm 34:3: "Oh magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together."

We have the honor to remain,
Faithfully yours,

The Rector's Letter

Dear Parishioners:

In the February number of the "Atlantic Monthly," President Lawrence Lowell asks whether Prohibition can be enforced, and, if not, whether the present condition is better than some modification of the policy. I am entirely at one with the President of Harvard in holding that the question is worthy of the most careful consideration. I suggest, however, that it must not be prejudged. To link together the Reconstruction measures after the Civil War, and the Prohibition measure after the World War, as exhibitions of a similar spirit, or a similar excessive rigor, is surely a way of discrediting Prohibition before investigation. Reconstructon related to the treatment of the Negroes whose presence in our land was the ultimate cause of the Civil War, and it was a subject around which gathered all the passions engendered by that conflict. Prohibition was in no way connected with the causes of the World War, and was enacted against no party in that struggle. Reconstruction dealt with a condition created by the Civil War. Prohibition was the final chapter in a long volume of enactments that related to conditions with which the World War had nothing to do.

All such analogies are of doubtful value logically. Whatever force this analogy could possess would only arise after it had been ascertained that Prohibition can not be enforced, which is the question to be determined and not to be assumed.

President Lowell implies that Local Option was the proper solution, but the experience of years convinced the people of the United States that neither Local Option nor State Prohibition was adequate to cope with the lawlessness and injurious influence of the saloon. The chief obstacle to Prohibition thus far has been, first of all, that enforcement has not been in the hands of its friends. Secondly, that the upper classes who are not accustomed to endure any restrictions from the law, abuse the law, and justify disobedience to it, although, as President Lowell well says, "Obedience to the law is the basis of civil society."

In spite, however, of poor enforcement and this lack of observance among people who should lead public opinion, there has undoubtedly been a great lessening of drinking and a great improvement in the condition of the working classes, the people who constitute the majority of our nation.

It is astonishing that President Lowell omits all mention of the causes that are steadily working throughout the world in the direction of controlling the trade in intoxicants. The Chemists have taught us that alcohol is a habit-forming drug whose medicinal value has been greatly overestimated and whose stimulation is mainly a kind of delusion. The Life Insurance Companies have shown how even its moderate use shortens life. The great railways have restricted their employees from its use for the safety of their passengers and fellow employees. Great manufacturers tell us that workers amid machinery can not afford to use alcohol. We live in a machine age. Millions of automobiles are flying down our roads and whirling about our streets. Twenty-five million automobiles is the last count—one to every five inhabitants. The safety of society requires that these drivers, who do not run on rails or on schedules, should be just as much restricted from the use of liquor as the railroad engineers.

Every one agrees that the saloon is a festering sore, but no one has shown how intoxicating liquor can be brought back without the restoration of the equivalent of the saloon.

Since it is admitted that immense economic and social benefits have resulted from Prohibition, why should we imperil these blessings by relaxing the stringency of Prohibition in order to lessen the amount of disobedience to the law? Is not such a rewarding of disobedience the way to increase disobedience? If disobedience can secure light-wines, will it not be encouraged to further disobedience to get whiskey?

What is the motive of the people who disobey the 18th Amendment? Is it not exactly the same as the motive of the Opium user, viz., that appetite is placed above the Public Weal and the Public Will?

I had hoped that after the last election we should hear no more about a minority forcing its will upon the majority. Yet President Lowell, while admitting in some sentences that a majority favors the law, seems to think that the obligation of the law is weakened because it was for a long time a minority measure. Was there ever a beneficial reform of which this could not be said? What we have a right to expect from our educators, it seems to me, is greater emphasis on the duty of observance even of an unpopular law—loyal observance until the repeal of the law can be secured, if they hold it should be repealed. I find it hard to be moved by the horror of growing lawlessness expressed by people who apologize and condone law-breaking. Plaintiffs must appear in court with clean hands, and zealots for laws that can be enforced must be teachers of the obligation of obedience to the laws that exist.

Admirably situated for rendering service to the poor, our hospital is not well located if it is to be intimately known by the rich. Lehigh Avenue and Front Street is not a fashionable route. Yet, in fact, in these days of automobiles that location is accessible in a few minutes from the centre of the city. It is a visit worth making and rewards the visitor with many emotions, some of pride and some of sympathy and longing. As one walks along the hospital's broad corridors he reads on the tablets on the walls the names of our Church's leaders in philanthropy. There is the name of that statesman among bishops, Alonzo Potter, and of that wonderful preacher to children, Dr. Richard Newton, and beside them the names of many a loving parent and child and sister and friend endowing beds or making gifts in memory or those loved and lost awhile. How sweet it is to come across a chapel, amid all these appliances and devices to cure the body, a place for the comfort and strengthening of the soul, doubly sweet if a service is going on. I shall always recall with gratitude the delight the solemn yet comforting anthems gave me, when I was a patient in the hospital. How sweet it was to hear the familiar hymns—how good to know that God, the Author of life, was being worshipped and honored in this great institution dedicated to healing bodily ills.

Dr. Johnson said that he envied no man whose piety was not stirred by the ruins of Iona, that sacred isle off the coast of Scotland, whence the early British missionaries went out to evangelize the South of Scotland and the North of England. I feel sorry for the man whose soul is not stirred, in walking through the main wards of the Episcopal Hospital, by the texts on the walls over the beds. Here are some of them:

We know that all things work together for good to them that love God.
Romans VIII, 28.
Fear thou not, for I am with thee, be not dismayed, for I am thy God.
Isaiah XLI, 10.

Cast thy burden upon the Lord,
and He shall sustain thee,
Ps. 55: 22.
Thou shalt call His name Jesus, for He shall save His people from their sins.
St. Matthew I, 21.

The Lord is good, a strong hold in the day of trouble and He knoweth them that trust Him.
Nahum I, 7.
The eternal God is thy refuge underneath are the everlasting arms.
Deuteronomy XXXIII, 27.

As I have often mentioned, never have I appealed to this generous hospital that it has not responded to my request and helped me to care for my sick people. This winter we have made an unusual number of requests of it, but not one has been refused.

Much will be done for the hospital as the result of our Diocesan Campaign inaugurated two winters back by our statesmanlike Bishop, but much still remains to be done.

For example, is it not a great defect in that splendid institution that it has no Maternity Ward and its nurses have to go to some other institution to round out their training by service in its Maternity Wards? What more beautiful memorial could a son pay to a Mother than the erection of a Maternity Ward in our hospital to his Mother's memory? Here is an appropriate inscription for the dedicatory tablet, "For all women in the perils of childbirth,—we beseech Thee to hear us Good Lord."

Another need of the hospital is a Solarium. When I was strong enough to get out of bed I longed for some place where I could bask in the sun. In the London hospital I had not enjoyed any sunlight for five weeks. On ship board I had only a few hours in the sun, and I yearned for its invigorating heat. But our great Hospital has no Solarium.

It seems to me that before our diocese puts up any monumental buildings on the Cathedral ground, we ought to equip adequately our great Hospital. When the Johns Hopkins was opened, a great scientist protested against architecture's domination in University and Collegiate life. "Let us here," he said, "put first things first; let a fine facade await upon adequate laboratories, well-salaried professorships, a sufficient number of assistants, a fine library." So I hold that in our diocesan life, a fully equipped Episcopal Hospital is one of the first things. Its claims should be kept steadily before our people.

I always regretted that I did not urge Miss Anna Magee, who made the parish so many generous gifts at my request, to endow some beds in a hospital and give the Rector of St. Stephen's the privilege of nominating occupants. It would be a splendid addition to the equipment of a downtown Church.

Perhaps some of our people may do this in their wills.

Among other things the hospital is urgently in need of is a supply of radium for the treatment of cancer, which would cost from seven to ten thousand dollars.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

Resolution by the Vestry

February 13, 1929.

Whereas, Mr. William H. Hollar has resigned, on account of the increasing demands of his own business, the position that he has held for so many years in St. Stephen's as the Committee on Repairs;

Be it Resolved, that in accepting this resignation the Vestry desires to put on record its appreciation of the services of Mr. Hollar in this responsible post, and particularly to express its gratitude for the efficient part that he took in the building of the Community House, which was designed by an architect of his selection and erected under his general supervision.

Resolved, that this resolution be published in "The Parish News" as well as spread upon the minutes of the Vestry.

Notice

Class for Confirmation instruction will meet Friday nights at 8 o'clock in the Vestry Room.

Confirmation will take place March 17th, at 11.00 A. M.

The Woman's Auxiliary

Eight members and Mr. Kevin braved the storm for the regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary, February 21st. There was no speaker. Many full and interesting reports were sent in by delegates unable to attend the meeting.

The treasurer reported a balance of $73.56. The Missionary Box Committee has a balance of $63.70 with which to begin next year. Miss Bright has collected $103.47 from twenty-four contributors.

The next meeting will be held in the Community House, March 21st.

St. Stephen's Expectation for 1928

The Rector, wardens and vestry of St. Stephen's Church are happy to announce that the congregation has more than met its financial obligations to the Church and to the Church's Missionary Program in the Expectation for 1928. St. Stephen's Church promised $5,000 to the Expectation, and a total of $5,689.84 from all sources was contributed. This was divided in the following ways: payments on account of Expectation, $5,369.34; specials, $320.50. Through the accounting warden $4,589.39 was received and through other sources, $1,100.45.

Jesus, as you pass along,
Doing right, overlooking wrong,
As you view the hurrying throng,
Pause a moment at my side.

Are there those that know not Thee,
So engaged they do not see?
Gently touch me, come to me,
Pause a moment at my side.

My eyes may not behold Thy face,
But my soul will feel Thy grace.
When you pause, my soul embrace;
Pause a moment at my side.

The Girls' Friendly Society.

The Girls' Friendly Society takes this opportunity to thank the Honorary Associates and friends who kindly supported the Luncheon and Card Party given at the Food Craft Shop, 1211 Chestnut Street, on February 3, 1929. It was most successful, and a very attractive place to give a benefit.

Since the first of the year, we have lost our oldest member and associate, Mrs. Mary Anna Hall. She had endeared herself to every one in the Society and we wish to pay profound tribute to such a sincere character. Her wonderful spirit and sweet influence will live forever in the hearts of our girls.

A number of our members have been ill, and were taken care of by the Episcopal Hospital. So wonderful was the attention and care given them by the doctors and nurses, that we are full of appreciation and thanks to them for the kindness shown each member. We are also deeply indebted to Mr. Kevin for all the kindness and immediate attention administered by him.

Our programme since the first of the year has been a varied one. Miss Anne R. Daley has given several interesting Current Event Talks, and we are looking forward with keen interest to more of them. Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, gave us a most instructive talk. Two evenings have been given to Doctor Rachel Williams, whose advice and interest in the welfare of the girls made such an impression that we would like to hear her speak every week. Mr. Wm. Sharpless gave us a delightful evening with an illustrated talk on his trip abroad, and also showing some beautiful pictures of the country surrounding Philadelphia. This was not just illustrated slides, but real moving pictures, and was most entertaining. He presented the Society with two of his books, giving a full and inspiring account of his trip which will be read by the Society at one of its meetings.

A Waffle Luncheon, for the benefit of the special effort fund, was given by Mrs. Daisy Patterson at her home on Saturday, February 16th. Class in Bridge was started by Mrs. Stilz on February 18th. An interesting trip was made through the plant of Breyer Ice Cream Company, where we saw "ice cream in the making."

Our advance programme — An Illustrated Talk on Yellowstone Park, by Doctor W. H. Moore—Talk by Mr. Kevin—Talk on Russia by Mrs. Gosin—all of which are being looked forward to with great pleasure.

Hedwig L. Kauffmann,
Secretary.

NOTES

Outstanding action taken at the February meeting of the National Council was to direct what parts of the Church's activity must be reduced or stopped in order to make the budget equal to the amounts promised by the dioceses. All of this action has been reported in detail to the Church weeklies, The Spirit of Missions and The Church at Work. Will you not influence those to whom you write or speak to study it there? It is too long to include here.

The presiding genius of the Book Store in Church Missions House, Mr. Michael Francis Pfau, has completed twenty years of service there. The National Council sent him a hearty message of appreciation.

One of the clergy who comes nearer than most people to reading everything worth while among modern books recommends for Lent, as more worth while than most books of that kind, three of John Fiske's, which were published some years ago but are still to be had from Houghton Mifflin. The titles are: The Destiny of Man viewed in the light of his origin. The Idea of God as affected by modern knowledge. Through Nature to God.

Still they come, more bishops who have been consecrated "north of San Francisco and west of Nebraska." Bishop Shayler tells us that his own consecration took place in Seattle and that Bishop Ingley was consecrated in Denver.

The January issue of The Diocesan Chronicle of the Philippine Islands, in addition to its always interesting first-hand stories of the Church's work there, includes a complete list of the Church staff, missionaries appointed by the National Council and others employed locally.

On the site of Robert G. Ingersoll's home in New York City now stands the Gramercy Park Hotel. The New York Bible Society recently placed 200 Bibles in that hotel. Incidentally it is where the Presiding Bishop lives.

Bishop Binsted said recently that although Holy Trinity Church, Tokyo, seats only about 250 persons, seven hundred crowded in for the three-hour service on Good Friday last year and most of them remained throughout the service.

A new low record for lynchings was set in 1928, with a total of eleven. The previous minimum was sixteen in 1924. Forty years ago the number was 175.—The World Tomorrow.

Parish paper, St. Luke's Inkhorn, Cincinnati, reports two families in which every earning member makes a pledge for the work of the Church, ten pledges in all.

The original manuscript of "Alice in Wonderland" recently on view in the New York Public Library was visited by 114,000 people. (Yes, this is a legitimate item in this place! There are so many morals attached to it we have not space to state them.)

Reporting a visit to Shasi, a remote station up the river from Hankow, Miss R. B. Lustgarten says, in part:

It was nice to see the Chinese friends again and to be so cordially welcomed by them. One has to admire their sticking to their job during these difficult and trying days. Added to the troubles which have come upon the Church in Shasi district, as in the rest of China, there is the problem of drought and famine. Green vegetables are scarce and everything is exceedingly high. Our Chinese staff realized everything, but there was no talk of running away—only questions as to how to meet the emergency situation which they know was before them.

Best of all were the little chats with Father Yang about the work and the spiritual life of the local church and the Christians and our personal problems. One was struck anew by his devotion to his Lord and his Church, and his desire to do everything he can to extend the Kingdom of God wherever he may be able to do so.

Our Chinese are bravely tackling their problems. They need all the help and encouragement we can give them.

That there are, within the Church in China, men and women who really love our Lord and have given themselves to His service and to the service of mankind through love of Jesus Christ, was one of the greatest impressions this visit made upon me.

The Rector's Letter

Dear Parishioners:

Philosophers are much occupied in discriminating between appearance and reality. This table on which I am writing appears to be a solid substance, but science tells me that the real state of the case is that there are a number of whirling forces which strike upon my senses so rapidly that they produce the illusion of solidity in much the same way that the rapidly revolving films of the moving picture machine produce the pictures on the screen. The real nature of the table, says the scientist, is disclosed by setting it on fire and noting how most of its substance goes off in smoke and gas. But surely there is another point of view. I was looking out on the ocean at Atlantic City the other day and watching the waves as they come in to the shore from the horizon. How gently they rise, how silently they move out there in the great deep, how varied their tints and then what transformations come over them as they near the shore, and the foam begins to crest them. What a steady purr they keep up on windless days, and how they roar on stormy days, and how the surf tesselates the sands, and how some giant wave that breaks far out comes in foaming and roaring, leaving behind a long tail of foam-flecked water as it rushes on the beach.

As I watch all this beauty and play of light and color and listen to this music of the ages, I ask myself, is this not a reality? Some may answer, No, that is appearance, an illusion produced by the nature and the limitations of human eyes and ears, the reality is the gases here combined, the hydrogen and oxygen, and the salts they hold in solution, or the profounder reality of their atoms and the atoms' component parts.

But wait, I ask, come, go with me to the Academy of Fine Arts, and let us stand before this beautiful picture of a harbor, with its water and ships and wharves. What is the reality there? Is it the canvas and the chemical elements that constitute the paints? Are these last the profound realities, or is the beauty of the picture the true reality, the inner Holy of Holies, to which all the other things are ministrant? To my mind the answer is clear; the beauty of that picture, the creative idea that it expresses, is the real thing about it. It really brought together the canvas and the paints, and so created the combination of elements which create the picture. So Beauty stands both at the beginning and the end, and is the Alpha and Omega of the picture. It is the true reality.

Can not the same be said of the beauty of the sea, of the flowers, of the clouds? They surely tell of Artistry. Why should not the combinations which result in these visions of loveliness be regarded as having their largest explanation, not in chemistry, but in beauty? Is not the beauty of Nature one of the supreme realities.

Though the gathering infirmities of age prevented Mr. John T. Lewis, Jr., from attending church for some years, he was, in the days of his vigor, one of our most regular attendants. He was also, from 1895 to 1917, a member of the Vestry and a faithful member of an important Committee. He and his brother-in-law, Mr. Beauveau Borie, were bound together by the closest ties of friendship and business association, and were looked upon by all of us as remarkable examples of life-long friendship. It is sad to think how many of the members of the Vestry at the time when I came to St. Stephen's have, like Mr. Lewis, journeyed on "from sunshine to the sunless land." Their good examples, however, will long remain with us.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

Miss Alley, of the Church Training and Deaconess School, who is attached to the Missionary District of North Dakota, and has been attending St. Stephen's and teaching in its Sunday School for over a year, is asking for help in her future work at the request of Bishop Tyler. She has been very active in our Young People's Fellowship, and I am sure that the congregation will be delighted to consider her appeal. Her bishop, Dr. J. Poyntz Tyler, at one time had a parish in Philadelphia and is a friend of your rector. Miss Alley will have charge of the religious education in that Missionary District; but she is interested in all the needs of the people, for our missionaries are engaged in teaching the people how to live. Many of them are Dacotah or Sioux Indians. To that end they have to instruct them in gardening, in sanitation and the simple arts of housekeeping. For this they need such tools as wagons and wells, if I may so designate one of the great necessities of existence in the region which is rainless for such a large part of the summer. $150 would buy a wagon. $250 would dig a well. $125 would support a child for a year. The rector would be glad of pledges that would enable them to promise one or all of these.

The Rev. Dr. J. G. H. Barry is quoted in the paper of one of his former parishes as saying that "not doing wrong, in the sense of merely not breaking the commandments, no more makes a man a Christian than not breaking the piano makes him a musician."

The Sunday School

Lent has been a busy time for the members of St. Stephen's Sunday School. Not only have mite-boxes been swallowing pennies that otherwise would have gone to more immediate satisfactions than the work of the foreign missions, but in nearly every case the classes have been engaged in some special work to raise a substantial offering. One class has been very busy sewing every Friday afternoon for weeks past and as a result have made dozens of pot and pan holders and aprons which they have sold at what seems to an uninitiated onlooker, an absurdly low price. Other classes have banded together in the making of marmalade, for which members of the congregation have generously subscribed. Still other classes have been engaged in the sale of various articles from which they derive a small profit that goes to swell the total of their subscription.

The largest endeavor, however, comes this afternoon with the presentation of the annual Easter pageant. The service will be at 4 o'clock in the afternoon as formerly, but this year the nature of the program will be somewhat different. The pageant will be the story of the "Consecration of Sir Galahad," a beautiful drama and pantomime.

A Note of Appreciation

On Easter Sunday for the first time I used the new silk cassock which the women of the congregation have given me. It was intended as a Christmas gift, but the difficulty of getting a firm experienced in making cassocks, was responsible for the delayed delivery. The present was quite unexpected at Christmas time and its message of kindness and good-will deeply touched me. My own feeling of unworthiness was and is the only disquieting thought, but this I try to forget while I express my heartfelt appreciation to those who thought more highly of me than I deserved.

Faithfully yours,
Robert Oliver Kevin.

The Woman's Auxiliary

Mrs. Cheston Morris was the speaker at the March meeting of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary. She is chairman for the Pennsylvania Diocese of the Corporate Gift.

The National Council Treasurer gave warning when he took that position that he would budget all current expenses for all Episcopal Institutions, but there would be no money for advance work. The women knew this meant stagnation and the Corporate Gift is the outgrowth of this thought.

At the December meeting of the Executive Board $50,000 was the goal set to be completed by Epiphany, 1930.

This money is to be used for four objects:

1st. To build a permanent church at Santo Domingo City, the capital of the Dominican Republic. A prominent Englishman has given a beautiful site commanding a view of the city upon the condition a church costing not less than $25,000 shall be built within this year.

2nd. To provide St. Michael's Mission of the Arapahoe Indians of the Wind River Reservation, Wyoming, with a dependable, modern water supply by giving $10,000.

3rd. Five thousand dollars to build a church at Mt. Hope, Canal Zone, where there are three hundred communicants, all government employees, and they are compelled to conduct services in living quarters when available.

4th. Ten thousand dollars to build a much-needed modern dormitory for Christ School for boys in the mountains of North Carolina, at Arden.

B. E. Hollar.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

The reports of the various societies speak their own message, and it is not necessary that I should enlarge upon them. They show conclusively what substantial work is being done in our down-town church. I am delighted that the Parish Meeting went off so well.

We are much indebted to Miss Laura Bell and her associates who made the social hour such a success.

On the statue of the great Protestant theologian, Vinet, in Lausanne, is carved the sentiment that Christianity is the germ of all true Democracy. It is a profound saying. Those famous democracies of Greece were really oligarchies; for Greek civilization was built upon slavery and the inferiority of woman. True democracy is based upon the dignity of man and the brotherhood of man, ideas which find their basis in the Christian teaching that man is a child of God, and, as such, a being of infinite worth. Unfortunately, this great seminal truth, which is constantly proclaimed from our pulpits, has not been adequately expressed in the organization and life of the Church. Even such a thoroughly Protestant Church as the Presbyterian has been too much an oligarchy. The Episcopal Church by its Canons gives the laity great power, but in practice the government of the parishes is too often oligarchical. Some Vestries act as if they were the owners of the property, and not the agents of the congregation. I have known a Vestryman to advocate the amalgamation of two Churches by act of the Vestries without any consultation of the congregations. Such misconceptions of the function of a Vestry are obviated by annual elections such as take place in St. Stephen's. I learnt the value of this method in my brief rectorate of the Church of the Epiphany, Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, where there was a rule of rotation in the Vestry. This rule of rotation I found in Christ Church, Norfolk. I added to it, election at a Parish Meeting. It proved a great success and made the Vestry a truly representative body: the most fashionable Church in Norfolk making it a point to include in the Vestry representatives of all the elements in the congregation.

Before my time in St. Stephen's, the Vestrymen really elected themselves. The congregation had no voice and took no interest in the matter. I do not recall the date of the inauguration of these Parish Meetings; but they have now been our custom for nearly two decades, and have undoubtedly been creative of a wider-spread loyalty and a deeper interest. The envelope-system and the Parish Meeting together make every member realize that this Church is his society giving every one a voice in its affairs and expecting of each member cooperation.

Nothing but ultimate decay and disaster will be the fate of a society whose organization is not in harmony with its fundamental principles. The death of the Earl of Rosebery brings to mind a striking exemplification of this truth. His ability as Foreign Secretary under Gladstone, his eloquence and his great social position led to his choice as the successor of Gladstone as the leader of the Liberals. So it came about that the progressive and popular party of England, the party of reform, social and moral, had as its leader a member of the House of Lords, who had no strong interest in the Liberal solution of the Irish Question and was the spoiled darling of society. The result was disastrous. It is a true saying that the stags with a lion as their leader would be more dangerous than an army of lions under the leadership of a deer. There was no unity of council among the Liberals. The House of Commons' leader, Sir William Harcourt, felt that he was the proper head of the Liberal Party, and resented the half-hearted liberalism of the imperialistic Rosebery. The full story can be gathered from the biographies of Lord Rosebery, Sir William Harcourt and Campbell Bannerman. It shows Lord Rosebery is one of the most pathetic figures in the history of English statesmanship—a kind of liberal Hamlet, brilliant and inefficient, his political affiliations pulling him one way and his social proclivities and tastes another. His retirement was brought about by his own lack of internal harmony. He was destined (to use one of his own phrases) "to plow a lonely furrow."

Such will be the ultimate destiny, in an age, feeling its way in all departments towards a wider and more brotherly democracy, of all institutions that cannot bring their organization into harmony with their principles, and fail to adjust both to the spirit of the times. One of the greatest needs of the Episcopal Church is such democratization. It is the demand of the spirit of Christianity and of the spirit of the age.

This annual Parish Meeting with election of the Vestry, reports of societies, and closing social hour is, I think, one of the most notable features of our life as a Parish. I have received many inquiries about it and it has been copied elsewhere. I hope that it will never be abandoned.

The fear has been expressed that a Vestry so elected may not be competent to meet its responsibilities. This used to be urged in Norfolk by a former Naval Officer who naturally distrusted popular elections. The system worked so well, however, that the objection soon ceased to be urged. It is sometimes asked, as an objection to this method, whether designing people could not colonize in a church and get possession of its endowments by electing themselves on the Vestry at a Parish Meeting. The answer is, in the first place, that if such a nefarious design were really conceived, it would be much easier to carry it out with the old system of election than with the new one. Under the old system the tellers elected by the Vestry kept the polls open from 12 to 1 on Easter Monday, and during that hour one or two Vestrymen dropped in and voted for the old group. All that the conspirators would have to do would be to wait within 5 minutes of the time when it had been announced that the polls would be closed. If they had duly qualified themselves to be voters, and voted for nominees eligible under our Charter, their ticket would be duly elected and their purpose achieved. Such a trick is impossible under our present system where the nominees of a large Parish Meeting are elected. In the second place, there is no example of such a conspiracy and no likelihood. Public opinion would condemn it in unmistakable terms. It involves an amount of duplicity and hypocrisy that is incredible and would be visited with infamy that would be unbearable. Human nature is not perfect, but it does not stoop so low as to use such methods to get control of religious endowments. In any case publicity is the best protection against such perils.

In truth, the danger of churches lies in exactly the opposite direction. I have mentioned the significant fact that one of our Vestrymen, under the old system, advocated two Vestries making a combination of their churches without consulting their congregations. A striking instance of the same view of a Vestry is given in Dr. Rainsford's "Story of a Varied Life." Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan held the oligarchical view of a Vestry. At a meeting of the Vestry of St. George's Mr. Morgan rose and said: "I have a motion to make, Mr. Chairman, and I think that the Vestry will agree with me it had better be passed without debate." He then read his motion. It was that the Vestry should be reduced from eight members and two wardens to six members and two wardens. Dr. Rainsford was stunned by the proposal and asked for an explanation. Mr. Morgan's explanation was brief; it was all right to democratize the Church, but he did not want the Vestry democratized. A hot debate ensued that lasted till nearly midnight. Dr. Rainsford insisted that instead of diminishing the number in the Vestry, it ought to be enlarged and contain representatives of the church-workers and of the large wage-earning class that attended the Church. Dr. Rainsford writes: "I could feel that as I pleaded with all my soul for a democratic and more representative Vestry, I had the support, as yet unspoken, of a majority of those present; but I wanted to win a verdict, if possible, without a division. I wanted to save my warden from pushing his motion to certain defeat. 'Will you not withdraw your motion?' I said. Here Mr. Seth Low, Mayor of New York, who had for years been the teacher of the Senior Men's Bible Class in our Sunday School, appealed to Mr. Morgan in a moving speech to withdraw his motion. Mr. Morgan remained immovable. Then a dramatic thing happened. A member of the Vestry, one of his oldest friends, one to whom, in the financially troublesome times through which we were then passing, Mr. Morgan had been of immense service, (I did not know this till later) slowly rose. He was white to the lips, and, turning to Mr. Morgan, he said, 'Mr. Morgan I am compelled to agree with our Rector fully in this matter, and I move this Vestry be increased to eleven.' Mr. Low seconded it at once. Mr. Morgan would not withdraw and could get no seconder. So I put the second motion, which was carried. The vote stood seven to one. Mr. Morgan rose and said, 'Rector, I will never sit in this Vestry again.' Next day he sent in his written resignation to the Rector, who refused to submit it to the Vestry. In the end Mr. Morgan accepted the Vestry's decision and resumed his place." The episode thus reflects honor on the magnanimity of all parties.

That a man who was such a patriotic American as Mr. Morgan should favor an oligarchy in the Church, shows how difficult it is to have the spirit of the Church, ideally the great brotherhood, expressed in the Church's own institutions.

One of the strongest arguments for the democratization of industry, is the difficulty of preserving democracy in government, when our economic or industrial life is dominated by oligarchies or dictators. It would often be amusing, if it were not saddening, to note how, on boards, financial magnates often manifest a feeling that their opinions are to be measured not by their rationality but by the speaker's wealth or prestige, and coolly ignore the opinions of the members who cannot be counted on to contribute much. It is difficult, indeed, in this world where money counts for so much, not only for pleasure and comfort, but also for philanthropy and all good causes, to appreciate adequately the inefficacy of money for higher purposes unless it is supplemented by the spiritual forces of cooperation, loyalty, interest, enthusiasm. The decay of many a highly endowed Church or institution has been brought about by an oligarchy's running things to please itself and ignoring the wishes of the congregation or members.

I am convinced that the election of the Vestry by a Parish Meeting is a source of power and not an element of weakness in the life of St. Stephen's. For years before we received the large increase to our endowments, St. Stephen's was maintained largely by the contributions from the envelopes, which fully made good the decline in the pew rentals. The worshipers felt that the Church was their Church.

Before closing this letter, I must express my sense of loss in the death of Miss Louzette Cornish. Her loyalty to St. Stephen's was remarkable. When she moved to Texas to become the Superintendent of Nurses in a hospital, I advised her to take a letter of transfer to the local Church. She declined, saying that she intended to keep up her envelopes at St. Stephen's as she wanted to feel that she had a permanent Church-home and her residence in Texas would not continue many years. This proved to be her experience, for she was later connected with hospitals in the North. At intervals she would return to Philadelphia to visit her relations, the Daleys, and would always come to St. Stephen's and speak to me in the Vestry. A noble Christian woman who lived a life of service, death had no terrors for her and she passed from earth in calm confidence that all was well, since she was in the hands of a loving Creator and Merciful Saviour. We might apply to her these lines:

The lights have gone out in the mansion of clay,
  The curtains are drawn, for the dweller's away;
She silently slipped o'er the threshold by night,
  To make her abode in the City of Light.

I am happy to be able to report myself as having regained much of my strength. My heart-beat is normal and my general condition shows marked improvement. I am advised, however, to keep up the rest-cure, and must wait till the end of the summer vacation before I can determine my real status.

With best wishes for the Summer vacation for all,

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

The following verses were written in July, 1927, by a girl of nineteen, in domestic service, and were read to a large congregation by Dr. G. Campbell at one of the services in Westminster Chapel, London.

Lord of all pots and pans and things, since I've no time to be A Saint by doing lovely things, or watching late with Thee,
Or dreaming in the light of dawn, or storming Heaven's gates,
Make me a Saint by getting meals, and washing up the plates.

Although I must have Martha's bonds, I have a Mary mind;
And when I black the boots and shoes, Thy sandals, Lord, I find;
I think of how they trod the earth, what time I scrub the floor;
Accept this meditation, Lord, I haven't time for more.

Warm all the kitchen with Thy love, and light it with Thy peace,
Forgive me all my worrying, and make all grumbling cease.
Thou, who didst love and give men food, in room or by the sea,
Accept this service that I do—I do it unto Thee.

Report of the Accounting Warden

The close of the year 1928 found the Endowment Fund of the Church amounting to $670,438.41, an increase during the year 1928 of approximately $10,000. The largest portion of this increase came from the Estate of Caroline R. Tucker, deceased, amounting to approximately $9700, the same having been received in the latter part of the year. The Endowment Funds are fully invested and all of the securities are in the possession of our fiscal agent.

The receipts for the year 1928 came from the following sources:

Interest on Endowments and Bank Deposits	$40,663.86
Envelope Contributions	2,327.24
Pew Rents	3,035.49
Burd School	500.00
Community House, for Use of Auditorium and Miscellaneous Receipts	256.00
	$46,782.59

and the disbursements were as follows:

Salaries of Clergy and Assistants	$20,230.00
Organist, Music and Choir	9,268.07
Pension Premiums	1,057.50
Diocesan Assessment	1,623.22
Interest on Community House Mortgage	1,700.00
Repairs	4,273.59
Operating Expenses	10,593.53
	$48,745.91

The receipts for Special Parochial Purposes were:

Communion Alms	$1,297.20
Envelope Contributions	1,363.29
Interest on Endowments	1,685.13
Amounting to	$4,345.62

and the disbursements were:

Communion Alms	$1,297.20
Paid to Treasurers of Various Parochial Objects	3,019.79
Amounting to	$4,316.99

The receipts for Diocesan and General Church Objects amounted to $5477.56 and the disbursements were $5478.21.

The Community House Debt Fund has shown a slight progress during the year 1928. In my last report I showed a balance on hand of $647.75 as of the close of 1927. During the year 1928 this sum was augmented by $982.14 and the transfer from the building fund of $591.91, leaving balance on hand as of December 31, 1928, of $2,221.80.

Since December 31, 1928, we have received contributions in the sum of $622.69 so that at the present time we have a balance on hand of $2844.49. It is expected that we shall be able to make a reduction during the year 1929 of at least $3000 against the Community House Debt and bring it down to $31,000. It is the desire of the Rector and the Vestry that some very sustained effort be made to the end that we may wipe out entirely the Community House Debt.

The receipts from envelope contributions for general church purposes and pew rent receipts showed a falling off of about $575 for the year 1928 as against 1927.

The receipts for communion alms and envelope contributions for special purposes ran slightly in excess of 1927 and that is an encouraging fact in view of the obligations in connection with outside objects.

The total expenses for the year 1928 ran in excess of the year 1927 and the year closed with a deficit. The Church was met with some unexpected and unusual expenses and repairs, etc.

It is to be hoped that without in any way diminishing the contributions to Diocesan purposes that the members of the parish will continue to maintain their contributions towards the parochial needs and parochial charities and that the same loyal support will continue to be given to our Church. With its unique position and substantial Endowment Fund we are in a position to continue and enlarge upon the most useful work.

Respectfully submitted,

I. Smith Raspin.

Report of Lenten Services and Wednesday Noon-day Services

Lenten Services

In presenting the annual report of these two services the Treasurer has no special comment to make which differs from the satisfactory reports submitted in former years.

The high standard of the Lenten Addresses was maintained, being delivered by those who have been with us in the past and others who spoke at these services for the first time.

While the attendance was less than in previous years, due to weather conditions, about 14,000 attended the services, culminating on Good Friday with a congregation which filled the church to its utmost capacity. Mr. Kevin officiated in the absence of Dr. Grammer, whose presence was prevented owing to his convalescence from his serious illness, and whose absence caused universal regret among his many friends who attended these services.

Wednesday Services

These services continue throughout the entire year and are marked with their usual popularity. A good average attendance is maintained and the generous voluntary contributions are sufficient for the necessary expenses.

Report of the Benevolent Society

Since submitting the last report, another milestone has been reached in the history of the Benevolent Society, completing almost a half century of successful operation.

The season for 1928 and 1929 was uneventful. There was the usual plea for "more work, more work." This year no sets of teeth were required, but one faithful woman was given extra work to help pay for much-needed glasses.

Nine thousand four hundred and fifty-two articles were made for the usual number of hospitals and institutions.

The following donations enabled us to give more work than we could otherwise have done, and to keep the society open another week:

Miss Ewing	$100.00
Mrs. John Coats Browne	100.00
Mrs. Pancoast	5.00
Mrs. Reath	5.00
Miss Porter	5.00
Dr. Cooper	5.00
The Misses Davis	15.00
	$235.00

The Rummage Sale, held last October, netted us $251.90, a small sum considering the time and energy expended. However, we feel that it is not alone the money realized from such sales that repay us for our work but also the fact that many worthy people can purchase, at a small price, what they would refuse to accept as charity. Another sale will be held next fall, and we earnestly request our friends to send their discarded furniture and clothing, thus helping the good work along. Donations may be sent at any time addressd to the Benevolent Society.

At the last meeting, held May 10th, the usual luncheon was served and was enjoyed by guests ranging in age from eighty-seven years to three months, the latter the twelfth child of Mrs. Blomquist. He behaved beautifully not violating the eighteenth amendment, though emptying his bottle not once but several times.

In the death of Mrs. Hall, we have lost our oldest member, in age and years of service. She was a faithful and loyal friend to the society and will be greatly missed.

Isabel P. Davis,
Secretary.

The Woman's Auxiliary

As is customary, the Woman's Auxiliary has held seven stated meetings during the season, beginning with a corporate Communion preceding the first meeting in October; the average attendance has been seventeen, with the addition of three new members, and a loss by death of three members. Mrs. Mann, a delegate to the Pennsylvania Branch, was a devoted member and is much missed.

In November, Miss Bright, as Treasurer of the United Thank Offering, gave an interesting paper on the work of that organization, and made an earnest plea for more subscribers, so that the women in the field might be sure of support from those at home, and thus feel encouraged by the thought that others were mindful of their welfare.

December is the month when Mrs. Reath sends a splendid missionary box to gladden the heart of some missionary at Christmas time, and this year the grateful recipient in Nevada was supplied with an entire winter outfit. Miss Roberts despatched several boxes of books, toys and knitted articles where needed, and Miss Thackara remembered the Indians with articles desired by them.

In January Miss Florence Drinker addressed the Auxiliary and gave a vivid picture of her work among the mountaineers of North Carolina, and showed specimens of heir handicraft. She was given twenty-five dollars to hire a horse from time to time when she has to cross the mountains near Linville to reach one of the schools where she teaches.

Despite another stormy morning nine members came in February to make their reports and to listen to those of others; however, twenty-two members assembled in March to hear Mrs. J. Cheston Morris tell of the Corporate Gift, which is a pledge of the women for advance work, as the National Council had planned the budget for current expenses only, and nothing beyond. Fired by the inspiration of Auxiliary meetings at the General Convention in Washington, and at the request of Bishop Murray, the Woman's Auxiliary undertook to raise a Corporate Gift of fifty thousand dollars for advance work by Epiphany 1930. It is wonderful to record that the gift has already reached twenty-seven thousand five hundred dollars, which means that the first unit of the four objectives is assured, viz.: the building of Christ Church, Santo Domingo City, Dominican Republic. St. Stephen's made a small contribution of twenty-five dollars and fifty cents toward this fund, and has paid her share of all the pledges expected from her through the different committees up-to-date.

The April meeting was crowded with notices of opportunities for instruction, devotion and pleasant reunions, stress being laid on the Summer Conferences to be held in different sections of the country, with a recommendation that one or more members from every parish should attend one of these conferences this summer, and take up the subject of "The World Mission of Christianity," the textbook for next year's Mission Study classes. The closing session of the Educational Department was held in the Community House on April 4th, with a very large attendance, and the following statistics show the interest displayed. There were classes in fifty parishes for six consecutive weeks from Advent to Easter and the combined attendance was one thousand three hundred and forty-two, of whom twenty were men. All these women are thoroughly conversant with the modus operandi of missions and have quickly assimilated all such information and have given their loyal support which is the avowed work of the Auxiliary. Incidentally their offering that evening amounted to one thousand six hundred and seventy-two dollars, to be used for equipment for St. Mark's Memorial Hospital Cape Palmas, Liberia, as Liberia was the study for the year. This is a signal example of what education has accomplished in this Diocese.

The seven meetings held by St. Stephen's Auxiliary and the monthly meetings attended by the faithful delegates represent a total of twenty-four hours only spent in furthering the cause of missions. It is well to be associated with good works, and cannot every woman in the parish spare one day out of the three hundred and sixty-five of the year, to share in the work of the Auxiliary in whatsoever way she can, to add to the spiritual growth of all, and strengthen her love for Christ and His Church?

Laura Bell,
President.

Report of Treasurer of the Woman's United Thank Offering of St. Stephen's Church

The United Thank Offering of 1928 was presented at the first service ever held in the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, Mt. St. Alban, Washington, D. C., on October 11th.

The whole offering amounted to $1,101,450.40, that of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, to $94,305.55, the largest ever given by this State, and over $9,000 greater than the offering of 1925.

The contribution of St. Stephen's Church towards this sum was $745.00 and in addition a memorial to Miss Elizabeth C. Washington was raised by members of St. Stephen's Church and by other friends.

On Thursday, April 25th, 1929, at the spring presentation service in the Church of the Holy Apostles, your treasurer placed in the Alms Basin a check for $175.00 representing the contributions of 40 members of this congregation, towards the next triennial offering. There is at present, in the account at the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities a balance of six dollars.

Respectfully submitted,
Mary De Haven Bright,
Treasurer.

Altar Society

The thirty-fifth annual report of the Altar Society is herewith submitted. During the year five communion veils and six new surplices have been made and the old surplices repaired. Thanks are due to Miss Moore for her gift of six stole collars. Miss Thackara made a plea for any old altar hangings that we could not use in our services, but which could be of use in the Indian Mission in South Dakota. Dr. Grammer has granted permission to send them an old fair linen cloth and the purple altar hangings which have not been in use since we received Mrs. Taylor's gift of an entire new set of purple vestments.

Yearly Report of St. Stephen's Branch of the Girl's Friendly Society

This past winter has been a most active and happy one with the G. F. S. Inspired by the untiring efforts of our new President, Miss Blanche Moore, we have worked unceasingly for our Special Effort Fund, with the splendid result of more than $560.00, the largest amount we have ever been able to raise. Our Rummage Sale netted us $183.00. We followed with a Luncheon and Card Party at the Food Craft Shop, and a Waffle Luncheon was given at the home of one of our members. We have had a number of prominent speakers, who gave us very interesting evenings. Mrs. Bessie Dobson Altemus spoke to us on "The Coming Election"—Mrs. Gosin on "Russia." Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom gave us an interesting talk. Mr. Wm. Sharpless gave us a moving picture talk on "My Trip to Europe." Doctor Rachel Williams spoke to us on "Health." Doctor Wm. Moore gave us an illustrated talk on "Yellowstone Park." We had a talk on the Hawaiian Islands and Africa.

Lessons were given in Lamp Shade Making, Bridge, and Miss Anne Daley conducted our Current Events Class, which was most interesting. We sent two filled bags to the school children in Mexico, through the Committee on World Friendship. One of the children acknowledged receipt of her bag and sent us her picture. We filled one hundred stockings at Christmas, with candy and toys, and these were sent as usual to the Philadelphia General Hospital.

Parties were given in the Community House at Hallowe'en, Thanksgiving, Christmas, St. Valentine's Day, and on Special Effort Night, a Minstrel Show was given by the Entertainment Committee, which was excellently presented.

We have had trips to Longwood Gardens, The Graphic Sketch Club, and the Breyer Ice Cream Company Plant. On May 18th, we expect to visit the Museum and Philadelphia Library. We will close for the season on May 27th, with a Strawberry Festival.

We miss the kindly presence of our beloved Associate, Mrs. Louis Hall, who was taken from us by death, and the memory of her sweetness and goodness will live long in our hearts.

We feel that we have had a most successful season, and we are deeply grateful to the Associates and to our Branch President, Miss Moore, for the help and encouragement they have given us to make it so.

Respectfully submitted,
Hedwig L. Kauffman,
Secretary.

Burd School

A couple of years ago when Miss Shipley, Field Representative of the Department of Welfare at Harrisburg, visited the Burd School, she found certain conditions which seemed to elicit her criticism. It is, therefore, a great pleasure to quote from a letter recently received by Dr. Grammer from Mrs. E. S. H. McCauley, Secretary of Welfare, after an inspection made this year:

"It is with pleasure that I have read the report of our field representative, Miss Shipley, on her recent visit to the Burd School.

Last year, I remember, we were somewhat troubled by the situation which seemed to exist in the absence of your Principal, Miss Tappen. Now that we find her again in charge, the difference in atmosphere is marked.

"It is a pleasure to know of the homelike and beautiful surroundings in which the Burd School girls live and of the real interest which is taken in giving to them every possible cultural advantage, as well as very homelike surroundings. Your school is almost unique among the institutions in Pennsylvania in this type of service.

"We were particularly interested to learn of Miss Tappen's concern in regard to raising the standard of those who have direct supervision of the children. The importance of personnel is a point which we are endeavoring to emphasize all over the State, as we feel it fundamental to good work for children. Your institution in its particularly favored financial situation should certainly lead in this respect, as it does in the matter of the educational advantages which you so generously offer to those in your care. We hope that you may be able to secure as assistants to Miss Tappen, the really superior type of person, who in education, understanding and love of children may have something of the life-giving quality to pass on to the children which is so evident in your principal.

Very sincerely yours,
MRS. E. S. H. MCCAULEY,
Secretary of Welfare."

During the year we have parted with two of our girls, one of them graduated, finishing her connection with the school, while the other left us to join her sister in Carson College. There are at present seven little girls on probation awaiting admission to the School. Eight girls were confirmed during Lent. Reports from our girls in their various colleges continue to give satisfaction. During the summer our college girls take positions as counsellors in camps, and waitresses in hotels. Many of these asked permission to spend their Christmas holidays at the school, each and all expressing a feeling of homesickness, and a desire to be back once more in the Burd School. In order to grant their requests, it was necessary for Miss Tappen to forego her usual Christmas holiday. Burd School Day will be celebrated on May 25th. It is hoped that all friends and members of the congregation will avail themselves of this opportunity to visit the school.

Thanks are due to the various members of the Board of Visitors for their cooperation and interest.

Respectfully submitted,
Emily K. Campbell,
Chairman.

High honor has been conferred upon Adelaide Stuart Mastick, of the Burd School and St. Stephen's Sunday School by the graduating class of four hundred boys and girls of the West Philadelphia High School. Each year the most popular member of the class is chosen by vote of its student body. Recently, almost by acclamation, the choice rested upon Adelaide. She is seventeen years old and graduates in June. For nine years she has won the Mrs. John F. Combs prize given by the Burd School for the highest average in scholastic work.

Adelaide has a series of honors behind her. When she graduated from the Shaw Junior High School, she was President of her class. In her Junior year in High School she was again President of her class. Through her Senior year she has been regularly a member of the Class Council. In September she will go to the University of Pennsylvania. The congregation of St. Stephen's, of which she is a member, wishes her every happiness and success and many more achievements in her college work.

The Parish Visitor

From May 15th, 1928, to May 15th, 1929, the Parish Visitor made 368 calls on 104 different persons and $764 was used in giving help.

With the generous cooperation of Mr. Howard Reifsnyder, and Mr. Craig Atmore at Christmas time, 87 baskets filled with poultry, vegetables, fruit and mince pies, also 10 bags of fruit with a mince pie in each bag, were given to those applicants who would otherwise have had no Christmas joy.

During the winter 7 layettes, 27 pairs of shoes, and 33 pairs of rubbers were appreciated by those receiving them.

All contributions of clothing were used to good advantage, and every Monday the flowers from the Altar were taken to some one ill or in trouble.

Special mention should be made of the care the Episcopal Hospital gave to several of St. Stephen's members, and also of the financial aid St. Stephen's gave to a woman, now being restored to health, after two serious operations.

Through the generosity of a St. Stephen's member, monthly aid has been given to two women. One had cancer of the breast and died recently, the other has eye trouble and is being relieved.

Through Mr. Atmore, coal was secured at half price for a widow.

Many appeals for transportation were refused as there were no funds for that purpose, but when men were almost hysterical from hunger, help would be given.

Due to unemployment and influenza several families needed extra help.

St. Stephen's patient in the Home for Consumptives, Chestnut Hill, has been well cared for throughout the year and he is grateful for all he has received.

Thanking those who have assisted the Parish Visitor with their generosity and sympathy, this report is respectfully submitted.

Idella W. Higham,
Parish Visitor.

Mothers' Meeting

The Mothers' Meeting has 180 names on the roll with 16 new members, and 3 deaths.

We have had an average attendance of about 75.

Dr. Grammer was sadly missed especially at the last meeting at which it is his custom to so happily preside, and at the Summer Outing where he and Mrs. Grammer add so much to the pleasure of the occasion.

We were thankful however to have him with us on two evenings during the season.

At our closing meeting on April 25th, we were delightfully entertained by Miss Mary Page Grammer who in Spanish costume gave us an evening of songs in many languages.

We were happy also to have Mr. Kevin with us at that meeting.

Our Summer Outing was a boat trip to Riverview Beach, enjoyed by about 130 persons.

Mr. and Mrs. Kevin and Mr. Carrigan accompanied us and were most helpful in carrying out the arrangements.

We have made our usual contribution of $120.00 to the Diocesan Campaign Fund, $100.00 to Dr. Grammer for the Community House, to be added to the dumb-waiter fund; $5.00 for Palm Sunday Altar decorations, and flowers for sickness and deaths in the membership. We also shared in gift of Dr. Grammer's new hood.

Our thanks are due to Mr. Kevin and the Players' Guild for the benefit performance which netted us $65.00 for our funds.

Respectfully submitted,

Blanche M. Harper,
President.

Report of "Whatsoever" Circle of King's Daughters of St. Stephen's Church

This Circle has held sixteen meetings during the past season. We now have eighteen members on our roll, but owing to sickness and death several members have been unable to be with us part of the time, resulting in an average attendance of ten.

Our evenings commence with supper at 6 o'clock and about 7.30 we are ready to start sewing, which this year has been entirely devoted to making clothing for the Hope Day Nursery. We have about 50 articles finished and ready to be sent there. At Christmas we filled two dozen stockings for the children at the Day Nursery, and gave a contribution to the Church Christmas baskets. We also sent a small gift to each inmate of the King's Daughters' Home at Narberth.

In place of our usual Cake and Candy Sale, we this season gave a dinner and card party, which not only netted us $80.00, but proved also to be a very enjoyable affair. We have designated that our yearly contribution of $100.00 to the Community House shall be added to the fund being raised for installation of an electric waiter—a much-needed improvement.

One new member has joined our Circle this season.

Bertha T. Walshe,
President.

Church Periodical Club

The Church Periodical Club has a very definite ideal of service. The reading matter which it sends to missionaries, shut-ins, and lonely people brings them in contact with the world outside their own environment and makes them mentally alert. The friendly spirit and the constant thought shown by the regular sending of magazines is a comfort in loneliness and keeps up the morale.

Thirty-five members of St. Stephen's continue to send regularly their current magazines and forty-two subscriptions are entered in the names of the recipients. Five of these still go to the soldier boys at Camp McClellan, near Anniston, Alabama.

Calendars are mailed at New Year's and cards are sent at Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter.

Many magazines are taken to Jefferson Hospital.

Books were sent to St. Martha's House and also to the Community Library which is being operated by the Rev. Mr. Crosby, at St. Elizabeth's Church.

Money was given towards purchasing books for Dr. Teusler's Medical Library at St. Luke's Hospital, in Tokyo, Japan.

Many letters of appreciation are received and all those of us who help the work of the Church Periodical Club are very sure to feel the thrill of deeds performed in a righteous cause.

Mary M. Roberts,
Librarian.

Young People's Fellowship

The second year of the Fellowship really began last June 8th, when at a dinner in the Community House, elections for the coming year were made and the local Fellowship was addressed by several of the Diocesan officers.

The Fellowship meets regularly on Sunday nights in the Guild Room of the Church at 7 P. M. Its purpose is to discuss and become acquainted with the major religious, social and economic problems of the day insofar as they affect the young people of the Church and the young people have opportunity to improve them.

The opening activity of the Fall season was a meeting in St. Stephen's Church of all the Fellowships of the Diocese. Bishop Nathaniel Thomas was the speaker. Our own Fellowship was host to the Diocesan representatives.

Shortly thereafter the Fellowship assumed the responsibility of securing and erecting a suitable memorial to Miss Kate Lewis. In this we were aided largely by Mr. Reifsnyder, whose loss we have greatly felt. At Christmas time the Fellowship undertook the work of filling the Christmas baskets for the poor and assisting in their distribution.

The Fifth Annual Convention of the Young People's Fellowships of the Province of Washington, April 26th, 27th and 28th, met in St. Stephen's Church on its opening night. Our Fellowship was then host to approximately 400 young people from the province who met here for the sessions.

On Friday night, May 17th, the election of officers for the coming year and the annual party of the Fellowship will take place. In this the Dramatic Guild will combine with us.

Respectfully submitted,
Ruth Brown.

Young People's Club

We started our club work for the year on June 2nd, taking 40 children to the Zoo; a number of our young people went along to look after them. At 4 o'clock we gave them sandwiches, milk, ice cream and cake and sent them home in a bus, a tired but happy lot.

Our last meeting for the season was on June 6th.

We began our Fall work with a musical in November, to raise money for our charity fund. It was very well attended and everyone seemed to enjoy it.

We had our children's party at Christmas time, entertaining about 25.

We have contributed to the Red Cross—the fund to purchase a hood for Dr. Grammer—and to the Community House Fund.

On account of the unavoidable absence of some of our officers during January, February and March the work we had planned could not be done. We are hoping to increase our work next season, and do more to make those less fortunate happy.

Hannah G. Reifsnyder,
President.

Report of the Sunday School

In the year just past the Sunday School has been passing through a period of reorganization which inevitably affected its attendance. This was felt particularly in the upper school where approximately ten members have left. This number has been compensated for by a growth in both the upper school and in the primary department. In the latter case the membership has about tripled in one year. The number on the roll is just 100. Of these approximately 75 attend. Last Sunday when 76 were present the average was apparent. Of the average attendance, about one-half are members of the Burd School.

Among the innovations has been a staff of paid teachers. These in each case are especially trained in educational work, most of them being either college graduates or college students engaged in studying pedagogy and religious education. The teachers are paid in most cases, although the students at the Church Training School and Deaconess House who have Sunday School classes, and two other teachers refuse to accept any compensation for their services. In addition to the change in personnel, one of the most modern and scientifically correct courses of instruction in religious education has been installed with strikingly good results.

Particular attention should be called to the Children's Garden which is the new name of the primary department. Three teachers and assistants are in charge of the manifold activities in which they engage. In securing Miss Kilpatrick as head of this department, we were exceedingly fortunate. In another church she built this department up from a membership of 6 to about 60 within about three years. At the rate we are growing, from a membership of about 8 last year to 24 this year, the 60 mark should be reached at St. Stephen's in three years as well.

In the upper school, Biblical pageants, debates on religious topics, etc., have varied the regular work. The Christmas entertainment presented by the Sunday School, was a dramatic version of the Dicken's Christmas Carol; and the Easter pageant, a lovely setting of Tennyson's Consecration of Sir Galahad. The annual Lenten and mite-box effort resulted in a missionary contribution of $170, in which all the classes took part, varying their activities from the making of preserves to aprons, pot holders and useful household accessories. Sewing classes throughout Lent met for this purpose. A ritualistic feature, not entirely according to the traditions of St. Stephen's Church, but not yet with apparent calamitous results, was the installation of an improvised altar upon the stage during the Sunday School sessions. Its one effective result was to cultivate a serious devotional spirit that made unnecessary the repeated and constant calls to order in previous years. A report system was introduced, and quarterly reports given to the students. This marked their conduct, their attendance, punctuality and quality of their work. The grade of work was uniformly good. In conclusion, may I say, that the results of the year have been so promising that I can see no good reason for ever abandoning a Sunday School in this section of the city.

Respectfully submitted,
Robert Kevin,
Superintendent.

Girl Scout Troop

May 15, 1929.

To the Members of St. Stephen's Parish:

I regret that the Girl Scout Troop of St. Stephen's Church will not be represented at the Parochial Meeting on Wednesday evening. Unfortunately the City Scout organization is having a function on the same date, and as our troop has entered a drill contest it will be necessary for all the members to be there.

Some of the activities of the Pollyanna Girl Scout Troop 110 for the past year have been:

(1) Distribution and donation of gifts and toys; 40 to one hospital, 25 to another, and 25 to the Children's Day Nursery.

(2) Taking care of families by furnishing food and clothing.

(3) Taking special interest in a boy in the Philadelphia Hospital, who had broken his back.

(4) Donation of 3 boxes of merchandise to the Goodwill Association for Aged, 22nd and Christian Streets.

(5) Holding a rummage sale.

(6) Selling candy to meet current expenses.

(7) Organizing two new Girl Scout Troops; one in New Jersey and one in Cornwells, Pa.

Our troop is quite small, but we are hoping that next year more girls from St. Stephen's will join us.

With great appreciation of the kind favors which we have received from St. Stephen's, I am

Sincerely yours,
Captain Margaret Schaller.

Annual Report of Boy Scouts of America Troop 2

We have at the present time twenty-two boys registered in our troop. Although this is a decrease in number from last year, it is by no means alarming, as twenty-two good scouts are worth sixty otherwise.

During the year the troop has had an average of four hikes a month. These hikes were well attended and the spirit shown in passing test was exceptionally good. The summer encampment was held at Treasure Island, the official Scout Camp, where fifteen of our scouts spent one week in the open. Instead of relating to you the many honors they won I would rather have you pay us a visit at one of our meetings so I can personally show you the rewards they brought back with them.

In order that more interest might be taken in test passing I offered a prize to the boys who advance the most for a period of three months. This stirred a considerable amount of enthusiasm and the victors were as follows: Harry Blomquist, Fred Schmid, Leon Snyderman.

The prize consisted of a sash for Merit Badges.

About ten boys have advanced to Second Class and seven boys to First Class. At the last Court of Honor three of our Scouts, namely, Fred Schmid, Richard F. Grindler, and Leon Snydermann, were advanced to the rank of Star Scouts. Before attaining this rank a scout must be First Class and have passed at least five merit badges. At the previous Court of Honor I had the honor of having the Court of Honor Committee present me with a Veteran Pin for fifteen year's service in the Scout Movement.

During the months of January, February and March, we competed in the Inter-Troop District Contest and held the lead in all the preliminary events. In the semi-finals we tied with Troop 22 and after a courageous battle lost to them. We are now preparing to enter the City Camping Contest, to be held on Saturday, May 18th, at Camp Biddle. The boys tell me they're going to win. Well, I hope they do.

Due to the great demand for leadership in Scouting and the growth of the organization, we have lost all our Assistant Scout Masters. Mr. Hopkins has organized a troop in Haddonfield, and Mr. McKenna and Mr. Nolan are at large in the district giving their assistance to the rebuilding of a troop at the Elliott House.

During the Christmas holidays we put on a minstrel show for the Sunday School and repeated it in February for the Mother's Meeting. At the present time we are working on a play to be given on June 27th, from which the proceeds will be used for our summer encampment. As camping is probably the most important activity in Scouting I ask the hearty cooperation of the parish in helping us make this play and dance a success. The boys will appreciate this sign of gratitude for their good efforts during the year.

The Scout Troop of this parish is at your service. If we can at any time be of any assistance to the various organizations in the parish do not hesitate to let us show you we are prepared to Do Our Good Turn Daily.

R. M. Robinson,
Scout Master, Troop 2.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

One of the great advantages of a summer vacation is that it makes us realize the comforts and advantages that we enjoy in our homes. It is good for a season to get rid of social obligations and the complexities of a city life, and live in plain rooms close to the glorious woods and streams, to see the flaming sunsets, to hear the rustle of leaves and the twitter of birds, and to gladden one's eyes with the changing tints of mountain and valley, with the green of the foreground and the blue of the distant hills in the background. There is a charm, too, in the simple religious service in the quiet church, and the long, quiet Sunday.

But there is also a great thrill in getting back. How manifold are the comforts and facilities that we enjoy. People are, after all, superior in interest to inanimate things, however beautiful they may be. Work is really more satisfying than play. The tasks of life constitute a large part of the interest of life. Duties are not merely responsibilities and tests, they are also fortresses against ennui and lassitude, they are stimulants and incentives, and when faithfully performed, they are comforts and delights. How much more satisfying is a duty, performed as to the Lord and not to men, than self-expression.

It will be pleasant to worship again in St. Stephen's. I take little pleasure in gloomy churches. Durham Cathedral is magnificent, but I always think of Scott's line, "Half house of God, half fort against the Scot." One Durham is enough. Most churches should suggest peace and joy. The worship of a God of Love ought to be predominantly cheerful and the architecture ought to help to create that frame of mind. St. Stephen's, with its bright lights, its lovely windows, its exquisite reredos, its cheerful chancel, suits me exactly. To my mind the memorials are not gloomy. They speak of victorious lives, and saints who have entered into rest. Surely the Angel of the Resurrection is a cheerful figure. I shall be glad, too, to hear again our choir, in which there is no invidious elimination of women, and music is rendered by natural and not by unnatural voices, and the organ is played by an accomplished musician.

It has been interesting to hear this summer the comments of various people on the voices of ministers. I confess that I am not an admirer of what is called a churchly voice, that is to say, a voice which holds to an unnatural pitch and keeps an unnatural monotony of inflection. The preference of such reading to a natural, interpretative reading, in which the tone changes to suit the sentiment and the emphasis falls on the significant words and is not controlled by the cadence, reminds me of the celebrated description in Joseph Andrews of the rustic at the theater who showered his praise on the stilted actor, and said as for the much-praised Mr. Garrick (who was acting the part of a frightened person), there was no merit in his acting because anyone could see that he was really scared. Yet one thing is to be said for churchly tones, and that is that they are usually distinct and carry well. Moreover, anything is better than slovenly, careless reading.

When this paper reaches you, Bishop Taitt will be our Bishop-Coadjutor. All of us intend to give him a cordial welcome to his new office and a hearty support. Years ago he was elected a Missionary Bishop by the General Church, and was obliged to decline on account of his mother's age and ill-health. His filial piety has not been unrewarded and he will now be a bishop in the diocese where he has his closest friends and the dearest ties.

It is a pity that the office of a bishop in our Church is encumbered with such excessive reverence and such superstitious theories of its necessity to the full efficacy of the sacraments. It is hard on a bishop, who wants to be simple, natural, human and companionable, when he is treated as a repository of sacramental grace, whose ring is to be kissed, and whose authority is supreme in matters of faith, "whose very presence is a witness of the resurrection." The office is sufficiently great without such additions. It calls for gifts of administration, for statesmanship, for wide vision, for knowledge of men and affairs, and for insight into the needs of the day and for a firm grasp of the spirit and essential truths of Christianity. Its authority is definitely fixed by the law of the Church, but its influence steadily grows when the occupant is a wise and brave man and extends far beyond the bounds of his canonical rule. The Church being a society of people baptized into the same spirit, it is most becoming that the power of its chief officer should reside in influence, a spiritual potency, rather than in authority or the rule of law.

It amazes me how few people appreciate the constitutional government that we enjoy in the Episcopal Church. An intelligent layman, who knew more of the Army and Navy than of the Church, once asked me whether we were not compelled to write our sermons so that the Bishop could keep track of our teaching in the pulpit. I have known people trained in our Church from infancy ask indignantly, when some clergyman has offended against taste or good sense, "Why doesn't the Bishop silence him? What can the Bishop be thinking about to let such a man preach?" It is only just to our bishops to assert roundly that they have no such power. Before they are consecrated they promise to exercise their authority according to the Constitution and Canons of the General Church, and of their respective dioceses. Before a clergyman can be disciplined, he must be condemned by a court of his peers. Just as the Mayor cannot put a citizen in jail, but there is a machinery of justice in the State, so there is a machinery of justice in the Church.

There are some people who wish to put the clergy under the personal rule of the bishop. But they are very medievally minded people. Most of us consider a personal government a tyrannical government. We appreciate that authority and freedom can only be united when authority is exercised according to law. One of my objections to the Cathedral system is that its advocates hold that the Cathedral services are to be a norm for the diocese. Thus a tyranny of fashion is to be set up. It is to be bad taste to have the kind of service that the Bishop does not like. Against all such tyrannies we ought to set our faces. There has been far too much regimentation of worship in the Episcopal Church. The greater the flexibility the better.

Some one may think that I am not consistent because while advocating flexibility and freedom I am opposed to the official sanctioning of reservation of the elements. But it seems to me that the reproach is not just. The elements are being reserved and adored in some of our Churches, and I am not invoking the law against those rectors. They do this on their own responsibility. The Church is only thus far responsible, that it does not think this uncanonical conduct of sufficient importance to try them, or discipline them. It tolerates their practices, but it does not sanction or approve. I am willing to continue to tolerate, but I am strenuously opposed to sanctioning a use that I regard as a superstitious and hurtful accretion.

As this paper reaches many who are not always at church on Sunday morning, I repeat here what I shall say on Sunday about my health. I have gained in health and strength beyond my most sanguine expectations in the early part of the summer. In the last three weeks I have played nine holes of golf a number of times without excessive fatigue and with beneficial results. I shall now see whether I have the strength for resuming the preaching and administration of the Parish. I shall at first restrict myself to preaching on Sunday morning, which is, by the way, all that Dr. Huntington did for years at Grace Church. I shall be guided by the results.

May God give us His blessings through the coming year and make the experience that I have had of His goodness and sustaining power a source of blessing and comfort to others.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

PRAYER FOR OUR HOMES

Help us to make our homes a place of love,
A place of prayer,
A place of all-beautiful living,
A place sweet with heaven's fragrance.
Help us to live each for the other,
And to find our happiness in doing good and denying ourselves.
O dear Lord, love these homes of ours
And all who dwell therein.
Care for our bodies, bless our hearts,
And keep our lives from sin.
God make our homes a place of joy
Where love and faith are given.
Make them the dearest place to us,
The nearest place to heaven.

—Dr. Oliver J. Hart.

Through a dusty window the whole world looks dull and ugly. Keep the windows of your soul clean, and life will look wide and clear before you.

At the devil's booth are all things sold; each ounce of dross costs its ounce of gold; 'tis heaven alone that is given away; 'tis only God may be had for the asking.—Lowell.

If we are to save ourselves and those who come after us from a renewal of all we suffered in the great war, we must in our every action, in our every-day conversation, even in our very thoughts, seek peace and ensue it.—Prince of Wales, Armistice Day, 1927.

Summer Diversions

It is so natural that there should be anxiety about my vitality after this long sickness, that I want to prove that this long recovery has not crushed my spirit nor narrowed my interests. I have always been fond, on occasion, of turning off rhymes or verses. One of the sources of congeniality in my long friendship with Captain Bartlett, of the Navy, was our common fondness for that sort of thing. Since he retired and went to California, I have largely given up the habit. This summer, however, at Cragsmoor, I was in a community much given to verse-making, and had near me, in Mrs. Christine Stevens Polk, a devotee of the Art. I was started on this line by my grandson, Donald Torrey, who, when he saw an eagle flying over Rondout Valley, exclaimed that Grandfather would write a poem on this if he were here. I was so much gratified by this expression of confidence in my power to make verses that I wrote the following lines:

ON AN EAGLE FLYING OVER RONDOUT VALLEY

High up on tireless pinion thou dost soar
Confronting wind and sun. Marauder fierce,
Off to thy hunt on Mountain's shaggy side
Or lonely gorge, the haunt of hare or deer.
Hateful to thee the barns and fenced fields,
The Valley's golden grain and gleaming roads,
The clover loved of bees and fragrant grape.
So robber Barons scorned and feared the spread
Of law and trade and arts industrial,
So fierce Apaches watched with hate and dread
The plough carve up the plain and men accept
The drudgery and toil once woman's task.
But strong to strike means ever weak to hold.
Majestic is the might of gentleness.
Worse than the rifled gun, aggressors fear
The spread of Reason and the growth of Law
The Leagues of Nations and the Pacts of Peace.

As I learnt about this time of the ill health of a boyhood friend in Baltimore, who used to make verses, I sent him this greeting:

LINES TO A BOYHOOD FRIEND, C. F.
July, 1929

In Memory of Auld Lang Syne

Years ago, I well recall,
Verses from your pen would fall
Celebrating festive times
With ingenious thoughts and rhymes.
Now life's winter winds are blowing.
Winter snows our heads are showing;
Let memory with its cheerful fire
Revive the boy within the sire.

Bright, indeed, the ruddy glow
Of those days so long ago,
When our talk was mostly chaff
And our wit was chiefly laugh;
When 'twas joy enough to be
In a youthful company.
Rapid then the brawling course
Of stream not distant from its source,
Purling gaily all day long,
Falling, but to make a song.

Now the stream feels Ocean's tide,
On its waters great ships ride;
Many lives are linked with ours,
Many burdens task our powers;
Yet not with youth would we exchange
Our balance and our wider range,
Our knowledge of the 'fore and after,
Our trust that grief will end in laughter.
Now we have a deeper joy
Than the rapture of a boy,
Hear more in the whispering breeze,
See more in the beckoning trees.
In the laughter and the groan
Hear the mellower overtone.
Columbus and his hardy crew
Were but coasters, when we view
Our prospects of adventures new.

—C. E. Grammer.

Then finding the exercise agreeable I wrote lines whenever an opportunity arose.

THE NEED OF IMAGINATION

The many-stringed piano stands
Silent without the player's hands.
Useless the chisel and the stone,
The statue sleeps till genius come.
Voiceless the hills, the vales, the skies,
The grim-faced crags and wooded slopes
Until the poet in us rise
And gives fulfillment to their hopes.

ACKNOWLEDGING A BOX OF CANDY

A new-fashioned dandy
Would give thanks for this candy
In verses both witty and sweet.
But an old-fashioned preacher
Is a much duller creature,
Unapt such occasions to meet.

Yet the box fully merits
Warmest thanks. All who share its Fine flavors are loud in its praise.
After dinner we eat it
In French fashion we treat it
And munch it with many delays.

So oft evil is curled
Within joy in this world,
'Tis a pleasure to find sweetness pure.
May this gift so refined,
Index true of your mind,
Seal a friendship that long will endure.

THE GOLDENROD

I strolled across an upland field,
By winding pathway, rough and dim.
The farmer late had reaped its yield
Of hay and clover, harvest slim,
But near the fence, in unploughed sod,
Grew Autumn's boast—the goldenrod.

With graceful yellow plumes they waved,
Defiance to the blustering breeze.
Their slender stalks as gaily braved,
The blast as any forest trees,
Austere, slight, tall, these flowers fair
Seemed slender girls with golden hair.

Such, thought I, was the peerless Maid
Who saved the day for hopeless France,
Who courage gave to men afraid,
Whose little hand bore sword and lance.
A wild flower she, of peasant stock,
Whose head was bright with golden shock.

Dear wayside plants, how fair you are!
Your rootlets twine about my heart.
Your beauty, scattered near and far,
Stands never haughtily apart,
But flourishes 'mid briars and thorns,
Neglected spots it most adorns.

True symbol of Democracy!
Let lilies stand for ancient France;
The rose, for Tudor royalty,
The thistle let the Scotch advance.
But land of freedom, given by God,
Should take for emblem, Goldenrod.

—C. E. G.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH

(Gounod)

Tell me, lovely maiden,
Whither you would go?
Wide-spread is your sail,
Freshening breezes blow.

Ivory is the tall mast
Silken pennons stream.
The rudder is of burnished gold,
Oranges are in the hold.
The sail, an angel's plumy wing,
The cabin-boy, a seraphim.

(Refrain)
Tell Me Lovely Maiden, etc.

Hie you to the inland Baltic
Or the wide Pacific sea,
Or Java's sultry isle?
Perchance to cooling Norway go
To gather flowers by the snow,
The summer to beguile?

(Refrain)

"Take me," said the maiden softly,
"To the coast where love abides,
His constant seat and home."
That land, alas! my dearest dear,
I seek in vain, both far and near,
Gay Love will ever roam.

(Refrain)

"Whatsoever" Circle of King's Daughters

The King's Daughters will hold their first meeting on Tuesday evening, October 1st, and will be glad to welcome any one who cares to join the society. Our work varies as the need is presented, but at our meetings we are always sewing for some worthy object. On Tuesday evening, October 29th, we will have a card party—the purpose being to raise funds for an aged couple who are nearly destitute. We hope all our friends will come and help us have a large sum for these old folks who until now have always been able to do for themselves. Tickets may be had from Mr. Carrigan or from any member of our Society.

Woman's Auxiliary

The first meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Stephen's will be held on Thursday, October 17th. A Corporate Communion Service will be held at 10.30 in the Church, immediately followed by a meeting in the Guild Room.

Benevolent Society

The Benevolent Society starts its activities the first Wednesday in November. The Annual Rummage Sale will be held about November 15th. Members of the congregation are urgently requested to send their salable rummage to the Community House in care of Mrs. Bell.

The Sunday School

Although the summer was hot and dry for the most part, the season did not begin until shortly after June 5th, for on that day the Sunday School picnic, which had all the promise that a river excursion gives, was deluged with rain; rain that did not start and stop, but rain that was one long unforgiving, relentless downpour.

St. Stephen's Sunday School had arranged its excursion with that of St. Philip's Church and the Church of the Saviour, West Philadelphia. A Delaware River boat had been engaged for a long and happy day at Riverview Beach. But the weather man thought otherwise, with the result that the Sunday School had the boat-ride and the picnic and plenty of music and dancing, but it was all on the boat. With the versatility and adaptability of children, however, the best was made of the situation and a good time came out of it after all. To make up for the lack of sunshine when the excursion arrived back in the city early in the afternoon, a motion picture in which Doug Fairbanks played one of his most dashing roles, welcomed the entire Sunday School. When that was over, late in the afternoon, and the picnic emerged from the play-house to return to their homes, it was still—raining.

But later in the summer there was a Sunday School party, and for that the weather and the entertainment seemed ideal. A large attendance made up for the earlier disappointment.

The sessions this year begin on the first Sunday in October, with but few changes in the teaching staff. We are looking forward to a profitable year.

Young People's Club

The Young People's Club will give a rummage sale, the proceeds of which will be devoted to charity, on October 23rd, in the basement of the Community House. Members of the congregation are asked to contribute to the sale anything that they can. Rummage will be called for by members of the club on October 21st and 22nd. If those who have rummage to contribute will send word of it by letter or postcard to the Community House, marked for the Young People's Club, it can be collected on those two days.

Mothers' Meeting Outing

How I wish we could go on this picnic so gay,
We should love to cool off in the wave's dashing spray,
We should love to partake of the good things prepared,
And to join in the pleasures, increased because shared.
Such Mothers! Such leaders! Such busses! Such fun!
Nowhere but at our Church are picnics so run.

With this happy encouragement from Dr. Grammer, bidding them Godspeed and joy, one hundred and fifty members of the Mother's Meeting on July 11th left the Community House of St. Stephen's Church to enjoy one of the most pleasurable outings in all its history. Five large busses were needed to transport them to Atlantic City where the day was spent in a variety of delights.

Each year the picnic grows larger and larger as the Mother's Meeting increases in the number of its members, but with that growth there is a corresponding intensity of interest as the older members help to share their experiences with the new. So it was that Mrs. Harper and Mrs. Higham were ably helped in the details of the preparations by a corps of the older members who saw to it that the outing passed as smoothly and as happily as years of experience would permit.

Many of the mothers brought their children, some their infants in arms, so that the age range of those who enjoyed the picnic was from three weeks to eighty years, and the luncheon included suckled bottles as well as quantities of sandwiches, fruit, milk and ice cream.

That it was a Mother's picnic seemed to affect the babies not at all. They looked out upon the immensity of the ocean and the kaleidoscopic entertainment of the pier and boardwalk life with calm and understanding eyes. They, too, were a part of it all.

For many of the mothers it was the only outing and vacation that they would have and their day was filled to the brim with excitement. At 8 o'clock in the morning the caravan began, arriving in Atlantic City without mishap, two hours later. Arrangements had been made to have Young's Pier as the outing headquarters, and the mothers repaired there at once. Within a short time after the attractions of the pier had been examined, the mothers got down to the business of eating lunch. So it was that another hour was consumed, before the boardwalk promenade could commence.

It was the first visit that one mother had made to Atlantic City in forty years, and in that time she remarked, she "Could see a great change in the ocean!" And no wonder, for to those who bathed in it, those who were contented simply to look out upon its vast restless deep, and those who viewed it simply as a background to the picturesque parade of the boardwalk, it was a sea of unceasing change.

As before, Mr. Carrigan was a lieutenant in charge of operations, without equal. No small part of the success of the picnic was due to his foresight in providing for every contingency. Late in the afternoon, if the meeting was to return home before dark, the busses were again assembled and the holiday makers tumbled in, laden down with trophies of their visit. The cool, long, quiet ride back to the heat, and the rush and roar of the city, was a fitting postlude to a day of unmitigated joy.

If your name is to live at all, it is so much more to have it live in people's hearts than only in their brains.—O. W. Holmes.

That best portion of a good man's life; his little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love.—Wordsworth.

Do that which is assigned you, and you cannot hope too much or dare too much.—Emerson.

Who reverenced his conscience as his king; whose glory was redressing human wrong; who spoke no slander, no, nor listened to it.—Tennyson.

The Rector's Letter

My Dear Parishioners:

The last Sunday in November, which falls on the 24th, will also be the last Sunday in the Christian Year. It is also known as "Stir Up" Sunday from the Collect, which runs, "Stir up, we beseech, O Lord, the wills of thy faithful people; that they plenteously bringing forth the fruit of good works may by thee be plenteously rewarded, through Jesus Christ our Lord." With such an animating name and petition for the day, this Sunday seems particularly appropriate for a stirring up of our hearts by an assembly on that Sunday night of all the people who worship in St. Stephen's at any time, or use its Community House during the week. There are really three regular St. Stephen's congregations—the Sunday morning congregation, the Sunday evening congregation, and the Wednesday noonday congregation. Then there are the attendants on the services conducted by the Business Men's Association on Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays, and on the service of the Business Women's Christian League on Tuesdays. Then there are all the organizations of St. Stephen's. What a goodly list it is: Benevolent Society, Woman's Auxiliary, Altar Society, Girls' Friendly Society, King's Daughters, Young People's Club, Young People's Fellowship, Players' Guild, Mothers' Meeting, Periodical Club and Sunday School. We must not overlook the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts.

One purpose of this meeting is to show to those who help to maintain this down-town Church by their gifts, attendance and cooperation, how wide-spread is the influence of the Church and what numbers it benefits. I therefore particularly request every one to make a point of attending that service. I have asked a distinguished clergyman, the Rev. Dr. C. G. Twombly, to preach. I want to make it an occasion of great inspiration and uplift. Please make no engagements for that night and make it a point to attend.

Other special services this month will be November 10th when we shall have a special Armistice Day service on Sunday morning, and a sermon on the responsibility of the Church for helping on the organization of the world for peace, and November 11th, Armistice Day proper, when the Bishop of Pennsylvania has consented to deliver the address at the noonday service, and an appropriate anthem will be sung by Mr. Noah Swayne.

The readers of the Parish News are, I am sure, much pleased with the substitution of the drawing of the Church for the photograph that used to vex the artistic with its queer proportions. It is the handwork of Miss Katherine Page, who has now set up a studio in Washington, D. C.

On my trip back from Sweet Briar College I was on the train which, on Friday, October 25th, was derailed and had its engineer killed. I was in the car next to the engine, and though shaken and for a time in imminent danger, escaped entirely uninjured. As any one can see from reading my Bohlen lectures, I am convinced that everything that happens is permitted by God, whose will is over all our wills, whose mind is cognizant of all our minds, and whose loving care is over all His works. The sudden and violent taking of the engineer is, of course, a mystery, but it is not a sign of God's displeasure with that engineer or his family. So far as I am personally concerned, I should look on such a death at the post of duty as a glorious death, finer than a death upon the field of battle where the soldier falls forward with all his wounds in front. But whatever had happened to me, it would have been well. God can bless us either by life or death. He gave me life and I am grateful. But we would not have had any right to upbraid Him if He had sent death, or pain or mutilation. Reason tells me this, though I might not have the consistency and fortitude to hold fast to it if the worst befell. But that is how I want to feel. Shall the clay tell the Potter, moulding it into a vessel fit for the Master's use, how he must mould the lump? Shall the scholar tell the teacher what the lesson is to be? Shall ignorance dictate to wisdom? Shall the sheep or the shepherd choose the way?

So I preached on Sunday, October 27th, on Providence and showed that a belief in Providential care was a central element in the teaching of Jesus. If we call him Master, let us accept the essential elements of His teaching. It is the fashion, I think, to exalt the Sermon on the Mount somewhat unduly to the disadvantage of the parables. That great sermon does not contain all the religion of Jesus, but it is a valuable part of His message. Nowhere does He teach more emphatically the Divine Control of events. I did not argue the doctrine any further, though there are, of course, strong arguments for it, for I hold that Christianity is a reasonable faith. One test of truth is the beneficent results that flow from a true hypothesis. I dwelt on the benefits that flow from this belief, in the courage that it gives to the sufferer, who feels that pain can be made a discipline, a battlefield on which an important moral victory may be won; in the submission that it creates in bereavement, when Death is looked on as a messenger from God; and in the meekness and humility that it gives to a righteousness that is felt to be due, not to our own goodness so much as to Divine guidance, protection and support. How can the Christian be self-righteous and proud, who knows that God has been a fortress and defence, a sun and shield, a shepherd and friend, and guarded him from temptations too fierce for him to withstand and from burdens too heavy for him to bear?

The payee of a check, which a generous friend has drawn to his order, might as well take credit to himself for signing his name on its back and going to the bank and drawing the money, as a Christian, created by God, sustained by God, redeemed by God's Son, forgiven by God, sanctified by God's Spirit, protected by God's Providence, take credit to himself for his freedom from certain vices and for the peace and security in which he stands.

"Not unto us, not unto us, but to Thy Name," is surely the only rightful attitude.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

The Faith of a Great Soldier

One of the last actions of Earl Haig's life was to set his signature to a letter composed by Sir Henry Newbolt and signed by five distinguished Old Cliftonians. (Clifton was the Public School Haig attended.)

The letter runs: "We look with pride on the spirit and success of the younger generations, and we are moved with a strong desire to send them a message out of the past, in the hope that our experience of life may perhaps here and there lighten a difficulty or confirm a faith. . . . Life has become more controversial; controversy is more violent; the unintelligent are perverting science into a new form of superstition; religion is in danger of being crushed out between the materialistic selfishness of the rich and luxurious, and the materialistic hopes of the overworked and underpaid.

"In the last forty or fifty years we have lived through times of great national prosperity and still greater danger and anxiety. These years have convinced us all that no kind of life is complete, no kind of life can make the world intelligible to us, or give us lasting satisfaction, unless there enters into it the element called Religion. We are not speaking of this or that form of religion, but of the impulse which is expressed in all such forms: the desire to find God in the universe, and to understand our relation to Him. Guidance and lasting satisfaction are, as we believe, to be found only in faith —in the assurance that the life of man progresses by conformity with a Universal Spirit and a divine beauty of character; so that every act and preference of every one of us is of imomrtal consequence, because it either helps or hinders the realization of the order which God is perpetually designing for the world."

This letter was drafted at Earl Haig's suggestion and signed by Sir Henry Newbolt, Sir Herbert Warren, Mr. J. H. Whitley, late Speaker of the House of Commons, and Sir Francis Younghusband, the famous explorer, and Earl Haig.

On the darkest day of all (Sunday, March 24th), Haig appeared as usual at the church service on the ramparts of Montreuil. Duncan, the minister, taking a risk that few of those who served under Haig would have ventured to take, said, as the Chief shook hands with him before the service, "I hope things are not too bad, sir?" "They will never be too bad," replied Haig, and added: "This is what you read to us a few weeks ago in Church, 'Be not afraid nor dismayed by reason of this great multitude, for the battle is not yours, but God's.'" That same evening he was to face the greatest crisis of the war.

Quoted in Field-Marshal Earl Haig
by John Charteris from Dr. Grammer's sermon, Oct. 13th.

Two missionary bishops were elected at the special meeting of the House of Bishops in Atlantic City in October. The Very Rev. Harry Beal, Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, Los Angeles, was elected Bishop of Honolulu. Dean Beal was born in Oneida, N. Y., in 1885; he was graduated from the Cambridge Theological School, and was ordained in 1911. He served in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New York for some years until he went to Cuba, where he was Dean of Holy Trinity Cathedral in Havana, 1923-26, since when he has been in Los Angeles. The Rev. Elmer N. Schmuck, D.D., one of the general secretaries of the National Field Department, was elected Bishop of Wyoming. Dr. Schmuck was born in Peoria, Illinois, in 1882. He was graduated from Seabury Divinity School, which has also given him his doctor's degree, and was ordained in 1905. He served in Minnesota until he became rector of St. Mark's, Denver, in 1923, and since 1925 he has worked in the Field Department. He is the third of that department's secretaries to become bishop, the others being Bishop Barnwell and Bishop Larned.

I do not see how God's work could be done without enthusiasm. A church savors very little of life when its work is done only in a half-hearted and indifferent way by its members. . . . Let us make up our minds to use our Church as a means through which we can come to God and He to us. Let us think of it not as a mere company of individuals, a few of whom we like, more of whom we do not, some of whom we know, and still more of whom are utter strangers, whose life and love are a matter of indifference to us. Let us rather realize and feel even more and more that the Church is God's agency for righteousness, and that all of these people are allied agents in promoting His Kingdom—(Rev.) Malcolm W. Lockhart.

Dedications

Two books, each of them outstanding contributions to the religious literature of the year, within the month of October have been dedicated to St. Stephen's Church and its congregation. The Bohlen Lectures for 1928, "Things That Remain," written by Dr. Grammer, is dedicated to his congregations at St. Stephen's, Philadelphia, and Christ Church, Norfolk. I content myself with merely speaking of it, for it is manifest that either praise or criticism is out of place in this paper, and from one standing as close to Dr. Grammer as the writer. But mention of it ought to be made. The other is "The Allies of Religion," by Dr. Elwood Worcester, former rector of St. Stephen's, and recently resigned from the rectorship of Emmanuel Church, Boston.

"Allies of Religion" is a volume of sermons by Dr. Worcester, taking its name from the address delivered by him here on the occasion of our centennial celebration, February 25, 1923. Several of its paragraphs are historically interesting, and bring out in a striking way the remarkable ministries that have served our parish.

"It is a great joy to me to stand again in this sacred place," said Dr. Worcester, in speaking at our Centennial. "As time is reckoned in America, one hundred years form no inconsiderable fraction of our country's history. When St. Stephen's Church was founded the United States was in its forty-eighth year. President Monroe was serving his second term, having been elected in the ninth general election by a vote that was practically unanimous. In this very year, 1823, he enunciated his famous 'Doctrine,' which on the whole has served our country so well. Three years before, the fourth general census had recorded a population of 9,638,191 persons, of whom nearly eight million were white and more than a million and a half were colored. The Treaty of Ghent which had ended our last war with England was less than ten years old. Our States, including the District of Columbia, numbered twenty-seven. Twenty years before, the vast territory, vaguely termed Louisiana, had been purchased from Napoleon Bonaparte for fifteen million dollars, and Illinois with a population of fifty-three thousand persons, was our westernmost State. At this time, Philadelphia was the second largest city in the United States and contained perhaps one hundred thousand persons. The bitter conflict looking toward the emancipation of the slave had just begun. St. Stephen's Church was designed by the most famous living American architect, William Strickland, who also designed the old Custom House on Chestnut Street, after the model of the Parthenon. Seven years after this parish was founded the first American locomotive was built at West Point, New York; but it soon blew up, as the engineer, annoyed by the sound of escaping steam, had fastened down the safety valve."

"I cannot refrain from expressing my gratitude to God and to you for the years of peace and happiness I spent here. No spot on earth is dearer to me than this old street and this old Church. This was my first parish and I have always retained for it the sweet memories of a first love. Whatever mistakes and weaknesses I was guilty of were the mistakes and weaknesses of youth and inexperience, not of sloth and indifference. Indeed, I have often wondered at the amount of intellectual labor I performed in Philadelphia. Much of my philosophy of religion and life on which I have built ever since, was worked out here and was first offered to you. Much of my study of the Bible and of the religions of mankind, which the overwhelming duties of my later life cut short, was done here and I am unutterably grateful to you for giving me that opportunity. This was largely due to the fact that in those days I was able to work all day and also most of the night. And what I say, I believe all your other rectors, dead and living, would corroborate, were they able to speak—that some of their best and happiest years were spent in this church.

"In my day, Dr. Montgomery, the founder of this parish, had already become merely a name, about which no legends clustered. Dr. Ducachet was remembered for his many witty sayings and aphorisms. The spell of Dr. Rudder's preaching and personality, still lingered. The noble and chivalrous Dr. McConnell was a living power and his was always a name to conjure by; and since my day, Dr. Grammer has done more than we all to conserve St. Stephen's and to perpetuate its power and its influence in the days that are coming."

Dr. Worcester resigned his ministry at Emmanuel Church, Boston, to devote his time to literary work, and to the resumption under somewhat different conditions of the "Emmanuel Movement" of which he was the founder. In collaboration with Dr. Samuel McComb he is writing a volume on "Mental Healing" which is shortly to appear.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

A conference of the Christian Unity League was held in St. George's Church, New York City, on November 13th-15th, 1929. The Church building was lent for the purpose by the Rector and Vestry. When, however, Bishop Manning heard that part of the proceedings would be the celebration of the Lord's Supper by a Presbyterian minister, the Reverend Henry Sloane Coffin, he wrote to the Rector and Vestry, and at the same time published in the New York papers a solemn admonition forbidding such a use of the building as contrary to the Episcopal Church's law whose observance, as its chief officer in that diocese, he felt it necessary to enforce. The Rector and Vestry held that they had a legal and canonical right to lend the building for such a purpose, but yielded the point, as the President of the Church Unity League desired that this course be taken. The Protestant Episcopal clergy attendant on the Conference published in the New York papers, on Friday morning, November 15th, an indignant protest against the action of the Bishop as hurtful to our Church and hostile to the cause of Christian Unity. Your rector's name stood at the head of the list of signers, which included such well known names as Dr. Norwood of St. Bartholomew's, Dr. Melish of Brooklyn, Dr. Beverly D. Tucker, Jr., of Richmond, Dr. Luke White of Montclair, Mr. Opie of North Carolina, Dr. Twombly of Lancaster, Dr. Malcolm Douglas of Short Hills, N. J., Dr. Shipler, Editor of the Churchman, and others.

It seemed that a fuller statement of the argument in behalf of their interpretation of the law of the Church would be helpful. I therefore sent a brief argument to the "Churchman." I think that it will interest the congregation.

The task of giving to a Church a government of law, instead of a government of personal rule was not an easy one, with the historic Episcopate regarded by so many of the bishops and so many of our people as having the right to transcend the canons and over-ride the judgments and convictions of the clergy and laity. Bishop Hobart, one of the chief promulgators of the Divine Right view of the Episcopate, tried to prevent his clergy from meeting together in informal prayer meetings. The Church owes a debt to that great rector of St. George's, Dr. Milnor, who refused to regard such a prohibition as a "godly admonition." In the same way the Evangelical bishops had to over-ride admonitions of High Church bishops forbidding them to attend meetings of the great Evangelical Societies in the dioceses of those High Church bishops. The Church Congress had to over-leap the same barrier at its first sessions. The liberty that the clergy and laity now enjoy was won by resistance to such large claims for the Divine Right of the bishop. It is clear that this incident at St. George's was only an old claim, reasserted in a new form. If we are to have a government by law, it is to be stoutly resisted.

I need not dwell on the injury that this refusal has done to our participation in movements for Church Unity. I am not one of those who think the divisions of Christendom one of the chief causes of unbelief. I think the injury of division is over-estimated in that regard. My desire for Church consolidation is not based on the sin of schism which in many instances, notably in the case of the Methodists and our break with Rome, I regard as no sin at all, but necessary and serving useful purposes. Where the division has meaning, I think that it should be preserved, and that it will only be hurtful to tie the dissidents together more closely. But in many cases the divisions have lost all meaning and are only dissociate groups that could readily work together. In such cases church union is most advisable, and, indeed, a crying need. Moreover, Christian Unity demands that we should acknowledge the Christians in all Churches and the Churches of all Christians, to use Dr. Ainslee's happy phrase. This treatment of the Presbyterian celebration of the Lord's Supper as a desecration of our Church building was an offence against Christian Unity. Here is my article in the Churchman:

BISHOP MANNING'S RECENT STAND.

There can be but little difference of opinion among broad-minded people in regard to the inhibition by Bishop Manning of the loan of St. George's Church to the Christian Unity League for a Communion Service, because a non-Episcopal minister was to celebrate the Lord's Supper. The incident was decidedly unfortunate. Its repercussion among our Protestant brethren is that now at last they know how their rites are looked upon by an Episcopal bishop who claims to be an ardent advocate of Church Unity; the Lord's Supper as celebrated by them is, in his opinion, a desecration of our church building. He is not opposed to the loan of the building for a conference in which there is prayer, teaching and hymn singing. But let one of their number celebrate the Lord's Supper, and the building has been desecrated. In the Bishop's judgment, the lack of Episcopal ordination in the minister makes the Lord's Supper an unhallowed rite. How preposterous are overtures towards Church Unity from a Bishop with such feelings. I have always contended that our Church did not have the right people in charge of our relations to the Protestant world. The good to be brought out of this evil is that the naked reality is disclosed behind Bishop Manning's cloak of appreciation of our Protestant brothers. In spite of his specious words about the Cathedral as a symbol of Christian fellowship, he is the same Manning who, as a presbyter, opposed the Panama Conference. His real aim is absorption and not association. Their most sacred rite is in his eyes a desecration.

The question, however, remains whether the Bishop was not within his canonical rights in issuing this mandate. Many people, misled by analogies from military command, or by usages in other Episcopal Churches, are of that opinion. Yet the protest of the Episcopal members of the Christian Unity League denied that the Bishop has this authority. The public is entitled to an examination of this position. What is wanted is not a pronunciamento, but a reasoned explanation. It is a pity that the Chancellor of the Diocese has not given this. Surely his ground will be something stronger than the Bishop's argument that the 23rd Canon forbids such a use of the building. The title of this Canon runs: "Of Persons not Ministers in this Church officiating in any congregation thereof." The marginal summary reads: "No person to minister in this Church unless duly authorized." Note the capital "C" in Church, which clearly indicates that the organization and not the edifice is meant. The language of the Canon is clear. "No minister in charge of any congregation of this Church or in case of vacancy or absence no Church Wardens, Vestrymen or Trustees of the congregation shall permit any person to officiate therein without sufficient evidence of his being duly licensed or ordained to minister in this Church." (The rest of the Canon refers to special cases and is not pertinent.) The proposed Lord's Supper would not have been celebrated in a congregation of this Church, but in a congregation of the Church Unity League. The Canon therefore does not apply.

But, it may be asked, has not a Bishop a general supervision that justifies him in over-ruling the action of the Rector and Vestry in lending the building? For aught I know this may be true of a Roman Catholic Bishop or of an English Bishop. But the case is different with regard to a Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church. It is a great pity that so many of the English and Canadian clergy never fully grasp the unique features in the Constitution and Canons of our Church. The organizers of the Protestant Episcopal Church were men in love with freedom and constitutional government. They required of our Bishops, before they received Episcopal consecration, the promise of "conformity and obedience to the Doctrine, Discipline and Worship of the Protestant Episcopal Church." Whatever might be the Bishop's views of the source of his authority, it was to be exercised according to our Constitution and Canons which constitute our discipline.

Now, nowhere do the Canons give the Bishop any authority over the Church building. Canon 23 Section II, gives the Rector the use and control of Church and Parish buildings. This is a discretion which is not subject to the Bishop's over-ruling, just as the Bishop has no power of over-ruling a Rector in regard to his discretion about presenting people for Confirmation or administering Baptism. All these belong to a realm where the Church commits the subject matter to the Rector's judgment. His decision is final and subject to no reversal. This is, I believe, the general rule about powers of discretion. They can only be over-ruled where the discretion is exercised with manifest injury to the purposes of the organization, or of public weal. The handling of Church property is clearly such a case. The law of the land is opposed to ownership of real estate by a Church and requires that the title shall be held by a corporation in which laymen predominate. The only restriction on their use is that they shall be governed in its use by the laws of the Church. Our Bishops have agreed to govern according to law. The law of the Church is laid down in the 21st Canon: "For the purposes of his office and for the full and free discharge of all functions and duties pertaining thereto, the Rector shall, at all times, be entitled to the use and control of the Church and Parish Buildings." Who is to decide "what is necessary for the full and free discharge" of his "duties and functions" except the Rector himself? If he is of the opinion that the loan of his building to a group of admirable Christians of high standing for a sacred rite is a help towards discharging his solemnly acknowledged duty of "maintaining and setting forward . . . quietness, peace and love among all Christian people," who has the right to forbid him? It is true he promised obedience to "godly admonitions and godly judgments of his bishop." But if the Church is to have a government by law and all its machinery of limited rights and assigned duties as laid down in the Canons is to be made effective, great stress must be placed on the adjective "godly." For the minister is also pledged to "maintain the Discipline as this Church hath received the same"; "to drive away doctrines contrary to God's Word"; to "set forward peace and love among Christian people." Surely this admonition of the Bishop requiring the Rector and Vestry to recall an invitation that they had given in full confidence that they were within their rights, is not according to the Discipline of our Church, which gave him no such appellate authority; is based on a doctrine of values that places the ritual and legal above the spiritual and moral in a manner "contrary to God's Word;" and is prolific of ill-will and hard feeling rather than "peace and love." Who can call such an admonition godly? It cannot be required of the members of the Episcopal Church who value Episcopacy as an ancient mode of Church government, but do not believe in its divine right to rule that they should accept or acquiesce in claims which substitute a government by Episcopal opinion for a government by law. They believe that the closest analogy to the relation of a Bishop to a Rector is not that of a Colonel to a Captain, but that of the President of the United States to a Governor, or of a Governor to a Mayor; the one higher than the other, and, in an important sense, over the other; but the lower having his own special sphere into which the higher cannot intrude.

There is abundant precedent all over our country, of Episcopal Church buildings being lent in emergencies to non-Episcopalians for the administration of sacramental rites to their own people. Good-will ought to be able to make new precedents, but in this case it was only walking in old paths.

There is no need to raise the question of the authority of the Vestry. It is manifest that the Vestry as a corporation is responsible to the State, and must be satisfied that the Rector is using the building in obedience to the Canons. But that question does not enter; for the Vestry of St. George's, containing eminent lawyers, agreed with the Rector that the loan was not against any law, civil or canonical. Many will regret that they yielded the point, but we make no criticism. The situation was complicated by the message of the President of the Christian Unity League requesting that the courtesy be abandoned. That course may have been most conducive to the interests of the League; it certainly was not conducive of the best interests of the Protestant Episcopal Church. After this episode, who could be surprised if the non-Episcopal Churches paid less and less heed to the overtures of the Episcopal Church, especially those from a Commission in which Bishop Manning has a seat? If an Episcopal Rector and Vestry can be over-ruled so arbitrarily, who can hope that our ministry will attract men who value freedom? Who can think that any man, Bishop or not, has a divine right to sow ill-feeling in this fashion?

On these grounds we hold that the Episcopal ministers at the Conference were justified in asserting that this mandate of Bishop Manning's was a "usurpation of authority under the guise of an interpretation of a Canon," which "ought to be resisted and disavowed."

It is unnecessary to do more than refer to the injustice of this action. It cries to heaven and the echoes are bound to resound far and wide. In a Church of many schools of thought and many types, the Bishop of New York goes beyond his canonical authority to restrain a generous and brotherly action of the Protestant element, while he supinely acquiesces in open violation by Anglo-Catholics of the Church's law forbidding Reservation and makes no effort to control the introduction of Romish usages. Such administration "ridicules the name" of Justice.

The oath of the English bishop is:

"In the name of God, Amen. I, N., chosen Bishop of the Church and See of N. do profess and promise all due reverence and obedience to the Archbishop of the Metropolitical Church of N. and their successors. So help me God, through Jesus Christ."

In our book, for this is substituted a promise of conformity:

"In the name of God, Amen. I, N., chosen Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in N. do promise conformity and obedience to the Doctrine, Discipline and Worship of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America. So help me God, through Jesus Christ."

By request of the Bishop the use of the new Prayer Books will begin on the first Sunday in Advent, Sunday, December 1st. For the old Prayer Books, with the stamp of St. Stephen's, distributed so freely through the pews, the new edition will be substituted. For a while I shall not procure new books for the Chancel and Communion Table, for the books now in use are memorials, and it has occurred to me that the donors of these memorials should have an opportunity to give new books, if they desire to do so. So I shall wait a while.

We are about $1,500.00 behind in our Apportionment. The Thanksgiving Offering will reduce this considerably, but a united effort will be necessary if we are not to fall short. As there is a balance in the Church's treasury, and there will be no deficit at the end of our fiscal year, I suggest that all the gifts from this time on, in our envelopes, be given to the apportionment. I shall do this myself, and I recommend the same procedure to others.

I may add that next year I plan to select specific fields that we shall help, fields where we can feel enthusiasm and sympathy for the aim, the methods and the message.

The meeting on Sunday night of all those using in any way the Church or Parish Building or Community House was a great success. We had a large congregation of nearly 400, and all realized that if all entitled to be present had been there, the building could not have entertained them. For instance, the Lenten congregations were not represented. The sermon by Dr. Twombly was most helpful and most gripping.

Cordially yours
Paul E. Grammer

"Thou canst not prove the Nameless, O my son,
Nor canst thou prove the world thou movest in,
Thou canst not prove that thou art body alone,
Nor canst thou prove that thou art spirit alone,
Nor canst thou prove that thou art both in one:
Thou canst not prove thou art immortal, no
Nor yet that thou art mortal—nay, my son,
Thou canst not prove that I, who speak with thee,
Am not thyself in converse with thyself,
For nothing worthy proving can be proven,
Nor yet disproven: wherefore thou be wise,
Cleave ever to the sunnier side of doubt,
And cling to Faith beyond the forms of Faith!
She reels not in the storm of warring words,
She brightens at the clash of 'Yes' and 'No,'
She sees the Best that glimmers thro' the Worst,
She feels the Sun is hid but for a night,
She spies the summer thro' the winter bud,
She tastes the fruit before the blossom falls,
She hears the lark within the songless egg,
She finds the fountain where they wail'd 'Mirage!'"

—From "The Ancient Sage," Tennyson.

I have appointed the following Committee on the Christmas Baskets: Mr. Craig Atmore, Mr. T. Munroe Dobbins, Mr. Howard Freeston, Mr. J. Wiley Christie, and Mr. James Carrigan.

The Parish Visitor will go over the list and see to it that the baskets go where they are really needed. Recipients who may no longer need the baskets are requested to save her the disagreeable duty of dropping their names. At the same time we want to continue this gift to those whose Christmas will be lessened of needed cheer if the basket is not received.

I hope that the congregation will contribute generously for I feel that we ought to hand around good cheer at Christmas. We are, however, not as large a congregation as of old, and I hope that discretion will be shown in sending us new names. The recipients ought to have some claim on us and be united with us by some bonds of fellowship. This rule is not absolute in case of manifest and great need. But our stream of charity has to have banks, if it is to continue to flow. C. E. G.

Girls' Friendly Society

The Girls' Friendly Society takes this opportunity of thanking the Honorary Members and friends who so kindly contributed to the Rummage Sale. The help of the Boy Scouts was invaluable and it was a pleasure to see such a willing spirit shown by the boys to help in every possible way. The Rummage Sale was the first big affair the Society has had this season and while the articles for sale were not of great value, we cleared about $100.00.

On December 12th a Dinner and Christmas Sale will be held in the Auditorium—tickets can be secured at the office of the Community House and we will appreciate the cooperation of the members of the Church.

The Society has had several enjoyable evenings—a Hallowe'en party, a lecture on Armistice Day by Miss Anne Daley, a talk on interior decorating by Miss Kirby and a Thanksgiving party—now our minds are intent on the next big event, our Dinner and Sale. We will have attractive articles for sale, which will help with your Christmas shopping, and an appetizing dinner will be served from 6.30 to 7.30 P. M., for 75 cents.

One hundred Christmas stockings will be filled for the Philadelphia General Hospital, on Monday evening, December 16th. Any one wishing to contribute toys or oranges will help make these children very happy.

Some of the members of our Branch recently visited the Philadelphia General Hospital and the University Museum.

Sunday School Entertainment

"The Little Boy Nobody Wanted," a modern dramatic form of the medieval legend of the passing of the Christ-Child on Christmas Eve will be presented by the members of the Sunday School as a pageant and play, at the annual Sunday School entertainment, Friday night, December 20th, at 8 o'clock. The performance, which will follow a short entertainment prepared by the Primary Department, will be held in the auditorium of the Community House.

The legend of the Christ-Child stopping at the home of some worthy family on Christmas Eve, is one of the most beautiful of the stories of the Middle Ages. In its symbolism is preserved much that is true. Because the pageant will not be played by trained actors but simply by the children of the Sunday School itself it will preserve the festival character that is truly representative of Christmas. As in former years gifts will be given to each child that comes that night, irrespective of whether they are members of the Sunday School or not. I hope each member of the congregation will come, but better still, come and bring some children.

Robert O. Kevin.

The Advent Evangel

The Gospel of Christ came as an "evangel," a Good News, to a tired, dispirited, and disilusioned Mediterranean World. In the truest and deepest meaning of the word an evangelistic service today is still one which brings the Good News.

The Advent Season is peculiarly appropriate for the emphasis of this note in our corporate Church life. Not only is it timely but at the fall fellowship meeting of the societies, organizations and congregations of St. Stephen's Church on the Sunday before Advent we caught a vision of what the Good News still can mean in the Twentieth Century.

A revival is not an outworn term. It has signified a revivifying of the life of the Church in the past. It can do it again to-day. We can have a revival of interest, a revival of devotion, a revival of dedication, a revival of expectancy as much to-day and probably needing it more, than in the past.

Let our Advent preparation for Christmas then be in the nature of a revival, that is new as well as old. Let it be evangelistic in the New Testament sense of the word. The Sunday evening services during Advent will be designed with that particularly in mind. The hymns will be old familiar Gospel hymns, the preaching will be directed toward that end. As Lent is a fitting preparation for the Easter Season, let our Advent so prepare our Christmas.

Security for a Loan

(From the Guardian)

Okmulgee, Okla.

"Mister, do you lend money here?" asked an earnest young voice at the office door.

The lawyer turned away from his desk, confronted a clear-eyed, poorly dressed lad of some 10 years, and studied him keenly for a moment. "Sometimes we do—on good security," he said gravely.

The little fellow explained that he had a chance "to buy out a boy that's cryin' papers." He had half the money required, but he needed to borrow the other $2.

"What security can you offer?" asked the lawyer.

The boy's hand sought his pocket and drew out a paper carefully folded in a bit of calico. It was a cheaply printed pledge against the use of intoxicating liquors and tobacco. As respectfully as if it had been a deed to a farm, the lawyer examined it, and handed over the required sum.

A friend who had watched the transaction with silent amusement laughed as the young borrower departed.

"You think I know nothing about him?" smiled the lawyer. "I know that he came manfully in what he supposed to be a business way, and tried to negotiate a loan instead of begging the money. I know he has been under good influences, or he would not have signed that pledge, and that he does not hold it lightly, or he would not have cared for it so carefully. I agree with him that one who keeps himself from things has a character to offer as security."

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

On the Third Sunday in Advent I preached on the Christian Ministry, and enlarged at some length on its opportunities for service. Undoubtedly, the multiplication of denominations, often so unnecessary and now in many cases meaningless, has lessened the attractiveness of the ministry by narrowing its field of service. Moreover, the excessive emphasis placed on riches as a token of success and upon the comforts and opportunities that it brings has worked to make parents suggest other careers to their boys. It is sad to think how few youths enter the ministry from homes of culture and refinement. Sad to say, there has been a noticeable falling off in the number of the sons of ministers entering their fathers' profession. Probably it is all to the good that the ministry no longer enjoys its old time immense social prestige that brought so many men into the Church chiefly for the sake of lettered leisure and social consideration. As the very existence of the Church is dependent upon the continuation of the ministry, the great importance of its functions ought to be pointed out frequently.

The minister is an officer of an organization that exists to bring about the Kingdom of God. The Church is an Ethical Society, interested in training people in Ethics and in creating conditions favorable to morals. As a leader in such an organization, a minister is called on to be a Mr. Greatheart. That splendid companion of the women and children and feeble and halt, fought the giants that obstructed the way of the pilgrim and tore down their strongholds. So the minister is called on to lead in the assault against wickedness in high places. He who shuns such tasks as an interference with the proper service of the Church as a shrine of devotion, does not understand the conditions of acceptable prayer. True prayer is an incentive to heroic exertion, not a substitute for it. Prayer that reaches the ear of God is prayer that calls upon God to enter our lives and make us the agents of His will; it is a stimulant, not a sedative. The ministry, rightly understood, is an official rank in a militant organization. It is not a retreat from the world, but enlistment in a warfare to conquer the world for Christ. It is true that ignorant, blundering people can make great errors in assuming this rôle. Nowhere is incompetence more manifest, when it exists; but nowhere is competence more helpful. Unfortunately, Church leaders often become so much interested in building Churches or Cathedrals or Hospitals that they shrink from ventilating subjects that may offend hoped-for contributors. The Church's philanthropies have often silenced its testimony. But Jesus did not avoid offending the Pharisees in order to keep up His work of healing. It is really pitiable to hear ecclesiastical leaders advocating a policy of lying low. Was John the Baptist then wrong in his denunciations of corruption, Chrysostom mistaken in bearing his brave testimony in Constantinople, and Las Casas misguided in his campaign against the introduction of Slavery into the Spanish possessions? Why, these men are the glory of the Church. The reproach of the Church is the timid time-server who is afraid to speak out, the trumpet that gives an uncertain sound, so that the Christian forces are not aroused to the conflicts of the day. Any one can praise the Monk Telemachus who lost his life protesting against the cruelty of the Gladiatorial shows. Such praise is cheap. The only true praise comes from those who seek to emulate his example by contending for better movies, and for righteousness in all the multifarious forms in which the efforts to uplift society manifest themselves.

If the Church were no more than an Ethical Society, this would of itself make the ministry one of the noblest callings; but this description does not correctly indicate its functions. The minister is also a man of God, a minister of Christ. It is his task to open the eyes of people to true values and bring them into relations of loyalty and fellowship with the Great Being, in whom we live and move and have our being. Man without religion is like a boy whom I once met who was born on shipboard and spent his infant years crawling round in a stateroom or ship's saloon. Little did he understand that there was an Ocean sustaining him, rocking him, conditioning his whole existence. It was all essential that he should learn of this Ocean as he grew older and understand his relation to it. It is all-important, too, for our growth in the higher qualities of character, that we should understand our relation to the Spirit that sustains and directs the Universe, Who upholds us by His power, Who has created us to be His co-workers and the recipients of His love and favor. A minister is a man who, having experienced the reality of religion, seeks to establish it for others. His supreme title is a Man of God—he is to be a prophet, one who speaks for God. He is an ambassador for God, the loving and righteous God, revealed to us as the God and Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

In his Phi Beta Kappa oration Barrett Wendell tells of a student who came to him with the light of a great discovery in his face. He said that he had been reading the Encyclopaedia and had been impressed with the fact that the several articles were written by specialists. Now, said he, through all this special knowledge there must run some harmonizing principles, this Science of Everything is the all-important Science. That is what I wish to be a professor of. It was a great ideal, crudely expressed. The boy realized that there was a distinction between knowledge and wisdom. He wished to get hold of principles that run everywhere. Isn't that the nature of Ethics, and also of Religion? Thus with their guidance and their power they enter into every situation. This is eternal life, to know Thee, the only true God and Jesus Christ, Whom Thou hast sent. This relation of loyalty and obedience once established gives strength and elevation to all other loyalties. This is what a minister endeavors to effect. He seeks to turn people away from broken cisterns and surface streams that dry up under the hot suns of adversity or temptation, and to lead them to quench their thirst from the perennial fountains of living water. Surely such a calling will always make an appeal to spirits touched to fine issues, if it is faithfully followed by those who are in it and rightly presented to Christian boys seeking to invest their lives in a calling that will bring large returns in character and render large service to mankind.

I have just looked over the records of the envelope system for 1929. Comparison shows those who took the envelopes used them with more faithful regularity than in 1928. It is thrilling to look at the record. The names are kept in a key-book, which is not open to the public, and is reserved for the eye of the Treasurer and Rector. The record book deals only with the numbers of the packages, and the envelopes are checked off as they come in. It is glorious to see how large a proportion send in the envelopes faithfully.

There are, however, some numbers that show no returns. On looking up the names attached to those numbers I find that in many cases they belong to regular attendants and helpful members who, I am sure, contribute. In their case the trouble is clearly that they put their offerings in the plate. I would be much obliged if they would use the envelope. This is the system and it keeps up the esprit du corps if every one uses it. Besides, by that plan the Church secures the gift on the Sunday that the envelope-user is detained at home.

Our total envelopes are 250. I congratulate this band on giving about $3000 for the Parish Support and $5000 for outside purposes, for I assume that we shall reach our $5000 this year. But I wish that more people would take them. Those who worship with us, but do not take the envelopes miss an important element in their Church life: they miss the fellowship in a common effort; they miss the aid of system in their giving; they miss the spur of a resolve to give a definite sum annually.

I hope that a new interest may be given to our gifts for outside purposes by a selection of definite fields and by taking Mr. Herbert Donovan as our special missionary. I have applied to the Church House for his assignment to this parish, but have not yet received any response.

I join most heartily in the request of the Committee that two-thirds of our former gifts for Parochial Maintenance be devoted to the Expectation.

I am glad to report progress on my road to former strength. To be on the side of prudence, I plan to take a little holiday before Lent. I shall seek to procure a special preacher. For this year I shall omit the Septuagesima Conference of Liberals.

With gratitude to God, for His goodness, let us resolve to devote ourselves more earnestly to His service in this coming year.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

To the Envelope Users:

The congregation of St. Stephen's has the responsibility of showing that unusual advantages can be incentives and not sedatives. This December our endowment is so increased by the bequest of Miss Anna J. Magee, whose income now first becomes available, that our Church is almost entirely supported by the income from its endowment.

Under these circumstances the Vestry agrees with the Rector that we ought to do more for outside causes. Last year the envelopes brought in (speaking in round numbers) $3000 for Parish support, and $5000 for the Expectation, which last helps on the work of our Church in the diocese, in the domestic field and in foreign lands. This year we shall need much of the increased income for greatly needed repairs of our interior, and a suitable memorial to Miss Anna Magee. Still our burdens will be greatly lightened, and we believe that our loyal members will feel that having received so much we ought to give more.

We therefore request the envelope users to transfer two-thirds of the contribution that was formerly given to Parochial Maintenance, to the pocket that contains the gifts for causes outside of the Parish, so that our Expectation may be increased from $5000 to $7000. We ask all who worship with us to join in this endeavor, and urge any who may not be using the envelopes to accept a package for 1930.

Signed,

Frank G. Cooper,
William H. Hollar, Jr.,
Howard Freeston,
Committee on Envelopes.

Carl E. Grammer,
Rector.

The Woman's Auxiliary

There was no speaker at the December meeting. The reports were full of Christmas spirit and zeal. Miss Roberts sent three boxes of toys and useful articles to three families in South Carolina. She also sent many calendars and cards to shut-ins.

The Diocesan Committee speaker, Mrs. Barrett, paid high tribute to St. Martha's House, St. John's House, the College Settlement and the University Settlement for what they were doing at this season for the "unprivileged children" born and brought up in the dark spots of the city.

The Domestic Committee speaker was Mrs. Wetmore who for twenty-three years has raised money for Christ School at Arden, N. C., where there are 109 boys, boarding students, whose upkeep for nine months is $250 for each student. Each year there is a deficit of about $5000, but it is always wiped out by voluntary contributions. Mrs. Wetmore states that the remote mountain conditions have not changed much and there is great need for education. These mountaineers are of a high type and develop rapidly into leaders as a result of their life at Christ School.

Miss Bright has collected $110.77 for the United Thank Offering from 17 subscribers.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held January 16th.

Beulah E. Hollar,
Secretary.

From a letter sent to the Rector:

After another visit to the Church and enjoying the noonday service I feel compelled to write and express my appreciation.

Coming into the building out of the rush and hurrying crowds, one feels such peace and comfort. Truly the spirit of God is within these walls. We feel His blessing on us as we kneel in prayer and commune with Him, as we sing praises and listen to the gospel. It has helped me to enjoy the services of my own Church more, for when I return there for Wednesday evening and Sunday services I am refreshed and ready for worship.

I am sure there are many more who feel this way about your services. I am a member of St. Simon the Cyrenian, Holy Apostles Parish.

May God bless all those on the Committee and all associated with this work. It is far reaching.

The Christmas Dinner Basket Committee

This year we are very glad to report that owing to the invariable cooperation of the congregation, we have been able to continue the work as carried on by Mr. Reifsnyder and were fortunate enough to be able to slightly increase the number of baskets and amount of help given.

While receipts and expenditures are not yet complete, we have received so far about $410.00 and expended about $380.00, with only a few small bills left to be paid. As Mr. Reifsnyder left us a balance of about $190.00 we will probably be able to add $10.00 to that and to carry forward a balance of $200.00 for the use of next year's committee.

As nearly as I could check out there were approximately 80 Christmas Baskets given last year and owing to the very liberal contributions received, we this year were able to distribute 96 baskets and also to give some help without giving the whole basket.

Mr. Restein helped us with a donation of 60 chickens and Mr. Atmore contributed the usual number of Mince Pies.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to the members of the Committee, Mr. Dobbins, Mr. Christie, Mr. Carrigan and Mr. Freeston, for the very active interest taken and help given and also my thanks to Mrs. Higham for the very hard work she did when the baskets were given out.

May I also add a word of thanks to the congregation of St. Stephen's Church for its unfailing generosity which enabled us to accomplish this splendid result.

Not what we give, but what we share, for the gift without the giver is bare; who gives himself with his alms feeds three, himself, his hungering neighbor and me.—Lowell.

I believe most intensely in the need of that arm of contact with the live rail which we call "prayer."—Sir Wilfred Grenfell.

Love's secret is to be always doing things for God, and not to mind because they are such very little ones.—Faber.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

My gratitude is profound that we reached our Expectation without any special drive. The ready response of the congregation shows that our people realize that we are not Congregationalists, but are Episcopalians; that we are part of a larger whole; that we are Churchmen, and appreciate that a church member must aid the Church to discharge its proper function of maintaining and extending the Kingdom of God among mankind. I feel confident that we, in 1930, shall reach $7,000. I think that we can do it, with the heightened interest that will be aroused by having Mr. Donovan as our own missionary, and by our knowledge of the special fields to which our gifts will be applied.

In order that interest in the field may play a large part in our giving, the following Designations for our Expectation were approved by the Vestry at the January meeting:

MR. DONOVAN $1,320.00
Mr. Donovan expects to return to Liberia in March. Before departure he will give a Sunday to St. Stephen's, and the Woman's Auxiliary will give him a reception that the congregation may meet him.

BOONE UNIVERSITY, WUCHANG..... 500.00
This University is doing a great work training the future leaders of China.

TRAINING BIBLE WOMEN, HANKOW.. 400.00
The Bible is a great Missionary, and these humble workers reach the women who mould the youth of China.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL, TOKYO..... 250.00
The noblest philanthropic institution, by common consent, in the Sunrise Kingdom.

ST. MARGARET'S SCHOOL, TOKYO..... 250.00
A school for girls of which my friend and sometime pupil, the Rev. J. H. Kobayashi, is head. He studied at Cambridge, Massachusetts, and the Virginia Seminary, and is an accomplished scholar and a beautiful Christian character.

INDIAN WORK, SOUTH DAKOTA..... 500.00
Under Bishop Tyler, also one of my old scholars, a wise and earnest leader. At one time he had a church in Philadelphia. Nothing keeps the Indians back more than the lack of Christianity.

TUBERCULOSIS SANITARIUM, ARIZONA 500.00
The local resources are quite inadequate to providing for the care of the numerous tuberculosis patients who resort to Arizona. Our Sanitarium is a benefit to the sick of the Nation.

EPISCOPAL HOSPITAL, PHILADEDPHIA 1,000.00
Our own noble hospital is entitled to our most liberal support. We turn to it for aid for our sick constantly, and it can always be depended on to help. Let us see that it can always depend on our support.

The total of these designations is..... $4,720.00

It ought to be explained that these are, except the Episcopal Hospital, appropriations that the General Church desires to have made. All count on the Expectation. All help the Church to meet its obligations. There will still remain $2,280.00, if we reach our goal of $7,000.00. This we ought to allow the Diocesan authorities and the General Church authorities to divide and distribute as may seem best to them. We shall easily reach $7,000, the amount that I am asking the Parish to take as its goal, if we are regular in our gifts and remember these causes in our prayers. Such giving will prove not a drain on our energies, but a source of vitality.

Let us take this missionary and these fields into our prayers, and make it a rule to pray for God's blessing on them when we ask for guidance and a blessing on our own lives. Such a practice will elevate our devotions by making them less self-centered, and will also stir us up to greater regularity in our giving, which will also, retroactively, give more reality to our prayers. We may be sure that easy confessions and petitions that involve no effort to make God's will prevail in our own lives and in the world, mean little, and being of small profit will steadily become more and more a form and less and less a source of help. Faithful praying and conscientious giving are closely tied together, as all Christian experience has shown. Here, system is a great help and the record shows that we are lacking in system. Here is our record for 1929. Our gifts received at the Church House for the Expectation amounted,

on July	1st, to	$1,818.94
on Nov.	1st, to	2,214.16
on Dec.	1st, to	3,041.66
on Jan.	1st, to	4,156.06

By January 10th, with the aid of the offering on the first Sunday in January, we reached $5,000.00.

This record shows that many waited till the end to bring in their envelopes. It was fine and staunch that they caught up and sent them in at last. But there are many demands on us in the Christmas season, when the family life has naturally the foremost claim. So let us begin earlier. It will be helpful to us as well as to the cause, to be more systematic.

I publish with special pleasure the following item of news received from the Church House:

"You will be glad to know that on Friday, January 17th, the diocese of Pennsylvania paid the $229,000 promised to the National Church for its missionary work in 1929. Also that the Executive Council has accepted all that the Church has asked this diocese for the year 1930. You may not know that we are the only large diocese in the Church that is doing this."

This is the outcome of wise leadership and loyal cooperation. Where these are united success is sure.

Cordially yours
Paul E. Gramner

Some tribute ought to be paid to the memory of Miss Henrietta Wilkins Sanders who died recently. She was for years a faithful teacher in our Sunday School, and some of the men who were her scholars still attend St. Stephen's. In late years she was an invalid and lived in Chestnut Hill. Though I urged her to connect herself with a Church nearer her home, she was unwilling to sever her connection with this Church where she and her dear friend and cousin, Miss Maria Wilkins, had spent so many happy years together as worshippers and workers. We were not privileged to take part in the funeral service, but we cannot allow her death to be unnoted in our records.

Her exacting occupations prevented Miss Harriet Parker from participating in Church work. But she will be greatly missed by all who knew her as a sweet and cheerful Christian who adorned the membership of our Church.

About Thomas à Kempis

An admirable essay on George Eliot reminded me recently how that great writer found much comfort in her last days in reading Thomas à Kempis. I have never been especially attracted to the famous De Imitatione Christi. Perhaps I had gained too exalted a view of it from that popular religious novel, Stepping Heavenward, which had so much vogue in my youth. Scorn them who will, I had in my adolescent days great fondness both for that book of the gifted Mrs. Prentiss, and also for The Wide, Wide World with its interesting picture of life on a farm in Western New York, and particularly of the adventures of the heroine in Edinburgh. Lest I be thought ultra-sentimental I must protest that I could not read Queechy,—though an omnivorous reader.

Some of those religious tales displayed a great deal of literary power. I suppose that few now know anything of Dunallan. Certainly the piety in it is very severe, detached from all pleasure and adverse to any mingling in society. It ought, however, to be noted that it was such militant piety that brought in a better social life. Perhaps we have gone too far on the other side. Anyhow, Dunallan had a real plot, and the situation of the heroine, like that in the German story called The Second Wife, is full of dramatic interest. It is pleasant to note in Macaulay's Life that he wrote appreciatively of Dunallan. Stepping Heavenward was much less of a novel and much more of a book of edification. The mother of the heroine, a truly admirable woman, was a great devotee of à Kempis. The references gave me such an exalted opinion of the book that when, later on in life, as a theological student, I took it up, I was greatly disappointed in it. Being an ardent disciple of St. Paul, I disliked its legalism.

The admiration of George Eliot induced me, as I said, to take up this famous classic again. Of course, I had referred to it time and again, but always in a critical way. It occurred to me that great classics in all departments should be approached in a somewhat different spirit from that in which we take up ordinary books. We ought to realize that there may be some defect in us if we do not appreciate their merits. That is the way we listen to great music. If at first it seems a jumble of sounds, we continue to listen till it reveals to us its themes and movements. In the same spirit we look on famous pictures. An American artist, whom I met years ago on the train from Chamouni to Geneva, was very contemptuous of European Art. "As for Mona Lisa," he said, "one look at her was enough for me: I don't care to be acquainted with a woman so secretive, so subtle, so all-knowing." Surely that was a very superficial view of such a masterpiece. Such a criticism would shut up Hamlet with a bang and cry out against such an heir-apparent who was such an irresolute philosopher. Indeed, the vivacious critic was probably expressing only a mood. Being very clear-headed he was tired of cant and wanted reality. As he well said, it's tiresome to hear praise of the forest of Fontainebleau when our native woods are so incomparably finer. His sane discovery is worth repeating: he said, "I realize for the first time that we Americans are really Europeans." Quite so, Europeans with a slight difference, but one that counts.

But to return to our theme, in a sense these great masterpieces judge us. We must approach them in a spirit of reverence. So I have taken to reading the Imitation of Christ with care. While I still appreciate its lack of the filial confidence and cheerful trust in God's Love that a Christian ought to possess, I feel that it is good to come in contact with its strenuousness and sincerity, its contempt of worldly standards and worldly honors. If the Age of à Kempis had limitations, our Age also has limitations. If he thought too much of the Life Everlasting, it is possible that we think too much of this Temporal life. Surely the meditations which follow are true for all times and for all sorts and conditions. They ring out like golden bells from the tower of a sacred and historic shrine. If we do not appreciate their beauty and truth, the fault must be in us.

SELECTION FROM THOMAS à KEMPIS

THAT THE TRUTH SPEAKETH INWARDLY WITHOUT NOISE OF WORDS

Speak, O Lord, for Thy servant heareth. I am Thy servant, grant me understanding, that I may know Thy testimonies. Incline my heart to the words of Thy mouth: let Thy speech distil as the dew. The children of Israel in times past said unto Moses, "Speak thou unto us, and we will hear: let not the Lord speak unto us, lest we die." Not so, Lord, not so, I beseech Thee: but rather with the prophet Samuel, I humbly and earnestly entreat, "Speak, Lord, for Thy servant heareth." Let not Moses speak unto me, nor any of the prophets, but rather do Thou speak, O Lord God, the Inspirer and Enlightener of all the prophets; for Thou alone without them canst perfectly instruct me, but they without Thee can profit nothing.

They indeed may sound forth words, but they cannot give the Spirit. Most beautifully do they speak, but if Thou be silent, they inflame not the heart. They teach the letter, but Thou openest the sense: they bring forth mysteries, but Thou unlockest the meaning of sealed things. They declare Thy commandments, but Thou helpest us to fulfill them. They point out the way, but Thou givest strength to walk in it. What they can do is only without, but Thou instructest and enlightenest the heart. They water outwardly, but Thou givest fruitfulness. They cry aloud in words, but Thou impartest understanding to the hearing.

Let not Moses therefore speak unto me, but Thou, O Lord my God, the Everlasting Truth; lest I die, and prove unfruitful, if I be only warned outwardly, and not inflamed within. Lest it turn to my condemnation, —the word heard and not fulfilled, known and not loved, believed and not observed. Speak, therefore, Lord, for Thy servant heareth; for Thou hast the words of eternal life. Speak Thou unto me, to the comfort, however imperfect, of my soul, and to the amendment of my whole life, and to Thy praise and glory and honour everlasting.

Community House Report

From January 1st, 1929 to January 1st, 1930 approximately 15,988 persons used the Community House. This figure represents the attendance at 402 meetings. The total number of pieces of mail sent out by the Church Office during the same period reached 8,357.

Just the art of being kind is what a sad world needs.

A RAINY DAY

Upon the roof I hear the drumming rain,
Against the pane it dashes, and the street
Is flecked with splashes. In my youth the streets
Of Baltimore, on such a day, were filled
With rushing floods. By stepping-stones, high-raised
And far apart for childish feet, the streams
Were crossed by walkers, venturesome and few.
The floods are tamer in this Quaker Town.

Delightful is the "privacy of storm,"
To stay at home with good excuse and spend
The day in clearing-up the desk or shelves,
With undisturbed delight to read again
Some favorite book, or, pen in hand, to draw
Some thought elusive, like a gamy fish,
From out the deep—the scholar's dearest sport.

Now let us gather 'round the cheerful fire
And taste the sweetness of domestic life.
As in the whirling disk of periscope,
Let's watch in memory's magic glass the view
Of snow-crowned Alps with chalky glacier-streams,
And sapphire lakes, and hear with inner ear,
The tinkling bells of mountain goats aloft.
Undaunted now by steps, we climb again
The sacred pile of St. Michel, and watch
The tide in swift withdrawal streak the sand
With streams and lakes. We note the dungeon dark
And pillared chapel high, abodes of Fear,
Regnant alike in piety and Law.
Or, toying with an ice from side-walk chair,
We scan the crowds on Paris boulevard;
Or ride in 'bus beside historic Thames
And hear our tongue in accents crisp and clear,
And view Westminster's sacred hall and shrine,
While the rich hours are toll'd by Parliament's
"Big Ben," oft heard in midnight hours of pain,
Now happily long past. . . .
The visions fade,
A dash of rain recalls us to our home,
So safe from blast intrusive and from cold.
We grieve to know that many 'bide, on field
And flood, the pelting of this blinding storm;
The anxious sailor closely scans the coast
To find the harbor's mouth; great steamships grope
And sound hoarse notes of warning; engineers,
Far-leaning from their cabs, with hand on cord,
Watch glistening rails and blow their warning blasts.

O, wondrous many-colored web of life,
Thy strands how countless, thy design too vast
For our close view! We watch the shuttles fly
With awe. Secluded for the nonce we, too,
In work-shop vast have proper place and part,
Our "order for the day" from high command,
And share in toil with Him who ever works—
The thought of Him, like sun upon the rain,
O'er arches all our days with bow of hope
And makes the darkest scene with promise bright.

The Woman's Auxiliary

There were 22 members present at the January meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. Henry D. Jump, Secretary of the Board of Prison Inspectors, was the speaker. She has done a great deal for the women in Moyamensing. From 4.30 in the afternoon when they have their supper, the women had nothing to do. Mrs. Jump conceived the idea of giving them material with which to sew. The plan has worked amazing results. The finished products are sold and the money used for the good of all the women. An appeal was made for any kind of materials—new or old. Old silk stockings and old kid gloves even, are acceptable. Send them to Mrs. Jump's home, 2019 Walnut Street.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held February 20th.

King's Daughters of St. Stephen's Church Whatsoever Circle

Meets first and third Tuesday evenings in each month.

President—Miss Bertha T. Walshe.
Secretary—Mrs. George T. Townsley.
Treasurer—Miss Anna Taggart.

During the past four months we have been working on our yearly contribution of dresses for the Day Nursery, etc. We filled two dozen stockings at Christmas for these children. In October we had a card party, which gave us $65.00 with which we were enabled to give much comfort and happiness to an aged brother and sister both at Thanksgiving and at Christmas. Through the agency of the City Missions we were also able to have some coal sent to these needy folks.

Now we are planning for the big event of the season—a Dinner and Card Party. Perhaps some who read this may remember how delightful our last year's dinner proved to be, and will want to come again. We hope so, as it is by this means we raise our annual contribution to the Community House. Remember the date, Tuesday evening, February 25th, at 6.30; dinner and cards; 75 cents. Tickets may be had from any member or from Mr. Carrigan.

We would not permit the exploitation of a child that is precious to any one of us. Let us not, therefore, as citizens, tolerate the exploitation of other people's children.—Shirley W. Wynne, M.D.

Bolshevism Versus Christianity in the Dark Continent

In the light of Herbert Donovan's recent appointment as missionary to Africa from St. Stephen's Church, an effort to capture native workingmen in South Africa for Moscow, word of which has lately been received in this country, should prove of interest. According to Ray E. Phillips writing in the Christian Century, Russian money is being poured into the country, with no attempt being made to disguise the fact. Educated leaders are being employed to spread the doctrines of socialism.

A typical meeting of the Bolshevist agitators is reported by Mr. Phillips as follows:

"Let us kick God out, comrades! Kick him out! What has he ever done for us? Nothing, I say! Nothing! He has told us that heathenism is bad, has educated us, and then left us to starve!" The speaker is described as Thabedi, the son of a Wesleyan native clergyman, addressing a Sunday afternoon crowd of native workmen under the auspices of the communist party.

"I know what I am talking about," he went on to say, "My father is a Christian clergyman and I was educated at a mission school. The missionary sees our misery, but points to some place beyond the sky and tells us to be content. 'By and by' you will go to heaven if you are 'good boys' and you will be all right. After you die you will have a good time, plenty to eat, fine clothes. But that is not good enough for us, comrades! We want to live today. We want enough to eat right now! Isn't that right?"

"That's right!" comes up from the audience amid applause.

"So I say, 'Kick out the God of the missionary!' Join the communist party, which is out to give us plenty to eat today, and which is out to smash the rich men who are crushing us. Join the party which will bring justice to the workman, the real working man—the black man of South Africa."

Christianity has been described by native discontented ones as a narcotic; missionaries as those who have come to pull the wool over the eyes of the unsuspecting natives, while other white men stole their possessions. "When the white man came to Africa," it is said, "he had the Bible, and we the natives had the land. Now we have the Bible and the white man has the land." They are bitter because of the belief that while the missionary preached, their land was filched from them by the farmer, the miner, and the sugar-cane planter. Today the native population which numbers four-fifths of those living in South Africa, owns only one-thirteenth of the land.

"When the missionary came to this country," the native men say, "our fathers were living in an ideal communal state. They shared alike in food and other necessities of life. When the missionary came he said that way was good, and we continued to share alike in every good thing. But when we come now to the city we find that white men don't live like that. They grab as much as they can for themselves and hang on to it. The successful man is he who grabs the most, who cuts down his competitors as our chiefs used to cut down other tribal chiefs when they were at war. The missionary didn't know all this when he taught us, or he deliberately lied to us, for he didn't equip us for success. We have been betrayed into the hands of the unscrupulous white man by the missionary."

The native people are not natural revolutionaries, writes Mr. Phillips. But they may be driven to it if the present causes of discontent among them continue, and if Christian missionaries from overseas neglect to socialize their message.

The definitely anti-religious front that the Soviet movement in Russia has adopted, with the establishment of a university to teach atheism having a reported enrollment of some 300 young men and women as students, and with the beginning of a movement to accomplish the wholesale destruction of monastaries and churches in Russia, may not touch us very closely, much as we may regret it. But the extension of a world-wide propaganda of atheism is a foreboding and ominous prospect; it is a legitimate daughter of the kind of communism practiced today in the former empire of the Czars. The Christian Churches need all the Donovans, with a broad modern social vision, that they can get, and need to support them to the limit of their abilities if this menace to the freedom and enlightenment of the world is to be checked.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

Moral sentiment is largely created by the opinions of onlookers. People who are interested in the struggle are looked upon as partisans and their opinions are therefore discounted. It is therefore very important that the on-lookers at political life, that is to say the people who do not hold official position and are neither official supporters nor official opposers of Governmental policies, should keep themselves informed on public affairs and speak out their unbiased opinions with courage. Never was this more necessary than in the recent refusal of citizenship to Professor Douglas C. Mackintosh, a Professor in the Yale Divinity School. He was refused citizenship by a District Judge on these grounds:

"It appearing that the said Petitioner, considering his allegiance to be first to the will of God, would not promise in advance to bear arms in defence of the United States under all circumstances, but only if he believed the war to be morally justified, it is decreed that the Petitioner is not attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States and further decreed that said petition for citizenship is denied."

Certainly such a decision ought to excite widespread protest in the State of Pennsylvania whose founder and his associates in creating this Colony would have been excluded if such a policy had prevailed in their day.

If it seems logical, we recall that a great writer on the ideal of a judge has said that the judge "must be capable of stern logic, and yet refuse to sacrifice to logic the hopes and fears and wants of men."

Certainly there are multitudes of our present citizens who would decline to make that pledge. The welfare of Society is not imperilled by men who put the law of God above the law of the State. It is not strength of conscience, but the power of passion, appetite, ambition, lust, revenge, envy, pride, unscrupulous love of money, power, or pleasure that are the dangerous infections in civilization. The great anti-phagocyte, so to speak, that resists these germs, is the sense of duty, especially when enforced by a sense of responsibility to God. We have little to fear from excessive scrupulosity of conscience. Of course, there is such a thing as irrational and injurious fanaticism, but surely that reproach cannot be brought against unwillingness to take part in a war irrespective of its justice. War, as an instrument of National policy and a means of redressing National injuries, has been authoritatively condemned by the United States in the Kellogg Pact. Dr. Mackintosh is a teacher who can be counted on to spread ideas that will uphold that pact. Treaties entered into by the United States have the force of laws, so it might have been argued by the Judge, that whatever doubt he might have had about Dr. Mackintosh's sympathy with the principles of the Constitution of the United States, were entirely dissipated by our National acceptance of the Kellogg Pact. Ought it not to have had great weight with the Court that Quakers, who refuse to take arms in any war, just or unjust, have for years been admitted to Citizenship? If this is the Law, ought not the Law to be changed?

If this is the American Constitution narrowly interpreted, ought not that document be interpreted in a larger spirit?

In his tribute to Mr. Justice Holmes in a recent Harper, that eminent publicist, Harold J. Laski, of the University of London, well said: "The American Constitution was not made to compel the twentieth century American to move in the swaddling clothes of his ancestor's ideas. The American Constitution must be molded by reason to fit new needs and new necessities. A world of railroads and motor cars, of wireless and the telegram cannot be governed by the standards of an eighteenth century agrarian state. The law must recognize change and growth even when the lawyer dislikes their implications." This adaptation, however, should not be limited to machinery, it must also extend to ideas. It would be a great error by rigid interpretation to exclude from our citizenship a valuable element.

It is sad to see how, in the wave of reaction against idealism that is now sweeping over the country, there is so little zeal to maintain the widest liberty of opinion that is consistent with the maintenance of government and civilizations. It is a reproach to our country, when even in Spain, governed by Dictators who trample under foot their Country's Constitution, amnesty is declared for political offenders, while in the land that boasts so proudly its tolerant Jefferson and forgiving Lincoln, political prisoners should still languish in our prisons on account of opinions whose expression was only unlawful and in any important degree hurtful in time of War. Christians who believe in the power of the truth to confute error should be zealous for liberty of thought against oppression, as well as for the dominance of the will of majority in the realm of conduct.

Another question that calls at this time for our prayers and interest is this London Conference. We believe that the emissaries of America misinterpret their country when they speak of building a larger battleship. America is not afraid of the future. We were safe from aggression when we were few and weak. Now that we are powerful and wealthy we have little to fear. Our bonds with England are so close that any war between us is unthinkable. Mutual benefits have bound our country and France close together. The Navies of the world ought to be reduced to the size of police forces for the seas. They should be kept strong enough to put down law-breakers and criminals, but should be manifestly unequal to coercing a Nation. To quote the Reformed Church Messenger:

"It is not reassuring, therefore, when we read that our American representatives, instead of being willing to give up some or all of the battleships we now have, seem to be reaching out for the right to build an additional ship. Such a result would be a calamity. If the other Naval Powers are ready to abolish battleships, will our answer be in accordance with the great challenge laid down by President Hoover on the last Armistice Day: 'We will reduce our naval strength in proportion to any other. Having said that, it only remains for the others to say how low they will go. IT CANNOT BE TOO LOW FOR US.'

"Does not the demand for the abolition of battleships strike a responsive note in your heart? We believe that the Council for the Prevention of War states the literal fact when it says that we should abolish the battleships now. (1) Common-sense demands it; they are becoming obsolete. Even some naval experts regard them as a liability rather than an asset, and Admiral Sims advises that, in case of war, we'd better try to hide our battleships as far up the Mississippi out of harm's way as we can get them. (2) Economy demands it; we can save about $40,000,000 a year on upkeep and $40,000,000 each on replacement. (3) The Peace Pact demands it; battleships are solely for offense, and we are justified in maintaining our navies for defensive purposes only. (4) The immediate and total abolition of battleships would diminish the vested interest in war. This is the real reason why militarists are so strenuously fighting against it and why it will require the united and prayerful effort of all real lovers of peace to achieve it."

Professor T. N. Carver, of Harvard University, says: "The problem before the country is the elimination, or great diminution, of drunkenness. That fact will never be lost sight of. It will be useless to try to make the average voter forget it. He will give up Prohibition when, but not until, another plan for eliminating drunkenness is shown to be better than Prohibition. He will not be easily convinced so long as he has any reason for suspecting that the advocates of the new plan have some personal reason for wanting to get rid of Prohibition. The new plan must be sponsored and actively advocated by persons whose previous record shows them to be actively interested in the elimination of drunkenness. That is the only phase of the drink question which interests the average voter. When a plan advocated by people who are above suspicion is shown to be superior to Prohibition, it will not be difficult to get rid of Prohibition."

There will be confirmation at St. Stephen's on Sunday morning, April 6th, two Sundays before Easter. This is a very convenient time, as we have a season of Lent with its numerous services to assist in gathering the class. It is also very thrilling to have the first communion of the class either on Thursday in Holy Week, the anniversary of the inauguration of the Lord's Supper, or on Easter Day. The class will meet in the Vestry Room on Fridays at 8 o'clock for a little less than an hour. No one is committed by attending the class. It is for instruction and inspiration. It is hoped that a decision to be confirmed will come at the end. But it is not required and in some cases it is not advised. It is believed that in most cases, it will be a great help to take this stand publicly on the Lord's side, and to join in the fellowship of believers, seekers and fighters for the Kingdom of God. But it is a great injury to profess dedication of self and at the same time to have a divided heart and a secret purpose to keep religion in a subordinate place. A religion is worth nothing that does not dominate life. Indeed whatever is the dominant purpose in a man's life is his real religion, regardless of his profession. If his chief pursuit is pleasure, then Pleasure is his god. If his supreme purpose is to get money, then Mammon is his divinity. If his dominant aim in life is to be prominent and to attain high position, then Rank and Station are his idols. Only those whose supreme desire is to fulfil the purpose of God, to achieve the character and accomplish the task that God must have in mind for them, are proper candidates for confirmation. That character, we believe, can best be achieved, not only by faithful performance of duty, but also by associating one's self with like-minded people. The establishment of that kingdom is a cooperative enterprise and calls for associated work.

There are some people in favor of lowering the age of confirmation, but my own experience and observation favor delaying confirmation till the full meaning of the step is comprehended and there is a sufficiently developed personality to warrant a public stand. I have so often heard communicants waive aside the obligations of their position by claiming that when they were confirmed they were too young to know what they were doing, that I do not care to give any weight to that excuse. I admit that it has not much validity. Confirmation does not create an obligation to serve God; it is only a public acknowledgment of a relation that exists whether we acknowledge it or not. It is our duty to live in loyal cooperation with our Creator, Sustainer and Heavenly Father and to seek to do His Will. This is the path of blessedness and peace, of growth and usefulness. It is a wild delusion to think that life can be enriched by weakening the bonds that unite us to the Source of Life, that the branch can grow apart from the Vine. We need God, and it is a great aid toward filling this need if we publicly acknowledge our dependence on Him and pledge ourselves to loyalty to our Suzerain and Lord. This is the deepest meaning of confirmation.

The class also affords a valuable opportunity for explaining the position, teaching and spirit of the Protestant Episcopal Church. It may be that some Church members are in doubt about the real teaching of our Church, and would like to attend and hear the Rector's views on that subject. They will be heartily welcome. Confirmation season brings its own searchings of heart to every minister who has to prepare a class and hold up to its members the ideals which he is conscious that he himself so inadequately embodies and has so feebly followed. The same profitable consciousness of short-coming and the same desire to do better hereafter will probably be the experience of communicant "sitters-in" at the conference. We believe that such attendance of communicants, if it be not too large, of which of course, there is little danger, will be wholesome to the "sitters-in" and helpful both to the teacher and the class.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

This notice was sent out to the Attendants at St. Stephen's Septuagesima Conferences:

February 12, 1930.

Dear Brethren:

It is with regret that I announce to the members of the Septuagesima Conference in St. Stephen's, Philadelphia, that I have decided not to invite the Conference this year. There are personal and parish reasons which make its assembly at St. Stephen's inexpedient. Among other grounds for this decision was the uncertainty which prevented the necessary selection of subjects and speakers. The aim of these Conferences would not be accomplished unless its papers and discussions awakened serious thought, and aroused in the attendants a sense of responsibility for the development of the Episcopal Church in all departments of its life. This cannot be achieved without longer preparation than was possible this year.

It may be that Lord Brentford, who, as Sir Joynson-Hicks the Home Secretary in Mr. Baldwin's Cabinet, was such a successful leader in Parliament against the adoption of the Deposited Book, which would have legalized Reservation, may visit the United States this spring. In that case I shall invite the members of our Conferences to meet him and hear his account of the situation in England, as he has promised to give me an opportunity for such a gathering, if he comes.

As you know, the Church Assembly has appointed a Commission to examine the question whether greater freedom of self-government ought not to be demanded by the Church of England, even at the cost of possible disestablishment and disendowment. Whatever affects the life of our Mother Church is certain to influence us profoundly, so it is important that we should appreciate fully the issues involved. Church and State have been so entwined in English Civilization that tearing them apart is quite a different matter from the simple process pursued at the organization of our Government. It is sad to think that the crux of the situation is that the Parliament of England is determined that the National Church must continue Protestant, and that the Bishops and the Church Assembly wish to repudiate in some degree the Protestant position.

The question is now being asked in our Country whether a Church is entitled to be called Protestant which is as tolerant as ours of Anglo-Catholic approaches to Rome in teaching and in ritual, and is so hostile to fraternal courtesies to Protestants, as in the widely-discussed case of Bishop Manning's prohibition of the loan of St. George's for the celebration of the Lord's Supper by a Presbyterian minister. It will be a sad day for our Church, if the consolidation of the Protestant Churches should proceed in the United States upon the same lines as in Canada and we should be left out. It looks as if this would be our fate. It is a sad outlook. It is the duty of brave and clear-headed people to face it and consider what can be done to better the situation. Already the Living Church has begun its campaign to eliminate the word Protestant from our title. Not content with having disturbed the Church by its proposal to retire into the background the XXXIX Articles, this propagandist paper is now going to stir up another hurtful agitation. The Congregationalist minister, Dr. Lynch, whose contacts with our Church are chiefly with the Anglo-Catholics, announced in the Living Church, which gladly welcomes his pronouncement, that we are not a Protestant Church. But neither the clergy, nor, as Phillips Brooks used to call them, the semi-clerical laity, who are prominent in Diocesan and General Conventions, are the true exponents of the mind of our Church. These are officials and have predominantly the official point of view. The laity of our Church is largely Protestant, and any repudiation of Protestantism will bring many losses.

Even more fundamental than the preservation of our Protestant character is the maintenance of Christian Theism and Christian Ethics. They are attacked from many quarters by Materialism, Agnosticism, Positivism, Secularism, Infidelity and Atheism. Christianity cannot be defended by rhetoric, nor by aesthetic services. Never was it more necessary for the clergy to devote themselves to fundamental issues, and to show the meaninglessness of existence without God, Duty and Immortality. We hope that at our Conference in 1931, these high themes, in some form, may supply us with fruitful discussions.

Wishing you a profitable Lent and the richest blessings on your ministry,

Your friend and brother,

Carl E. Grammer.

Postscript—This announcement has called forth most gratifying expressions of regret that the Conference cannot be held this year, and of hope that it may be resumed next year. It is evident that the Conference has come to mean much to the attendants, and fulfills a useful function in bringing together men of a like spirit. Prophetic souls are apt to be lonely. It is no wonder that in old times they used to associate themselves together in schools, or in monasteries. In some small degree these Septuagesima Conferences have clearly met that yearning for fellowship. By this emphasis I would not disparage the importance of its discussion of vital themes.

C. E. G.

There is so much sophistry on the subject of Prohibition that I intend to do all that I can to make clear the moral issues involved. Mr. George Gordon Battle wrote a letter on the subject to the New York World. His total inability to grasp the problem was manifest. Our country has, by an overwhelming majority and in a constitutional way determined to put down the liquor traffic. Mr. Battle seems totally unaware that it was a gigantic evil. Here is my reply to him. I think it indicates the true philosophy of Law and the basis of the 18th Amendment:

Mr. Battle's Criticism of the Wickersham Report

To the Editor of the World:

Dean Pound, in a widely-read address, declared that the great need of law was a scheme of values, and that the fundamental problem of the law was a matter of relative values. The truth of this generalization is manifest in the confusion of values in Mr. Battle's letter. To his mind the breaking of the Fugitive Slave law and the Volstead Act are parallel cases. Yet, they are, when we consider the values involved, exactly opposite. In a case of disobedience to the Fugitive Slave law and an acquittal by a Jury a strong moral sentiment was allowed to outweigh the obligation of statute law. In a breaking of the Volstead Act and acquittal by a Jury, appetite and self-will are given greater weight than the public weal. If the breakers of the Volstead Act are to rank with those who refuse to obey a tyrannical law, then the violators of the Narcotic laws must belong in the same class, and bootleggers should be placed in the ranks of the martyrs who refuse to burn incense to idols. Such a confusion of values leads to moral anarchy.

Mr. Battle is sadly inaccurate in his reference to the trial of the seven Bishops. He says, "The seven Bishops undoubtedly violated the provisions of the statute in the time of James II . . . Nevertheless they were acquitted by the Jury." Now the fact of the matter is that the Bishops were presented for trial, not for breaking a statute, but because they refused to read a Declaration of Indulgence by the King. They refused on the ground that Parliament had pronounced both in the reign of Charles II and of James II that the sovereign was not constitutionally competent to dispense with statutes in matters Ecclesiastical. The Jury acquitted them according to the law and not against the law.

Mr. Battle's whole article is written in the spirit of the excessive individualism of a pioneer civilization. As to Jury-trial, there is a large body of weighty opinion that the eminent jurists who drew up the Wickersham Report are correct in asserting that no constitutional right is taken away from the citizen by their recommendation. Mr. Battle's total indifference to the welfare of Society is a pathetic manifestation of that 18th Century spirit.

In an address before the International Congress of Philosophy, held in Boston in 1926, Dean Pound said that we needed a new philosophy to help us "to make our pioneer devices for criminal justice serve the purpose of an urban and industrial civilization,"—a philosophy "that will enable us to overhaul our pioneer institutions and criminal law and adjust our 18th Century bills of rights with their extravagant securing of individual rights to the need for general security in the crowded city of today."

This philosophy will not be found in Mr. Battle's passionate article with its confused values, inaccurate history and unrestrained individualism. It is, however, latent in the 18th Amendment and the "hated" Volstead Act. Their underlying philosophy is the duty of the individual to submit to restrictions for the good of the whole. Individual liberty is limited by corporate responsibility. A realizing sense that people are, in the Biblical language, "members one of another" will give us the philosophy that will solve the problems of an increasingly complex civilization.

Girls' Friendly Society

The program at the G. F. S. for the season of 1929-30 has been, and from all indications will continue to be, just full of good things. Starting with our first meeting on October 7, 1929, there has been "something doing" every night.

We have had a number of interesting talks and lectures, some illustrated—Doctor Moore on "Germany," Mrs. Pfahler, "Dallying Thru Devonshire, England," and Miss Blanche Moore on "A Trip to California," which she made during the past summer. Mrs. Jump gave an interesting account of the conditions of women in our prisons. We have had a talk on interior decorating, on "Peace," and our Armistice Day talk was given by Miss Anne Daley, who is in charge of current events.

We have had parties at Hallowe'en, Thanksgiving and Christmas. A surprise miscellaneous shower was given to Miss Helen Patman, who is to be married in the near future, and was such a happy occasion that a number of the girls have at last decided to "set the date."

Our Christmas Dinner and Sale, in spite of the stormy evening, was a great success, and we want to thank our many friends for their loyalty and support.

At Christmas we filled one hundred stockings and dressed fifty dolls for the Philadelphia General Hospital.

The first Diocesan Banquet of the G. F. S. was held at the Penn Athletic Club on January 25th. Nine hundred and fifteen persons attended, and forty-eight of these belonged to St. Stephen's Branch. It was most inspiring, and so successful that it will probably become an annual event.

On February 8th, there will be a trip to the Rodin Museum. On the 10th, a Valentine Party. On the 17th, Motion Pictures of the Conowingo Dam. and an interesting story, told by Ella Wistar Haines, of the historic Indian country along the Susquehanna. On the 24th, there will be a debate. Subject, "Will the Talking Pictures Ever Take the Place of the Legitimate Stage?"

Of course, we are working very hard for our Special Effort Fund, hoping to surpass last year's total, which was the largest we have ever had, and there is no doubt that with the continued help and encouragement of our leader, Miss Moore, and our Associates, that we will "get there."

Hedwig L. Kauffmann,
Secretary.

A HELPFUL PRAYER AND MEDITATION

From—A Book of Modern Prayers: McComb.

For the Indwelling of the Spirit

Spirit of purity and grace: how can we thank Thee for the glory of those early visions and for Thy rebukes of our low ambitions? O gird us, we pray Thee, that we may no longer fear that which is difficult nor scorn that which is ordinary. Let our common task glow again with the light of holy purpose, and give us some part in Thy work which forever abides.

Conform our lives with Thine eternal will. Give us grace to cast ease aside and to act in the day of our opportunity. Let no past grandeur chill our ardor and no idle dream of the future arrest us in the duty of today; and if we need the discipline of failures and sorrow, help us to be refined and not consumed by the flame.

We acknowledge every movement of Thy Spirit within us to create and to release our best purposes. And when we fall from our enthusiasms may we be still with Thee. May we clasp hands with duty as with a dear friend, and so may we have the joy in Jesus in whose name we offer ourselves anew to Thee. Amen.

A Sign of Promise

In July, 1929, the total legal reserve life insurance in force in the United States companies reached and passed the sum of a hundred billion dollars. This amount is more than twice the volume of life insurance in the entire world, although the United States contains only one-sixteenth of the world's population. In 1922 the United States attained the first 50 billions, and in the last six and a half years there was acquired the remaining half of the 100 billions now in force, distributed among 65 million policy holders, being an estimated average of $1540 per policy holder and $850 per capita of the total population of the United States. It is estimated that a second 100 billions of life insurance will be attained in 1930.—Condensed from the annual report of the North Western Mutual Life Insurance Company.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

This number of the Parish News will come into your hands on Confirmation Sunday. I hope that there will be a good attendance to welcome the new communicants. Such an occasion is full of interest to every heart that sympathizes with youth and appreciates the aspirations that lead to such a step and realizes the importance for the spiritual life of a courageous expression of our ideals and higher instincts. Let each one recall his or her own confirmation, and ask whether there is not reason for repentance and a renewed dedication to the service of God.

"So much to do, so little done,"
Ah! yesternight I saw the sun
Seek beamless down the vaulted gray
The ghastly ghost of yesterday.

"So little done, so much to do,"
Each morning breaks on conflicts new.
Yet eager brave, I'll join the fray
And fight the battle of the day.

Mr. Donovan is so much in demand as a missionary speaker that I was not able to secure him for the Sunday after Easter. The first open date is June 8th. On that Sunday Mr. Donovan will come to us. I hope that arrangements can be made for a church dinner on Friday, June 6th, at which he will be the guest of honor. I would that his fiancée, Miss Kirk, could also be present. I learn that when she was at the Deaconess Training School on Spruce Street, she used to attend St. Stephen's. So there is another link uniting us, besides her missionary career in Africa where she continued the work of Mrs. Ramsaur, née Miss Conway. I look forward to a new interest in missionary work as a result of our association with these heroic missionaries. Not one leaf would I strip from the laurels of the Byrd expedition. They are all brave, much enduring, greatly-daring men. But it seems to me that the missionaries in Equatorial Africa essay a harder task for a nobler purpose.

Almost any religion is better than none. Just as it is better for the soil that weeds should spring up rather than that it should be exposed and unsheltered to the scorching rays of the sun. But there is a vast difference between religions. There is not one that has not some element of good in it. Indeed, a lie, naked and unashamed, disgusts and frightens every beholder, and is compelled to cover itself with some loin-cloth of truth to obtain admission in society. But in some religions the spiritual elements seem to evaporate with time, and the baser elements to increase. Such was the history of Mohammedanism and Buddhism.

One of the great sources of degradation of religion is the effort to reduce it to terms acceptable and understandable by ignorant and unspiritual people. It is easier to debase the message than to refine the convert. Students of Church History realize that the efforts of the Church to win converts among the barbarian invaders of the Roman Empire of the 6th Century, led to a great adulteration and degradation of Christianity, which became more and more an external law, a matter of rites and ceremonies, of Church law and ordinance, and less and less a life and spirit. Gregory the Great, the great Missionary Pope, who sent St. Augustine to England, was one of the greatest debasers of Christianity, culturally and spiritually. He extended the dominion of the Church, but he lessened the spirituality of the message.

Deeply ought the lesson of his life to be pondered by the Christian teacher. It is well to reach the multitudes, but it is not well if those who have the finer insights turn their backs on their visions and deliberately coarsen the message to suit a debased taste. It is inevitable and not blameworthy that an uncultured and unrefined person should reveal his lack of culture and refinement in his teaching. He can only express himself according to his kind and expression is one of the necessities of a developing life. But it is the betrayal of a trust, when those who have a deeper insight into the truth, copy such methods and shrink from delivering their own message for fear that the multitudes will take offence and turn away saying "This is a hard saying." Great injury has been done by erecting the man-on-the-street into the final judge. "I speak as to wise men, judge ye what I say," wrote the Apostle. As a teacher, he sought to bring men up to his level and appealed not to their prejudice, but to their reason and their higher nature.

One of the great services that St. Stephen's ought to render this city is to present the gospel of Jesus Christ in its purity, simplicity and spirituality. It is amazing how Ecclesiasticism and Bibliotary have overlaid the gospel. In some Churches, particularly among Anglo-Catholics, the great aim is to exalt the Church, not as an agency, but as an Ultimate End, whereby it becomes a great idol. While in other Churches, particularly among the so-called Fundamentalists, the chief aim is to exalt the Written Word so that the Bible becomes a weight instead of a wing, a book of rules and dogmas instead of a book of inspiration and principles. It shall be our aim more and more to present Christianity at St. Stephen's as predominantly a life, requiring indeed doctrinal statements and ecclesiastical institutions for its perpetuation and promulgation, but relegating them to a secondary place, as liable to change and adaptation, and without the ultimate character of a life of love and service.

As the Christian Business Men have given up their noonday services at St. Stephen's, we shall continue these services ourselves at the end of the Lenten season. Many prominent ministers have promised their aid. The Business Women's Christian League will continue to conduct the services on Tuesdays, after the Lenten season. I hope that the services under these new auspices will retain all the excellences of the past, and may even acquire some new elements of uplift and inspiration.

The following is a tentative list of speakers who have been secured to conduct the services in the near future:

Oberammergau Passion Play

The Rev. Dr. Otto Lang, of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Highland Falls, will deliver a lecture on the Oberammergau Passion play in St. Stephen's Community House on Friday, April 25th, at 8 P. M. Dr. Lang himself is a native of the quaint Bavarian town, and as a child played minor roles in the great drama of the life of Christ. Many of his relatives and friends were and are principals in the cast. One of his relatives, Anton Lang, played the part of Christus for many years. The lecture will be illustrated with beautifully colored slides.

Dr. Lang is being brought here under the auspices of the Business Women's Christian League Club, the Girls' Friendly Society and the King's Daughters of St. Stephen's. It is hoped that many of the congregation will take advantage of this opportunity to hear Dr. Lang. Tickets, 50 cents.

Miss Cornelia L. Ewing

To her wide circle of friends the death of Miss Ewing must have come as news of her translation, rather than of a death in the usual sense. A few days before she had been with them, interested in their interests, alive to all the amenities, affections, claims of life, and then she was taken away and they saw her no more. In such a sudden transition the sense of our personal loss is obscured by a realization of her gain. We can but be glad that she was spared long suffering and any gradual decline of powers, that we can remember her as she was, with something of Britomarte in her look and bearing, like Spenser's heroine, unstained by the sordidness of life and alert and equipped to help others. Wide-spread were her interests. Sorely will she be missed. Nowhere more than in St. Stephen's, where, like her much loved brother, she was a tower of strength, a diffuser of loyalty and kindness, and the much beloved Director of the Benevolent Society for years.

Many members from St. Stephen's went out to the Church of the Redeemer, Bryn Mawr, where the funeral service was held, the present Rector of the Church of the Redeemer being assisted by the former Rector of that Church, the Rev. Dr. George Calvert Carter, and by Dr. Grammer, who took the service at the grave.

Profoundly grateful ought both those Churches to be, St. Stephen's and the Church of the Redeemer, for the example and influence of such a life and character. The children of a soldier, both Mr. Hunter Ewing and his sister had in a pronounced degree the virtues of a soldier; gifts of leadership, loyalty, courage, a high and chivalrous conception of life and its duties. They were soldiers and servants of Jesus Christ, and they united most beautifully devotion to duty with the cultivation of the arts that adorn and beautify life. Greatly loving, she was greatly beloved.

For all the saints, who from their labours rest,
Who Thee by faith before the world confessed,
Thy Name, O Jesus, be forever blessed,

C. E. G.

In Memoriam

In the death of Miss Ewing, the Benevolent Society has lost a dear, faithful friend. Her interest in our work was unwavering and her financial assistance often helped us carry on when otherwise our work would have been materially curtailed. Miss Ewing's cheery, happy disposition won the love of all members of the Society, and her good influence will be felt for many years to come.

Isabel P. Davis.

LORD BALFOUR

All honor to the miner who descends
Through gas mephitic, and death-masking gloom,
To rescue comrades from a prison-tomb
And bring them back to life and light and friends.

And honor to the Thinker, unafraid
Of hosts oppugnant and their boastful cries,
Who fights for Truth 'gainst crowned and regnant Lies,
For Truth by Judas Sophistry betrayed.

Such was thy glory, Balfour, in a day
When Comus with his magic brew had changed
Philosophy to Science, and deranged
The faculty that sees the heaven-sent ray.

Unshaken was thy trust in Reason high
And primal instincts that can never die.

To make up for inflicting my own apprentice verses upon you, I publish the following beautiful lines which I recently came across. They have the authentic note of poetry:

"The world stands out on either side,
No wider than the heart is wide.

Above the world is stretched the sky,
No higher than the soul is high.

The heart can push the sea and land
Farther away on either hand;

The soul can split the sky in two
And let the face of God shine through.

But East and West will pinch the heart
That cannot keep them pushed apart.

And he whose soul is flat—the sky
Will cave in on him by and by."

—Edna St. Vincent Millay.

The Woman's Auxiliary

Mrs. George P. Pierson was the speaker at the February meeting of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, and there were thirty members present to hear her. She was for many years doing missionary work among the Ainu in Japan.

The Ainu occupy the northernmost island of Japan, and are a primitive and poor people, ravaged by tuberculosis. The climate is bitterly cold nine months of the year. With all their handicaps these people are earnest and eager for education and help.

Mrs. Pierson had many examples of their handiwork with her—wood carving, embroidery and pottery.

There was no speaker at the March meeting, but the time was too short for the many full and interesting reports of the delegates. The next meeting will be held April 17th.

Beulah E. Hollar, Sect'y.

Burd School Receptions in May

The Burd School ought to be more widely known. To that end the following invitation is being sent to the clergy of the diocese, and through them to the members of the Woman's Auxiliary in each parish. Of course the members of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Stephen's are invited with special urgency:

Reverend and dear Brother:

The Principal and Lady Visitors of the Burd School are planning to give two receptions and afternoon teas at the School, 4226 Baltimore Avenue, on Friday, May 2nd, and Saturday, May 3rd, from 2 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

This institution, under the care of the Rector and Vestry of St. Stephen's Church, educates and equips for life fatherless girls, giving the preference to the daughters of the clergy. It is quite a unique institution in many of its features, and it is important that its work should be more widely known.

The School is supported entirely by the income from endowments, and there is no plan for raising money latent in this invitation. The only purpose is to bring together the members of our Church who should know about the workings of the School.

The clergy of the Diocese and their wives are being invited to the teas and receptions, and we shall be greatly obliged if you will transmit this invitation to the members of the Woman's Auxiliary in your parish.

In addition to a notice from the Chancel, will you please publish this invitation in your parish paper.

Yours sincerely,

CARL E. GRAMMER.

The Bishop White Parish Library Association has just completed its ninetieth year of service. It may not be generally known that the purpose of the Association is to furnish books of a theological nature to clergymen in feeble parishes and mission stations, whose slender salaries will not permit them any expenditures beyond the actual cost of living. When a request for books is made, it requires the endorsement of the clergyman's Bishop. A catalogue of standard books is then sent to the applicant, from which he makes his choice. An extract from the report of the Librarian is as follows:

"This has been a banner year for the Association. Fifty-two grants of books have been sent, and twenty more are about ready to go."

Appended is a list of contributors to the fund from St. Stephen's Church during the past year, and further subscriptions are requested from any other members who are interested in this work.

King's Daughters of St. Stephen's Church

We take this opportunity to thank all our friends who made it possible to have such a successful dinner and card party in February.

On Friday evening, April 11th, we are going to visit the Atlas Storage Company Building at 4015 Walnut Street. This company kindly allows us a small sum of money for each person, so we would like to have fifty or more in our group. Any one caring to inspect this storage plant at this time will be most welcome, and we shall meet at 4015 Walnut Street promptly at 7.30. All who go with us will, we feel sure, spend an interesting hour or so, and will also add to the funds in the King's Daughters' treasury.

The McAll Mission, a Brief Statement

So many have asked me, "What is the McAll Mission? What does it do?" that a word of explanation may be of service.

The Mission was founded in 1871 by an English clergyman, Robert Whittaker McAll, after a conversation with a French workingman who asked him for "A gospel of Reality and Liberty." The Franco-Prussian War, followed by the brief era of the Commune, had left in its wake thousands of disheartened, bewildered souls, who like this man were looking for a simple and reasonable faith. It was to supply their need and save them from atheism that Dr. McAll rented a small hall, and distributed cards with the invitation, "Some English friends would like to tell you of the love of Jesus Christ."

The work grew until there are now mission halls and institutional churches in a dozen of the large cities of France, while workers in automobiles and chapel boats carry the good news far afield. The work of the chapel boats is most interesting. As they go up and down the rivers, their missionary captains minister to sick bodies as well as souls, one of the boats being equipped with a violet ray machine. Their little paper, The Boatman's Friend, is greatly prized by the families who make their home on canal boats, and is used as a textbook to teach their children to read.

The work of the Mission is flexible, adapting itself to new needs. In the communistic centers of Paris, in isolated villages where there is neither priest, doctor nor nurse, you will find the McAll workers preaching the gospel, and helping the needy. An orphanage, started after the World War, now cares for 600 destitute children, and much work has been done among the refugee families from the devastated districts. The work among children, always a hopeful field, is expanding, and the Mission now supports seven recreation centers where little ones from the tenements enjoy fresh air, good food and the gentle Christian influence of the devoted men and women who minister to them. One dollar and forty cents will pay the expenses of a child for a whole week. The story of this work is told in a series of picture postcards, designed by a French artist, and issued by the Mission. The first card shows Toto, aged six, starting with his little sister Ninette, for their only playground, the city street. Toto falls into bad company, learns to smoke and is punished by his mother for neglecting Ninette. The next day he encounters a superb and imposing figure, an older boy in full Scout uniform. This young hero takes Toto to the Mission, where he has many wonderful experiences, not the least of them a bath, in which he is immersed until only his astonished face appears above the surface. He is given a toothbrush, and proudly explains its use to his friends at home. He goes to the vacation center and plays and shouts with the others on its spacious grounds. Best of all, as he tells his mother, Toto has found a friend—the Lord Jesus.

The work of the McAll Mission was warmly approved by the late Ambassador Herrick, our well loved representative in France. Dr. John R. Mott, who specializes in foreign missions, says of it:

"I am free to say, having studied organizations in possibly as many as forty-five different nations, that I know of no society more Christlike in conception, more wise in method and plan, more economical in administration, more apostolic in spirit."

The Mission is non-sectarian and is supported by gifts from all branches of the Church of Christ. The Philadelphia Auxiliary had its inception at the P. E. Church of the Holy Trinity.

You may be sure that your gift to the McAll Mission is a sound investment which will bear large dividends in the form of health and happiness and international good will.

Emilie Donehower.

I am very grateful to Mrs. Donehower for acting as the agent of this Mission in St. Stephen's. Mrs. Samuel Austin used to be greatly interested in it, and had parlor-meetings in its behalf. So many of our people have visited France, that I am sure there must be much sympathy for its people. Like Dr. Grenfell's work in Labrador the McAll Mission is above all denominational distinctions.

I commend it unreservedly. C. E. G.

Selection from Thomas à Kempis

This selection from Thomas à Kempis is full of wisdom. People make a mistake in giving such a preference to the last books (many of which are essentially ephemeral and unimportant) that they are ignorant of the great classics that express enduring thoughts in permanent form:

(CHAPTER LVII)

That a Man should not be too much Dejected, even when He falleth into some Defects

I. My son, patience and humility in adversities are more pleasing to me, than much comfort and devotion in prosperities. Why art thou so grieved for every little matter spoken against thee? Although it had been much more, thou oughtest not to have been moved. But now let it pass; it is not the first that hath happened, nor is it anything new; neither shall it be the last, if thou live long. Thou art courageous enough, so long as nothing adverse befalleth thee. Thou canst give good counsel also, and canst strengthen others with thy words; but when any tribulation suddenly comes to thy door, thou failest in counsel and in strength. Observe then thy great frailty, of which thou too often hast experience in small occurrences. It is notwithstanding intended for thy good, when these and such like things happen to thee.

II. Put it out of thy heart the best thou canst, and if it touch thee, yet let it not deject thee, nor perplex thee long. At least bear it patiently, if thou canst not joyfully. Although thou be unwilling to hear it, and conceivest indignation thereat, yet restrain thyself, and suffer no inordinate word to pass out of thy mouth, whereby Christ's little ones may be offended. The storm which is now raised shall quickly be appeased, and inward grief shall be sweetened by the return of Grace. I yet live, saith the Lord, and am ready to help thee, and to give thee greater comfort than before, if thou put thy trust in Me, and callest devoutly upon Me.

III. Be more patient of soul, and gird thyself to greater endurance. All is not lost, although thou do feel thyself very often afflicted or grievously tempted. Thou art a man, and not God; thou art flesh, not an Angel. How canst thou look to continue alway in the same state of virtue, when an Angel in Heaven hath fallen, as also the first man in Paradise? I am He who will strengthen with health them that mourn and do raise up unto Divine Glory those that know their own infirmity.

IV. O Lord, blessed be Thy Word, more sweet unto my mouth than honey and the honey-comb. What should I do in these so great tribulations and straits, unless Thou didst comfort me with Thy holy discourses? What matter is it, how much or what I suffer, so as I may at length attain to the port of salvation? Grant me a good end, grant me a happy passage out of this world. Be mindful of me, O my God, and direct me in the right way to Thy Kingdom. Amen.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

These reports of the various societies tell their own story and need little comment from me. We have had a successful year, a year of harmony and steady endeavor. The Church raised its Expectation. We have reorganized our giving and adopted a missionary. We have taken over the charge of the Noonday Services every week-day except Saturday (which has always been a holiday) and Tuesday, which the Business Women's Christian League has charge of. These were the services of which the Christian Business Men have had charge for the past eight years. They chafed under the restrictions which I laid upon the loan of the Church, for I wished unedifying and controversial topics to be avoided, and withdrew in spite of my invitation to continue on those terms. We felt that the services were too useful to be discontinued, and are keeping them up with the assistance of other ministers. Thus far the attendance has been most encouraging.

During August and half of September the Church will be closed for repairs. A window in memory of Miss Anna J. Magee has been ordered from the D'Ascenzo Studios and will be in place by the time that the Church is opened in September.

The Church has sustained a loss by the death of Mr. Clement Restein that will be felt, I fear, in many homes. For over 25 years Mr. Restein has presented a barrel of turkeys or chickens to be distributed in our Christmas baskets. Though his residence was near Hatboro, he kept up his connection with St. Stephen's. He looked on our down-town Church as a field of service. This is an aspect of a Church that needs to be emphasized. It is one in which a Church in the heart of a great city far surpasses the suburban Churches. I realized this first in my second rectorate, which was in a Church in Walnut Hills, a fashionable suburban section of Cincinnati. There was not a needy person in the congregation, and there was no demand upon the Communion Alms. I felt that my ministry was shorn of much of the power that it had exercised in the small town in Maryland that I had left. What the suburban Churches need is more poor members, so that the Church may not be merely a social club of people of a certain set. And what the city needs is more people of comparative leisure, who can take part in their activities and develop their societies. A Church ought to be first a house of prayer, a place of worship under the most favorable conditions, secondly, a place of teaching where Christian doctrines are taught and Christian principles are applied to life, and thirdly, a place of work, where Christian influence can be spread, Christian friendships formed and Christian service rendered.

May St. Stephen's prosper and develop in all these various fields. That is our aim.

I expect to leave for the Summer after the third Sunday in June, and will spend the holiday in the Schwangunk range of mountains, New York, the range in which the well-known resort, Lake Mohonk, is situated. My post office will be Cragsmoor, Ulster County, New York. I have a good hope since I have been able to stand up to the winter's work, that after this summer's rest I shall be more vigorous than I have been for years.

May God keep us all in peace, health and safety.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

The Lost Self or
The Revisited Church

(On May 4th a young mother who used to be on our Altar Society and was married by me, revisited the Church with her two little daughters. I was charmed to meet them, and particularly thrilled by the young mother's emotions. "The theme both heart and my fancy employs," as Cowper wrote of the felled colonnade of trees. The result is these lines in which I try to reproduce the metre of Matthew Arnold's well-known lines on Rugby. Of course, the subtle modulations of those exquisite verses are quite beyond me, but I thought that the experiment might appeal to those who are interested in the technique of versification, and that the soliloquy might strike a responsive chord in some breasts.)

Softly the organ preludes,
Hark! the processional hymn.
Come, let us enter, dear girls,
And join in the worship of God.

This was the church of my youth.
Of its chancel once I had charge,
Laid out the surplice and stole,
Filled up its vases with flowers,
And placed the right marks in each book.
Seats let us take in this pew,
Where often on Sunday I heard
Of Duty and Service and God,
And thought of the future so dim,
Of the future so longed for and feared.

This very aisle I once walked
In the festive array of a bride,
To meet at the chancel your father,
To be blessed out of two into one.
Down it I passed on his arm,
In a rapture of wonder and hope,
The organ exultantly pealing,
Our friends beaming brightly upon us.

Familiar the strains of the organ,
The chancel, the lights and the service;
Familiar the voice of the preacher,
The voice that was heard at our wedding—
But where is the girl who sat here?
'Twixt me and those dream-lands of dawn
Roll oceans of surging emotion,
Rise mountains of effort and pain.
I dream of my future no longer,
The day's work my whole thought engrosses,
The future belongs to my children.

"Secure" thought I once "is the Past"
But gone is the Past, I now learn;
Never can old scenes restore,
Unchanged though they be, the old self.
Bound for Eternity, we
Can anchor in no harbor here.

Report of Lenten Services and Wednesday Noonday Services

The Treasurer presents the annual report of these two popular services which continue to interest the public.

The daily average attendance has been maintained, the total number attending the Lenten Services being in excess of those of last year. The generous contributions were sufficient to meet all the expenses and will enable our Rector to use some of the balance of the funds for specific charitable purposes.

The high standard of the addresses was maintained, being delivered by several of the clergy who have assisted us in past years, augmented by some who were with us for the first time. It was particularly gratifying to note how well the services on Saturday were attended, the addresses being made by Rectors of churches in our own city.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

Balance, May 1, 1929	$403.46
Receipts	1,100.78
	$1,504.24
Disbursements	$910.25
Balance, May 1, 1930	$593.99

Wednesday Services

These services continue without interruption except during Lent.

It was noticed during the Lenten services that the attendance was larger on Wednesday, showing the interest taken in these services by the regular noonday congregation.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

Balance, May 1, 1929	$221.38
Receipts	206.73
	$428.11
Expenditures	$184.50
Balance, May 1, 1930	$243.61

Respectfully submitted,

W. Gardner Crowell,
Treasurer.

Since Easter, the average daily attendance at the noonday services under our Church, i. e., all the week-days except Saturday and Tuesday, was 66.

Report of Accounting Warden

The Accounting Warden is pleased to report that the finances of the Church are in a sound and satisfactory condition. During the year 1929 there was a material increase in the Endowment Fund due to the receipt of additional funds from the James R. Magee Estate and to the sale of securities and the reinvestment of the same. In addition, the sums given under the will of Miss Anna J. Magee have now been retained by the Trustee for the five-year period, and the income which was accumulated during that period has been added to the principal, and commencing with this year we will receive the income on approximately $135,000 additional.

The Endowment Funds of the Church are fully invested and all of the securities which the Church owns in its own right are in the possession of our fiscal agent, and those which are held in trust for the benefit of the Church are in the hands of the Trustee.

The receipts for the year 1929 came from the following sources:

Interest on Endowments and Bank Deposits	$39,118.02
Envelope Contributions	1,960.07
Pew Rents	2,807.24
Burd School	500.00
Community House Receipts	77.00
Total Receipts		$44,462.33

and the disbursements were as follows:

Salaries of Clergy and Assistants	$21,386.42
Organist, Music and Choir	9,104.82
Pension Premiums	1,102.50
Diocesan Assessments	1,910.33
Interest on Community House Mortgage	1,700.00
Repairs	1,496.91
Operating Expenses	8,270.53
Total Disbursements		$44,971.51

The receipts for Special Parochial Purposes were as follows:

Communion Alms	$1,019.44
Envelope aud other contributions	1,645.41
Interest on Endowments	1,683.15
		$4,348.00

and the disbursements were:

Communion Alms	$1,019.44
Paid to Treasurers of various Parochial Objects	2,639.16
		$3,658.60

The receipts for Diocesan and General Church Objects amount to $4,906.10 and the disbursements were the same.

The treasurer had on hand, December 31, 1929, $3,040.19 in further reduction of the Community House Debt and since December 31, 1929, some small additional payments have been received which will be used for the same purpose.

The contributions for parochial maintenance and pew rents showed a falling off of about $600 for the year 1929 as against 1928. The receipts for Communion Alms and Envelope Contributions for special purposes showed a slight increase. The total expenses for the year 1929 ran about $3500 less than the year 1928.

The arrangements have been made by the Vestry for the installation during the summer months by the D'Ascenzo Studios of a window in memory of Miss Anna J. Magee. It is expected that this window will be installed during August and early September, during which time the Church will also be closed for the purpose of having the walls of the Church suitably cleaned, provision for that having also been made by the Vestry.

The Accounting Warden is pleased to report the receipt of sums of money for the Howard Reifsnyder Memorial, not only from members of the congregation, but from people not affiliated with St. Stephen's Church. It is the confident hope that a sum sufficient will be received very shortly to enable the committee to finally complete its plans.

It is hoped that the Diocesan Missions and objects outside the Parish will continue to receive the support of the communicants of our Church so that the Church may continue to give to those objects the support which is expected of us and which the various objects properly deserve.

Respectfully submitted,

I. Smith Raspin,
Accounting Warden.

Benevolent Society Report

On November 7th, 1929, the first meeting of the Benevolent Society was held. All members were present and glad to begin the winter's work.

The winter of 1929 and 1930 was a hard one for the poor. Each week we were compelled to refuse appeals for additional sewing from women whose husbands were unemployed. In one case the small amount received from us was the sole income of a woman whose husband was in the hospital.

We provided work until our funds were about exhausted, and in January our bank account showed a balance sufficient for three more weeks only.

At this critical period friends came to our assistance and donated the following amounts: Dr. Grammer, $100; Mrs. John Coats Browne, $100; Mrs. Pancoast, $25; Mrs. Reifsnyder, $25; the Misses Davis, $50; making a total of $300. This enabled us to continue our activities until the close of the season.

In the season of 1928-1929 we received from the Church Warden, Mr. Raspin, $640.92, and in 1929-1930, $429.92. This was $211 less than was given the previous year.

Nine thousand eight hundred articles were made for 15 hospitals and institutions, and the appreciative letters received were a source of gratification to the members of the Society.

At the last meeting the usual luncheon was given and served by the managers and cutters. The tables were decorated with large vases filled with beautiful flowers sent by a friend. There was an abundance of chicken, ice cream, cake, etc. A number of mothers were given cake and candy to take home.

We greatly miss the presence of Miss Cornelia Ewing, our beloved Vice-President. Miss Ewing was always ready with words of encouragement and cheer in hours of doubt and perplexity; she never failed in love and sympathy for those in need, and invariably was the first to come forward with generous assistance when help was needed. The Society has indeed lost a friend whose place can never be filled.

In conclusion, the congregation is earnestly urged to give financial support to the utmost in helping the Society in its two-fold work for hospitals and the partial support of many worthy women.

Isabel P. Davis,
Secretary.

The Woman's Auxiliary

Seven meetings of the Woman's Auxiliary have been held as usual, beginning in October, 1929, with a corporate communion. The average attendance has been 21; there have been three deaths, Mrs. Milnor, a shut-in of many years, Miss Harriet Parker and Miss Gilman. Several new names have been handed in, but only one new member has appeared. There are 60 names on the list, of whom 44 have contributed toward the support of the Auxiliary.

In November Mrs. John E. Hill, Educational Secretary of the Diocese, made an address on the Jerusalem Conference, using as her guide the text-book for the Mission Study Classes for the year, viz., "Roads to the City of God," by Basil Mathews.

At the December meeting Christmas cheer and cards and boxes were sent to missionaries and others, and in January, Mrs. Henry D. Jump, of the Board of Prison Inspectors, told of the seamy side of life, and what steps had been taken to relieve the monotony of the lives of the women, as she finally had obtained the consent of the authorities to allow her to furnish material for the women to make dolls, aprons and pincushions, this little sewing giving them occupation instead of wasting hours in idleness.

In February Mrs. George Pierson, recently returned with her husband from Japan, after many years of missionary labor, principally among the Ainu, the aborigines, gave an interesting account of their customs and brought with her many specimens of their clothing and handiwork, and dwelt upon their eagerness for education and help.

When no speaker has addressed the meeting at St. Stephen's the delegates have reported what has transpired at the monthly meetings at the Church House, so that every one kept fully in touch with the activities, not only of the Diocese, but of the whole country and abroad, wherever the Church has extended. The delegates have been most faithful, and it is a pleasure to record that St. Stephen's from among 84 parishes was on the honor roll of 11 for attendance at all the meetings of the Domestic Committee. That credit is due to Mrs. Raspin and Mrs. Christie.

A special Lenten service was held at the Church of the Incarnation on April 14th, conducted by Dr. Levis, the Dean of the North Convocation, for all the parishes in that Convocation.

The corporate gift of last year contributed by the women of all auxiliaries has appeared this year, by wish of the National Council, under the name of the Advance Work Programme, and St. Stephen's has contributed to that in addition to fulfilling all pledges for the year, and also has aided in the emergency appeal for feeding the undernourished children of the unemployed in our city, a most unusual condition of existence in our midst.

A small green folder, called the Woman's Auxiliary News is issued monthly, and contains all information up-to-date and in advance, concerning the different committees, educational days, missionary and other devotional meetings, summer conferences and suggestions to suit every one's inclination, all for 25 cents a year!

Many opportunities are offered at meetings of all kinds to unite in prayer, in social service, such as cooperation with the work of the blind one day at their annual exhibition and sale, and in friendly intercourse at luncheons and teas and garden parties, and if those who are not delegates only realized what that position meant in so many respects they would be eager to undertake this responsibility, and should there be any one present who would like to share in these privileges of work for others, please join our Auxiliary another season, and help in whatever way possible to further the extension of Christ's kingdom, and there will be much joy in the doing of it.

Laura Bell,
President, St. Stephen's Auxiliary.

Annual Presentation Services

The Annual Presentation Services took place on Thursday, April 24th, at the Church of the Incarnation. Bishop Taitt was the celebrant, and Bishop Cook, of Delaware, preached.

The offering was collected by the treasurers of the banner parishes, not those giving the largest sums, but those having the highest average of contributors. In one parish every woman and girl had contributed.

The offering from our Diocese amounted to $12,500.31, an increase of $681.79 over last year. One hundred and ninety-eight parishes in the diocese had not been heard from.

This year $300,000 was spent for 190 workers—94 inside the United States and 96 outside; 31 retired and six in training.

Missionary Box Committee

On November 5, 1929, a cheque for $105 was sent from St. Stephen's Auxiliary to the Rev. W. D. Swain, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, for three Indian catechists—each $35 cheque to be sent with order for one suit of clothing and two suits of heavy underwear. The names were Mr. Samuel Broken-Rope, care of Rev. Dallas Shaw, Allen, South Dakota; Mr. Charles Long-Fish, care of Rev. D. W. Clark, Fort Thompson, South Dakota; and Mr. John DeWitt, care of Rev. E. Ashley, 506 Fourth Avenue, Aberdeen, South Dakota.

Letters of acknowledgment were received from all three with grateful thanks and God's blessing on St. Stephen's Parish. In fact, Arch-Deacon Ashley wrote: "Looking back over my almost 56 years of service among our Dakota Indians, I do not know how we would ever have gotten along were it not for the devotion and generosity of the Ladies' Auxiliary."

Mrs. Birney, our Treasurer, informs me we have a balance of $184.32 for the next year. This is most encouraging.

Girls' Friendly Society

The season just closing for St. Stephen's Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society has been a most interesting and happy one. The usual parties have been held and enjoyed by all. We have had a number of interesting talks and lectures, several of which were illustrated.

At Christmas we filled the usual number of stockings and dressed dolls for the children at Philadelphia General Hospital.

Of course, the biggest thing was our Special Effort Fund, which we use for our mission work. This year we have reached the total of $581.00, with the returns not all in yet. It is very gratifying as the girls work hard for the fund, and we appreciate all the help we have had from our many friends in St. Stephen's. We held two successful rummage sales, also a card party at the Adelphia Hotel. Miss Moore held a dinner and movie in her home, which was a great success. Also a number of the girls gave parties in their homes. Each little bit helped to swell the total, and make this our banner year. We are very grateful to our loyal leader and associates for the help and encouragement they have given us.

Our closing night will be May 26th, and we are all looking forward to a busy and happy summer.

Respectfully submitted,

Hedwig L. Kauffmann,
Secretary.

Young People's Club

The Young People's Club has held meetings twice a month and has given money for the bed for the Episcopal Hospital, a sum to the Community House, and the usual amount of work for the children and mothers from the Social Service Department of the Jefferson Hospital.

In June we were to take 40 children to the Zoo, but as the day was rainy we entertained them in the Community House with a lunch. Afterwards, one of the children, a boy of ten years, who shows a good deal of talent, played the piano and the children all sang and enjoyed themselves very much.

At Christmas we entertained 40 children for supper. When they had finished we had a movie and gave each a present and candy when they went home; and in February we had 25 of the mothers to supper and gave each one a nice new handbag, something I think very few had ever had before.

In March we had a guest with us for a turkey dinner, and each one gave her a small gift which pleased her very much.

We all feel we have given those less fortunate than ourselves some happiness, and hope it has been a bright spot for them to look back upon as they continue their daily tasks.

Hannah G. Reifsnyder,
President.

Report of "Whatsoever" Circle of King's Daughters of St. Stephen's Church

This Circle has held sixteen meetings this season, with an average attendance of twelve members. Our evenings commence with supper, served about 6 o'clock, which seems to bring us into closer fellowship with each other. About 7.30 we are ready for sewing, and this year we have finished 57 articles for the Hope Day Nursery. One of our members is experienced in the making of children's hats, and she has made an attractive hat to match each outfit. This same member also made 19 flannelette infants' night-caps, for little children at St. Christopher's Hospital. A package of clothing was sent by another member (in the name of our Circle) to an invalid woman with twelve children, living in Georgia.

We held a card party last October in order to raise funds for the support of an aged brother and sister, who had practically no income. We also had a dinner and card party in February.

This season we have come in closer contact with other members of the organization throughout the city, and had a very pleasant visit from the Vice-President of Philadelphia County, who came to supper and stayed the entire evening, giving us many helpful suggestions.

At Christmas we contributed toward the Church baskets and also filled two dozen stockings for the children at the Day Nursery.

Our meetings are very informal, but are happy occasions for us all, and each member can be counted on to work untiringly for any project undertaken.

Bertha T. Walshe,
President.

Mothers' Meeting

The Mothers' Meeting has 175 on the roll with 26 new members and three deaths. There is an average attendance of 75—sometimes reaching 100.

Attractive pupils come on call to entertain us from the schools of Mrs. C. M. Stine, Miss Emily Krider Norris and Miss Dora Shoemaker. Miss Mary Page Grammer has delighted us with songs in several languages. We have also had a number of entertainments given by families of the members.

The moving pictures provided for us by Dr. Grammer once a month are a great attraction.

A word of appreciation is due our faithful verger, Mr. Carrigan, for his discretion in the selection of the films. Not once in the several years we have had these pictures has there been given us a single objectionable feature. In these days of lurid films we consider this worthy of note.

One hundred and fifty members enjoyed the outing to Atlantic City on July 11, 1929.

For many of the mothers this was their only day of vacation, and the enjoyment and appreciation were manifest.

The only drawback to the occasion was the absence of Dr. Grammer who always enters into the activities of the day with great enthusiasm, adding much to the pleasure of the members.

Our cheque for $120.00 has been sent to the Diocesan Campaign Treasurer, fulfilling our pledge for the fourth year for that fund; $55.00 has been turned over to Dr. Grammer to be used by him for the Community House. Of this amount $43.00 was the result of the benefit performance so kindly given to the mothers through the courtesy of Mr. Kevin and the Players' Guild of the Church; $10.00 each was contributed to the Howard Reifsnyder Memorial Hospital Bed and the Women's United Thank Offering, and our usual $5.00 for palms on Palm Sunday, making a total of $200.00.

Respectfully submitted,

Blanche M. Harper,
President.

Parish Visitor's Report

When to give and when not to give has been the serious problem of the past year for the Parish Visitor. There was not enough money to give even a little to many who asked for help.

Men were looking for work, their shoes almost worn through, not warmly enough dressed for cold weather, and always hungry. The women were asking for a day's work to get food for their children. A number of the men wanted money enough to get out of Philadelphia, hoping to find work in another city. Funds for transportation were not available, but many were helped with enough for a meal, or a night's lodging, and milk for the children where there was a family.

Monthly aid has been given to three elderly men and several women, and fruit taken to those seriously ill.

Through Mr. Atmore, coal at half price was obtained for two widows, and a generous member of the church paid the rent, electric and gas bills for a family in most distressing circumstances.

The flowers from the altar were taken every week to the sick. This year, at the suggestion of Miss Laura Bell, a card was enclosed which read, "These flowers, from the Altar of St. Stephen's, are sent to assure you of our friendship. May their beauty bring you a message from our Heavenly Father."

The 97 baskets given at Christmas were joyfully received, and each recipient was sure the chickens were the tenderest, and everything else in the basket, the best ever given, with special mention of Mr. Atmore's mince pies.

Three hundred and forty-three visits were paid to 121 different persons. Twenty-six pairs of shoes, 63 pairs of rubbers and 7 layettes were given during the year. The Parish Visitor will close this report by asking for contributions of new and partly worn clothing. Were it not for the many baby garments made during Lent by St. Stephen's Aid Society, the closet would be empty.

Respectfully submitted,

Idella W. Higham.

The Burd School

We bring to you the report of the Board of Women Visitors to the Burd School, rejoicing that there is such a school, so ably conducted and with pupils and graduate scholars giving constant evidence in their school work and general behavior of the results of Miss Tappen's influence and direction.

We have now thirty-eight girls in the school, two of these, Adelaide Mastick and Bernice Bovell, are students at the University of Pennsylvania. Five other girls are continuing their education in various colleges, three in Virginia State College for Teachers and one at Pennsylvania State College and one at the University of New York. Lillian Bovell, at Virginia State College, has been awarded one of the coveted honors in recognition of her high scholastic standard. She has been elected to a society ranking with that of a Greek Letter Society. The two girls at Pennsylvania State College are on the Honor Roll. Shirley Edwards, who will graduate in June from the University of New York, is specializing in Harmony and the Theory of Music, preparatory to teaching in the public schools. Virginia Downward, a graduate of the Burd School and an alumnus of the University of Pennsylvania, is working at the Newark Museum in Newark, N. J. She is evidently doing excellent work as she has been sent to the Museum in Buffalo, N. Y., for a week's observation of their methods.

During the year there has been but one case of illness, and that merely a case of mumps, a remarkable record for any school.

One new girl has been admitted during the year and one was withdrawn by relatives. On Friday and Saturday, May 2nd and 3rd, the Burd School gave a reception to all Church men and women in the Diocese, that the Diocese at large might become better acquainted with the aims and works of the school. As individual invitations could not be sent out the Rector of each Parish was asked to extend this invitation to all members of his congregation. It was disappointing that so few availed themselves of this opportunity to visit the school.

This year all our girls will go to the same summer camp, the younger children going in July and the older girls in August.

Respectfully submitted,

Emily K. Campbell,
Chairman.

The Community House

The Community House has carried on about the same work as usual this season.

In the autumn the House Committee paid for some necessary work, and had an electric dumb-waiter installed which was very badly needed and which is working very nicely. Our Committee paid half of the bill from a fund we had for that purpose, the balance being paid by the Church.

I feel we owe Mr. Carrigan a vote of thanks for the work he did in getting bids, and also looking after the work while it was in progress.

We have endeavored to keep the building in good condition for its uses.

Respectfully submitted,

Hannah G. Reifsnyder,
Chairman.

TREASURER'S REPORT

St. Stephen's Community House Fund

Balance on hand May 15, 1929		$928.17
Receipts during the past season		1,170.89
		$2,099.06
Expended during the season		$1,180.78
Balance		$918.28
This balance includes:
General Account	$847.05
Scenery Account	71.23
		$918.28

Our receipts come from rental charges for the use of the Community House; Association dues from the Business Women's Christian League; and for rental of the stage. Money received for use of the Community House is turned over to St. Stephen's Church, and the balance is used for purchasing necessary equipment. Our one big accomplishment this season has been the installation of an electric dumb waiter, costing $900.00.

Treasurer.

Church Periodical Club

A missionary bishop once told the Church Periodical Club that the greatest hardship his clergy had to meet was loneliness. In spite of the telephone and the motor car, this is still true in many localities, and the loneliness is not confined to missionary workers. What of the shut-ins, the aged couple left in the home from which the children have gone forth, the gifted boy or girl, with no encouragement for their ambitions, the man or woman striving to make good a life that has gone wrong? To these and to many other souls the Church Periodical Club ministers.

Thirty-five members of St. Stephen's continue to send regularly their current magazines, and thirty-seven subscriptions are entered in the names of the recipients. Five of these still go to the soldier boys at Fort McClellan, near Anniston, Alabama.

Calendars are mailed at New Year's and cards are sent at Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter.

Many magazines are taken to Jefferson Hospital.

Books were sent to help in establishing Community Libraries at Gulfport, Miss., and at Chester, W. Va.

We are also assisting St. Andrew's Mission-on-Mountain, at Harper's Ferry, W. Va.

Money was given towards purchasing books for the Lansdale Memorial Library, at East Birmingham, Ala.

Many words of gratitude come to us, for they tell us "letter friends mean much in our isolated lives." Most often the thanks are for simple remembrances. "It is good to feel we are not forgotten." "As the magazines come each month we know that some one is taking thought for us." "Work is made easy by these tokens that those at home are thinking of me."

It is for our magazines, for our thought that these people are giving thanks. How impossible that we should fail of this small service with its far-reaching effects.

Mary M. Roberts,
Librarian.

St. Stephen's Aid Society

The work of the Society was continued this year as usual during Lent. Instead of meeting on Friday mornings in the Parish House, the members of our group and other friends in the congregation took the baby garments and made them at home.

The change in our method of supplying the necessary garments for Mrs. Higham's work proved quite satisfactory and the number of garments on hand will carry the work through to next season. We wish to thank a friend of Mrs. Higham's, Mrs. William Carroll, of Red Cross Auxiliary 64, for her donation of five caps, one blanket and one pair of bootees, and to express our appreciation of her interest. Thanks are also due to an unknown benefactor who sent us two pairs of beautifully knitted socks.

Yearly Report of "Pollyanna" Girl Scout Troop No. 110

We are still playing the "Glad Game," although we are waiting for more playmates from St. Stephen's to join in the fun, to learn to do big things in a pleasant way.

Catherine, Marie, Alice, Grace, Margaret and Dorothy all invite the new Scouties to join.

Just now, we are getting ready for our big handicraft exhibit next fall. In fact, all Girl Scout Troops are busy as bees making useful and artistic things.

Sure you can learn, if you come to our Girl Scout Meeting, held every Thursday, in St. Stephen's Parish House, 19 South 10th Street, at 6 P. M.

We are so proud of our big "Pollyanna" Scouts. Three more are in training for nurses here. They are Margaret Justis, who went down to Maryland to a hospital; Edith Kilduff, at the Women's Private Hospital, West Philadelphia; Rita Fulton finished from the Hahnemann Hospital May 2nd, and graduated with high honors. So far, eleven "Pollyannas" have trained from Scouting to nurses from Troop No. 110.

During the year we have taken care of a family of poor kiddies in Croyden, Pa. We started a Girl Scout Troop in Cornwells, Pa. Forty girls joined, passed their test and named themselves the "Hoover" Troop. Next, we sent gifts to hospitals, fruit and toys, books and clothing, also to invalid friends.

We wish to express our thanks to the good people of St. Stephen's Church for courtesy extended in the past two years.

Our committee consists of—Dr. C. E. Grammer, Dr. C. Nevin, Mr. Carrigan, Troop Council; Mrs. L. Davis, Mrs. F. Johnson, Mother's Committee.

Sincerely yours,

Margaret Schaller,
Captain.

The Sunday School

Steady improvement and progress is to be noted in the work of the Sunday School during the year just past. There have been no radical departures from the change in curricula instituted last year. Our present effort is to develop to their highest point of achievement the new lines of approach in religious education which were then begun.

Both in offerings and in attendance there has been an increase. The Lenten offering this year was $195 as compared with $170 a year ago. Each of the classes, by special activities on their part, assisted in this result, although no small part in the increased interest in missionary giving was due to the person and the work of Mr. Donovan, in Liberia, whom they were privileged to hear. Inspired by him, missionary activities assumed a new perspective and significance. So far was this true that one of the Sunday School members has announced her intention of studying to become a missionary. And, of course, she wants to go to Liberia.

The Primary Department grew to such proportions during the year that it became necessary to create two classes. The boys' class in the upper school has doubled in size during the year.

With the presentation of the Sunday School Christmas and Easter festivals there was an effort to improve the traditional type of Sunday School pageantry by the adaptation of ancient legends and mystery plays to modern purposes. The performance of "The Little Boy Whom Nobody Wanted," a medieval legend, at the Christmas season, and "Quem Qaeritas," an eighth century Easter mime, more recently, was in the pursuance of this ideal. Each play, regardless of the strain it put upon the kindness of those who consented to view them, was entered into with reverent feeling by those who had a part in them.

So far as vital statistics are concerned, there are nine classes with a corresponding number of teachers, five Church school officers, and an enrollment of ninety-one children.

Respectfully submitted,

Robert Kevin.

Reifsnyder Memorial Fund

Contributions for the endowment of a bed in the Episcopal Hospital in memory of the late Howard Reifsnyder, have totaled approximately $2,070.00 from members of the congregation and from former friends and business acquaintances. As the endowment of the bed will require a total of $5,000.00, it is hoped that those who have been planning to make a contribution to the fund will shortly send their gifts to the Committee's headquarters in the Church offices.

Robert Kevin,
Treasurer.

The Young People's Fellowship

Meetings of the Fellowship have been held Sunday nights throughout the fall, winter and spring, in the Guild Room of the Church. Our activities have been evenly distributed between the devotional and the discussion of social and religious problems.

Fellowship among the branches of the organization throughout the Diocese had been promoted by visits which our members have made monthly to similar groups in other Churches. The social side of Fellowship life has included frequent parties, with participation in the Diocesan Young People's Dance, in December, and the Fellowship Play given at the New Century Club.

The Provincial convention of Fellowships was held this year at Washington, D. C. St. Stephen's branch sent two delegates for the three days' session. To the convention went 135 representatives from the 52 branches of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, the largest single Diocesan representation there. Immediately following the provincial convention was the Diocesan Convention, which took place this year at St. Simeon's Church, Ninth Street and Lehigh Avenue. Bishop Taitt and the Rev. Dr. John R. Hart, Jr., Episcopal Chaplain at the University of Pennsylvania, were the special speakers. We feel that the year just past has been one of renewed inspiration and spiritual growth.

Respectfully submitted,

Gertrude Bixler,
President.

The Boy Scouts

Troop No. 2, the St. Stephen's Troop of the Boy Scouts of America, has grown steadily during the year and now numbers 34 members with an average attendance each week of between 25 and 30. Among these are one Eagle, six Star, and nine Second Class Scouts.

Last summer twelve of the boys of the troop spent a week at camp, there securing all the honors that were offered. Scout Francis Grindler passed the Junior Life Saving tests and Scout Fred Schmid was elected to the W. W. W., a fraternal organization in scouting.

On March 28th of this year, the troop engaged in an inter-patrol contest in knot-tying and semaphor signaling. The contest proved one of the most interesting of the activities in which the troop has engaged, and was won by William Madlung and William Bert, respectively. In April another contest in handicraft was arranged and this was won by William Madlung. A similar contest, this time in advancement, was won by Scout Keasley.

The boys appreciate the kindness of the many organizations at St. Stephen's Church who have drawn the troop in closer fellowship with the Church by permitting them to assist in the giving of rummage sales and in the packing of the Christmas baskets. A word of personal commendation should be extended to Assistant Scoutmaster Frank Labrie, for his untiring efforts to assist the growth and progress of the troop.

Respectfully submitted,
Richard Robinson,
Scoutmaster.

Now a word about the garden party and fair at Wyck, on Thursday, June 5th, from 2 until 8 o'clock. One thousand dollars for St. Ambrose Mission is the goal to be attained, and as Mrs. John Coats Browne has charge of the cafeteria, it behooves every good member of St. Stephen's not only to help her by contributions for the supper, but to come and eat it later.

Two hundred tickets at 25 cents each have been apportioned for this parish to dispose of for entrance to the garden at 6026 Germantown Avenue, the home of Mr. Caspar Wister Haines, and there will be music and other attractions at the booths, and the deaf and dumb choir from All Souls for the Deaf will "sing" hymns, and as Rev. Mr. Smaltz reads the words the choir illustrates them with rhythmic motions, an interesting and unique sight.

In case of rain the fair will be held at Christ Church parish house, Tulpehocken and McCallum Streets, Germantown, by courtesy of Rev. Mr. Arndt.

Shall We Not Call Our Experiences of Adversity Good?

That depends on what price we are ready to pay for deeper insight into the meaning of the world, for awakened hearts, for greater consequent ability to serve our comrades, and for unfaltering courage to further meet the demands of life. Some evil, some misfortune is inevitable. Nothing that we can do can change it or can drive it away. It is, as we say, as inevitable as a chance of Fate, but rather we should say, it is the will of God that we drink the bitter cup to the deep dregs. If we rebel and fight against it (as at first from human nature we can hardly help doing) we miss its blessing; and so it is, if we try to escape from it by flight or yield to it in weakness. Our path in the face of such inevitable ills is a dauntless acquiescence. Who knows, after all, what chains may be breaking which all unconsciously we had forged for ourselves, or how through calamity and acquiescence our souls may be freed to live on those higher spiritual levels to which we were blind in our unawakened hours of ease? On these levels a light is shining

"A light that never was on sea or land,
The consecration and the poet's dream."

CAMP FIREFLY

On the Perkiomen Near Collegeville, Pa., Under Management of the Business Women's Christian League

This camp is for business women and girls, who love to be out of doors. It is most delightfully and exclusively situated. The sleeping quarters are in wooden shacks, accommodating from two to five persons. We also have an attractive dining shack and recreational room.

Arrangements can be made for groups, such as Sunday School classes, clubs, etc., for week-end parties. All during June the camp is open for week-end parties, the regular season opening June 26th. Price of a week-end, $2.50; per week, $11.00.

Registrations are made in advance, by applying in writing to Miss Bertha I. Benson, 4549 North Mervine Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

Rev. Neville Joyner of Pine Ridge Agency, South Dakota, has made an appeal for quilt pieces. The Indian women make artistic quilts, which are sold to raise money for their Auxiliary and other church work. If donations of new cotton pieces, suitable for this work, are left at the Parish House, they will be greatly appreciated and forwarded by the Indians' Hope delegate.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

How interesting is life with its surprises, its problems, its variety, its inexorable demands. How dull must be existence for those of whom the world exacts nothing, whose day is not largely controlled by imperative demands. It may seem to the worker, compelled day after day to rise early and meet promptly the claims of business or family life, that nothing would be finer than to be able to lie a-bed indefinitely. But such freedom would soon pall on most of us. We would not know what to do with ourselves, and would soon harness ourselves up to some task or duty to get a kick out of life. It is the unexpected, the difficult, the dangerous that give life its romance and flavor of adventure; that call for courage and alertness, and constant adjustment of our inner life to meet the new conditions.

Another element is added when we grasp a central teaching of the religion of Jesus, namely, that the Universe is under control and these varieties of experience are brought about by a Potter who is shaping vessels for various uses, by a Refiner who is separating gold from dross by purifying fires, by a Captain who is training solders for campaigns. This faith gives submission a new grace.

This summer I read the private letters of General Robert E. Lee, and was profoundly impressed by his constant faith in an overruling Providence, and his profound conviction that no character had had either the finest opportunity for development, or sustained any real testing that had not borne adversity.

It is not strength, but weakness that rebels against misfortune or trouble. Anyone can fret, or whine or complain, and shout out, "If this is life, I refuse to play the game." It takes fortitude, and wisdom, and faith—which is only another name for courage and wisdom, acting in a realm of confusion, uncertainty and gloom,—to find the right road in a thicket of troubles when the sun has gone down and the moon gives no light. Happy he who in such straits has the compass of duty to guide his steps, and the unfaltering faith that made the last days of General Lee so beautiful and inspiring.

I commend these thoughts to those who are downcast by the problems of employment, or by the loss of friends and dear ones. Let us be brave and steadfast. Whatever may be the causes of the present distress (and it looks as if they were world-wide and deep-seated), here the distress is, and we must bear it manfully, and in the spirit of Christians. Of course, it is right that we should seek remedies and investigate the sources of the trouble. But the immediate duty, our special personal task, is to find the course of wisdom under existing conditions. We Americans are so wasteful and prodigal, that it is wholesome that we should learn to practice economy. It is appalling to me, that so much money should be spent on diversion, when there is so much poverty. It is foolish at such times to stand out for the highest wages before accepting a job.

I heard a gardener bemoaning his ill-luck because his employer had been obliged by hard times to discontinue his services. It never occurred to the gardener to offer to take a smaller wage for a while. But is not some such concession good sense? I hear of young people without jobs who have refused positions, at this time when positions are not many, because they thought that they should be offered a larger salary. Surely such stiffness is not wise. A celebrated man got his first position by asking for an opportunity to show what he was worth, and stating that the remuneration was of little importance. That was the right attitude. In old times apprentices had to pay for the privilege of learning. The opportunity was paid for. Look on a job as an opportunity. Remember that it is always easier for a person with a job to get a place than for a man without a job. The jobless man has to explain his condition. The man who is in employment is manifestly a man of proven value.

It was good to see such a fine congregation on September 21st. Never was the usefulness of the Envelope System more manifest. The church having been closed for seven Sundays, the charity fund was at the lowest ebb, and I made a request for an early return of the envelopes to carry me through October. But as soon as the offertory plates were brought up for presentation I realized that my request was unnecessary, and that the envelope users had anticipated me. All the plates were piled so high with envelopes that they had to be "presented" in three instalments. It is good to know that our parish responsibilities and the needs of the general Church have been so loyally borne in mind.

Nothing but expressions of gratification were heard from the congregation in regard to the renovations and the Magee window. The smoke of that conflagration at the electric switch about a year ago, and the dust sent upward by our radiators had stained and defiled our interior more than constant users of the church realized. Old friends on their visits back to the church told me that its beauty was dimmed by the dirt, but I did not realize the extent of the "uglification," to use a word from the immortal Wonderland, until I saw our new interior, so pure and clean and well lighted. Our interior, and particularly our reredos, are artistic glories of Philadelphia. Our beautiful memorials make our church the chief ecclesiastic shrine of beauty in our city.

The window by D'Ascenzo, in grateful memory of Miss Anna Magee, fits well with our Gothic architecture, and harmonizes with the other windows in that portion of the church. It is a fitting memorial to one of St. Stephen's chief benefactors. During her life Miss Anna gave over $200,000 toward the beautifying and equipment of the church, the rebuilding of the community house, and the purchase of a rectory. She also remembered it generously in her will. The Burds and the Magees are the chief benefactors of our parish. The memorials of the Burds are the Burd School for fatherless girls, the marble group dominated by the Angel of the Resurrection, and our exquisite baptismal font. The Magees are commemorated by the double window by Halliday, the mosaic of the Lord's Supper by the same versatile pre-Raphaelite artist, by the organ, the reredos and chancel, by the renovated interior, by the bust of Mr. James Magee in the vestibule, by this window in memory of Miss Anna, and by their generous bequests to the endowment of St. Stephen's. They loved this down-town church, and did everything in their power to anchor it permanently on Tenth Street, and to enable it to continue its work in spite of the changes wrought by the encroachments of business.

The parish sustained a great loss in the death of Mr. W. Gardner Crowell. In early life he was a Presbyterian, and he never officially connected himself with the Episcopal Church; but he was one of our most loyal members, a helper of good causes, and a beautiful character. The newspapers referred to him as a Vestryman of St. Stephen's. This was, of course, a mistake. It was an honor that was offered him several times, but which he persistently declined in his modest way. Though so bashful about accepting official position, he was no shirker from service. For some eight years he was the treasurer of the offerings at the Lenten Noonday services, and latterly of all the noonday services. He will be greatly missed. He was a gentleman of the old school, modest, self-effacing, utterly averse to anything like self-advertisement, loyal to obligations, constant in friendship and kindly to all men.

> None knew him but to love him,
> None named him but to praise.

The loss of such a friend and helper arouses us to the duty of enlisting new members and workers. St. Stephen's has many appeals; it has a beautiful interior. There is not its equal in the city for the combination of beauty, and light, and an atmosphere of Christian cheerfulness and hope. It has splendid music. Our organist is a celebrated composer and skilful musician, and has gathered together a magnificent choir that sings with mastery and finish. We have a modern message in our pulpit. Avoiding the Scylla of hard dogmatism, and the Charybdis of vague and dazzling rhetoric, it seeks to throw the light of the eternal verities on new problems, and to add to old truths, new insight, and to give them new settings.

We believe that religion should be more than a sedative, or a stabilizer, or brake; it should also be a light to our feet and an awakener of our enthusiasms.

With this message and equipment, we need co-workers who will help us to gather in the churchless, and will commend our church as a teaching church, which offers a field for service. In this paper is spread out the goodly list of societies that need members and workers to continue their fruitful activities.

Our Noonday Services, which were resumed on Monday, September 22nd, have an unusually large attendance, and will be addressed by leading ministers of this city. We bespeak for them the interest of the congregation.

I have recently been brought into contact with Anglo-Catholics. The more I hear them ventilate their theories and aspirations, the more reactionary and out of date appears their theology, and the more untenable their position. But they have one characteristic that I greatly admire; they pull together, they are ardent workers for their theories, and are indefatigable in their efforts to get people to come to their services. They do nothing but emphasize the good points of their ministers. If he is a poor preacher, they ignore it, and dwell on his pastoral gifts or his unworldly character, or his theological learning, or his beautiful reading. One thing they will not do, and that is to weaken his influence. They are his co-workers.

I have had such helpers in St. Stephen's, and have some still, but they are not numerous. Mr. Barton acted in this way, and brought in Mr. Reifsnyder, and Mr. Reifsnyder was constant in his efforts. Another such in-gatherer was Miss Mary S. Lee, who died early in the summer. She belonged to another parish, but whenever she met anyone to whom she thought that we could render spiritual aid, she sent them to us. She was a wonderful woman. A later and wiser age will gather such a born shepherd of souls into the ministry.

But the general attitude of our members has been the usual attitude of old-fashioned Episcopalians. They have felt it unnecessary to do any missionary work. They have left that to the minister. "Our church speaks for itself, makes its own appeal," Those who do not feel it may well be left to drift into other harbors.

All that I can say is that if that is to be the unchanged attitude of our membership, then the usefulness of our church will be greatly lessened. More and more must a down-town church rely on reaching the traveling public, the unchurched, the business people who feel the need of some devotional helps during the pressure of business. But there is also constant need for a working organization, to create atmosphere, to offer fields of service, and to knit together worshipers in Christian fellowship.

Why should not those who have found St. Stephen's a helpful church speak of it to others and invite them to partake of its privileges, and to share in its tasks?

One way in which this can be done is to send us the names of friends to whom we may send copies of our Parish News and of our special notices. We want to advertise more widely through postal cards our services both Sunday morning and night, and also on weekdays.

It is with great regret that I inform the congregation that our scheme of supporting Mr. Donovan, and having him as our missionary in Africa can not be carried out. His fiancee has been rejected by the Board. Her health, it is decided, is not equal to the requirements of a mission situated on one of the most trying coasts in the world—climatically. So Mr. Donovan can not return, if he marries. He believes that in a few years his fiancee's health will improve, so he intends to marry and stay in this country awhile, building up her health and further equipping himself for service in Africa.

There are troublesome conditions there which may clear up by the time he is able to return. This is his plan. I hope that he may be able to carry it out, for he is a uniquely gifted man of a rare spirit, of high courage and great faith. While I am profoundly disappointed that he can not be our missionary, it is good to know him and of his work.

Our contributions must go into the treasury of the Board, to be distributed by them according to their discretion.

Those who have been prevented from registering by absence from the city or any unsurmountable obstacle, can register at the City Hall any day between October 8th and 25th. The hours for registration may be ascertained by phoning to the City Hall. It is our duty to vote and to register our convictions.

As we enter upon a new year of work, I want to express my gratitude to God for my renewed health and strength, and to ask the prayers of the congregation for the Church and its ministers. If we pray for the Church faithfully, such petitions will both deepen our affection and arouse in us new energies for service. Prayer is not only a means of influencing God; it is also a door of communication whereby God enters us. The hand outstretched in petition is also a hand into which God can drop His gift.

If we are more earnest in prayer, we shall certainly be more richly blessed.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

A Western Vacation

At my request Mrs. Donehower has written this interesting account of her summer outing in the West, a trip that others in the congregation have made.—C. E. G.

On June 24th, in company with a good friend, I left Philadelphia for a visit to the Pacific Coast. The obliging agent of the Santa Fe Railroad had planned our trip in every detail, and arranged for three stop-offs on the outward journey, Chicago, Santa Fe, and the Grand Canyon.

Chicago proved much more attractive than I had anticipated. Boarding a suburban trolley, we left the noisy business section, and rode through mile after mile of well shaded residence streets. A cross-town line took us to the fine park system and afforded a glimpse of the bathing beach. We lunched at a restaurant on the lake shore, visited the new Field Museum, and spent some hours in Chicago's last new hotel, the Stevens House, where the Rotarians were bidding each other farewell after a successful convention.

Santa Fe, with its gardens and fine old trees, was a veritable oasis in the desert. The quaint old town lies basking in the sun, dreaming of the days when it was the scene of surging life and activity—the place where four great trails ended. In the old Church of San Miguel we saw the San Jose bell, cast in Spain in 1347 and brought to America some three centuries later. Santa Fe boasts the oldest house in America, occupied by an Indian chief at the time the Spanish adventurers arrived and took possession. Our courier guide took us to an Indian village, a forlorn little huddle of adobe houses baking in the pitiless noonday sun. The governor of the village proudly exhibited a cane presented by Abraham Lincoln to one of his predecessors as a symbol of authority, and handed down from one official to another. Although this home contained table and chairs, the chief's family had spread their meal on the floor—bread, coffee, meat, potatoes—and were about to sit about it in picnic fashion.

The Grand Canyon is, of course, indescribable. For miles we rode on the rim of this enormous fissure; we felt as if we were in nature's workshop, observing at first hand the processes of creation revealed in the many-colored strata.

At Los Angeles, our first California city, we spent several days. It is a town that has grown up in a hurry and looks it. Fine buildings like the new twenty-story city hall, are dumped down in poor and mean surroundings. The passers-by include Japanese, Filipinos, half-breeds and Indian women with shawls over their heads—a curious, un-American looking mixture. Wilshire Avenue (the "t" has disappeared from the name) and its intersecting streets contain some beautiful homes and well kept gardens. Hollywood, with its broad central avenue, is much more attractive, though cross streets where the inhabitants live are so steep as to suggest the abode of mountain goats. We admired the Chinese theater, with its magnificant hangings and decorations, but the film show there was unworthy of its setting.

From Los Angeles we motored one hundred miles up the coast to Santa Barbara. The blue Pacific was on our left hand, but on the other side the hills rose bare and brown and desolate, save where a patch of green showed the presence of an irrigated ranch. Water is the great desideratum in California; where it is granted vegetation is unbelievably luxurious; without it there are immense tracts of desert, unproductive land.

Of Santa Barbara we have happy memories. It is truly called the gem of the Pacific Coast. An atmosphere of peace and contentment pervades this beautiful little city, with its quiet streets shaded by feathery pepper trees, and flowering eucalyptus. Like Marathon it lies between the mountains and the sea, protected from extremes of heat and cold.

The old Mission Church, carefully preserved, was the tenth mission founded by the Franciscan fathers. It is to these devoted men that the city owes its distinctive architecture, of which the new courthouse is a fine example. This picturesque building, with its clock tower, its iron grilled windows, its balconies and outside staircase, transports the beholder back to old Granada. Even the jail which adjoins it is so attractive that it would seem a pleasure to be detained there.

In and about Santa Barbara there are many wealthy and generous people who delight to lavish gifts on the city of their choice. Montecito, nearby, is the abode of millionaires. Their magnificent estates command a noble view. Santa Barbara boasts a number of sumptuous hotels, whose very names are musical—Em Mirasol, El Encanto, the Miramar, the Samarcand.

Once a year the town is given up to the Old Spanish Days Fiesta. Business is suspended; hotels and private dwellings vie with each other in brilliant decorations, Spanish costumes are donned, and the town's early history is lived again in tableau and pageant. Old and young dance in the streets, and there are theatricals before the court house. Youths who seem to have strayed from a Carmen chorus strum on guitars and sing passionate serenades to lovely senoritas who look down from grilled windows. Motor cars are barred during the festivities, and ox-carts plod along in their place, while descendants of the old Spanish families ride proudly on magnificent horses, decked with silver trappings.

Nor is the old Mission Church forgotten in these joyous days. The ancient building with its quiet graveyard where the old Spanish pioneers lie at peace after their strenuous career, is a central point of interest, and on its broad steps the people sit to listen to tales of the brave old days of the Conquistadors.

An eight-hour railway journey brought us into San Francisco, with its fine shops, and lofty business buildings. This city has been likened to New York, but it has its own distinctive flavor. Its steep streets run up at unbelievable grades. "I can never climb them," the visitor exclaims, but soon he feels an exhilaration in mounting up, block after block, till he stands against the horizon and looks down triumphantly on the busy scene below. It is a city of good cookery and famous restaurants. Its climatic conditions are ideal for the toiler; Santa Barbara is a place for lotus-eating repose; San Francisco is a town in which to be up and doing.

We sailed across the bay and visited Leland Stanford University, where we recognized one of the windows which we know and love at St. Stephen's, the one where the angel seated on the tomb tells the glad tidings of the Resurrection. In the Chicago Art Institute we recognized St. Gauden's Angel of Purity; it was in bronze, and seemed less effective than our own marble relief.

San Francisco is less given to boasting than Los Angeles, but here, too, the belief prevails that California is the only State in the Union worthy of mention. Probably summer is not the best time to view it; certainly we found it less attractive than Oregon and Washington with their great forests and mighty rivers. We crossed by steamer to Victoria and then to Vancouver, most English of Dominion cities, feasted our eyes on the marvels of the Canadian Rockies, and spent a day at Lake Louise and another at Banff. At Minnesota we reentered the United States, and after a journey through immense stretches of prairie land and wheat fields, found ourselves once more in our own home State, which, in spite of the long drought, seemed green and beautiful to our eyes, and certainly held its own against the desert lands of the Far West.

An Appreciation

Quite the most pleasant feature of the ceremonies begun by the University of Pennsylvania when it recently invested 75 of its graduates with the degree of Doctor of Philosophy (a generous act of faith on its part in my case) was the gift to me of a handsome hood by some of the members of the congregation. On the occasion of my first opportunity to wear the hood, I spoke my appreciation, but the Parish News provides a medium whereby I may more personally thank those who not only shared the faith of the University but in this touching way gave me of their friendship. The hood will be no mark of academic information, nor a means of further enriching our already beautiful chancel, but a continued reminder to me of the goodness and affection I have enjoyed in the four years I have been permitted to serve at St. Stephen's.

Sunday School

The fall sessions of the Sunday School began September 21, coincident with the reopening of the Church. The first meeting was attended by an unusually large number, the primary department, under Miss Margaret Kilpatrick, alone having nearly thirty pupils there. The class in the upper school which for two years has been taught by Mrs. Alexander Whitney, this year will be led by Miss Miriam Snavely. A new class of girls, from 11 to 13 years of age has been organized this year as a result of our continued growth.

On Saturday, June 7th, the School went to Forrest Park on the Perkiomen for its annual picnic. The excursion this summer was of a different character from those which have preceded it. In one respect, it was notably different, in that the weather was glorious. Moreover, it was a joint picnic with the Sunday School of Old Swedes' Church. The picnic itself in the large grove of trees in the park, the afternoon's swim in the large modern pool, the pleasurable but not harmful amusements, and the long delightful bus rides there and back provided a delightful day's experience for the hundred and fifty children and their friends from St. Stephen's who went.

The King's Daughters "Whatsoever Circle"

Resume their meetings for 1930-31 season on Tuesday evening, October 7th. We are always glad to welcome and enroll new members, who would be interested in our work and wish to enjoy a sociable evening with us.

We regret to lose our retiring president, Miss Bertha T. Walshe, who is loved by us all and who has led us so capably for the past nine years. We are glad she will be with us for a few more months. We wish her happiness and success in her new environments.

Girls' Friendly Society

The Girls' Friendly Society will begin its regular meetings on Monday evening, October 6th, and continue throughout the season until the last of May, 1931.

The program has been arranged for the month of October. Later on we hope to have some classes in various lines, which will interest the girls.

A Rummage Sale will be held in November. At this season of house renovating, we will appreciate donations of any character from members of the congregation who may care to cooperate.

A Christmas Supper and Sale will also be held. Further notice will be given.

A Junior Branch for the G. F. S. is under consideration. If any girl would care to interest herself in the work of the society, we will be happy to receive her and gladly have her friends come.

A supper is always served at 6 o'clock for any G. F. S. member. Price, 25 cents.

The society is non-sectarian.

Personal Rights v. Alcohol

Against the personal right of the indidivual to drink alcohol when he pleases and where he pleases are balanced the following:

The rights of his body to proper treatment.

The rights of his mind to clearness of vision and accurate judgment.

The rights of his will to a sane chance at self-control.

The rights of his spirit to a chance to assist his brother in the doing of good deeds.

The rights of children to walk the streets unscandalized by his conduct.

The rights of his home to the money he earns.

The rights of his home to joy and respect in society.

The rights of his neighbors to live peaceful and orderly lives.

The rights of society to his good judgment unharmed by a debased mind.

The rights of his employers to clean-cut, faithful service.

The spiritual rights of even the bootleggers whose business rises out of his demand.

The rights of law to his faithful cooperation.

The rights of the Constitution to his unwavering support.

The rights of justice to his help in suppressing crime.

The rights of God to the service of spirit unclouded by a dreadful narcotic.—Joseph B. Egan, Boston Schoolmaster, in The Congregationalist.

Our Memorials

Many visitors ask questions about our Memorials. Years ago a little handbook was compiled by our Rector giving a brief account of them. We shall publish from time to time extracts from this booklet, so that members of the congregation may be equipped to answer the questions that may be asked by visitors.

St. Stephen's Church, founded in 1823, A.D., was one of the results of a great influx into the Episcopal Church that marked the early decades of the nineteenth century, when the popular prejudice against the daughter of the Church of England had lost its power.

To modern eyes, the exterior of the edifice is severely simple and somewhat fortress-like, but it is described in early accounts as "A specimen of the Gothic Architecture of the Middle Ages."

It is interesting to know that the aim of the congregation was to erect a building in which the historic portion of our church and its peculiar characteristics should be fittingly expressed.

The first rector was the Rev. James Montgomery, D.D., to whose memory a memorial has been placed in the south wall, near the font.

The taste of the Gregorian era for classical architecture and embellishment is manifested in the slender memorial urns on both sides of the tablet.

His successor was the Rev. Henry William Ducachet, M.D. and D.D., whose fine personal presence, ready wit and social charm, combined to make him one of the most interesting personalities of Philadelphia in his day. During his rectorship the Burd Memorials were given to the church. Colonel Edward Shippen Burd, who died in 1848, enjoined his executors in his will to erect in St. Stephen's Church a memorial of the finest Italian marble to the memory of his three children.

The commission was given to Carl Steinhauser, a native of Bremen, born 1813, who went at an early age to study under Rauch, and later went to Rome, where he received instruction from Thorwaldsen. His art was regarded as reflecting glory upon his native city, and a reproduction in plaster of the group, known from its chief figure as "The Angel of the Resurrection," which he executed for St. Stephen's, may still be seen on exhibition in Bremen, with an inscription stating where the original may be found. The student of art will be interested to know that there are three pieces of statuary by Steinhauser in the Academy of the Fine Arts, Broad and Cherry Streets. The mural monument with its recumbent effigy of Colonel Burd, near the door was erected by Mrs. Burd in the following year. These two monuments are still unsurpassed of their kind in America.

Besides these monuments Mrs. Burd gave a large sum to St. Stephen's Church, and also founded, with a munificent gift of $500,000, a school and home for orphan girls, which she placed for all time under the control of the Rector and Vestry of St. Stephen's. Its stately and picturesque buildings stood in a fine park near the corner of Market and Sixty-third Streets.

In 1859, the year before her death, Mrs. Burd presented the church with the Font which stands in the southwest corner, near the door. It was sculptured in Italy by Steinhauser, and represents three cherubs supporting on their wings a large marble bowl. Each cherub has in his hands one of the instruments of the Saviour's torture, the nail, the crown of thorns and the spear. The angel with the nail is testing the sharpness of its point on his chubby hand. Inside the bowl are sculptured in relief the sacred fish, by which the early Christians secretly expressed their faith. Christ's use of the net with the fish, in a parable of the Kingdom is brought to mind by the mural decorations back of the font.

These memorials all belong to Dr. Ducachet's rectorship. His personal memorial is a handsome bust of Italian marble that stands in a slight recess in the south wall, under a beautiful and richly-decorated ogee arch.

There are two things that men should never weary of, goodness and humility; we get none too much of them in this rough world and among cold, proud people.—R. L. S.

Without the sustaining influence of faith in a divine power, we could have little faith in ourselves. We need to feel that behind us are intelligence and love. Doubters do not achieve. Skeptics do not contribute, cynics do not create. Faith is the great motive power and no man realizes his full possibilities unless he has a deep conviction that life is eternally important and that his work, well done, is a part of an unending plan.—Calvin Coolidge.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

How mysterious and wonderful is philosophy. It differs as much from knowledge as a plant differs from the soil. It is knowledge organized so as to produce results, to serve as a guide or set a program. A man's philosophy is the organizing principle of his life. For this reason there is nothing so important as the formation of a correct philosophy; nothing so dangerous as sophistry that is a specious but misleading philosophy.

In my judgment we had a remarkable specimen of misleading philosophy at the dinner of the Synod of the Province of Washington on Tuesday, October 21st, when the Church was admonished to keep away from political and social questions on the ground that the redemption of the individual was the Church's supreme task, a task of such an absorbing and unique character, that it must necessarily exclude other more mundane interests and shut out especially the affairs of State. This neglect of the State was given additional justification by an extraordinary definition of the State. St. Paul regarded the State as a Divine agency, but the orator of the banquet defined the State as an organization having as its primary function antagonism to other States. Aristotle thought of the State as an association for mutual benefit and suggested that no City or State should be too large for all the citizens to hear the voice of the herald. Mutual aid was the great Pagan's philosophy of the State: a divine agent of justice was the Apostle's theory of the State; an organized hostility was the post-prandial orator's theory.

As we heard this crude philosophy we understood how it was that the speaker had been one of the outstanding foes of the adherence of the United States to the League of Nations; a union of essentially repugnant factors would be as disastrous as tying together a dog and a cat, as futile as bad logic.

But we cannot accept such a philosophy for a moment. In the first place the speaker transgressed his own canon. If the affairs of the State are no concern of the Church, then he ought not to have spent any time in laying down a philosophy of the State. It was as much out of place as a discussion on heat. In the second place such a philosophy is sharply contradicted by the facts of life. The States in the American union neither now, nor as Colonies were organized against one another. The United States are not organized against Canada, or against England. Separate organizations are not necessarily or essentially hostile to one another. Thirdly, the speaker was not in harmony with his conduct on former occasions. At the General Convention at Richmond in 1907 he ardently advocated the Convention's protesting against a proposed tariff upon cotton goods manufactured in the Philippines as injurious to the welfare of a people who are our wards.

The great trouble in much philosophizing of the kind to which we were treated at that dinner is that while it purports to be a theory gathered from a survey of the Universe it is selected, because it is the road to a desired goal. The goal in this case clearly was that the Church should keep out of the burning question of Prohibition. Already the great Protestant Churches have come out strongly in favor of the "noble experiment." While it has not been as unqualified a success as we had over-optimistically hoped; still it has been an unspeakable blessing to the country. The people who deprecate the lawlessness of bootleggers and their patrons are not conspicuous for their zeal for law-enforcement. The philosophy of selective obedience which they proclaim would undermine all government.

The Churches with a progressive morality, the Churches of the Reformation, are convinced that they cannot consistently pray "Thy Kingdom come," and remain indifferent to the effort to expel from Society one of the worst foes of that kingdom.

Their instinct is sound. Alcohol, that insidious habit-forming drug, in spite of the glamour that has gathered around it from its use in social functions, is one of the worst foes of mankind. The facts of life are too much for this wire-drawn theorizing. The true liberals are not those who would perpetuate and protect the traffic in an enslaving and debasing drug; but those who would free mankind from this slavery.

Just as Stephen A. Douglas defended the permission for Slavery to go into the territories in the name of liberty on the ground of leaving the squatters free to decide the matter, so the people who advocate the letting down of bars to liquor proclaim themselves liberals today.

In both cases this pseudo-liberalism extends the dominions of slavery. It is as true of alcohol as it was of slavery, that it must be nationally controlled, and that as freedom could not permanently co-exist with slavery, so the States that desire prohibition, the majority of our Union be it noted, cannot continue to enjoy that blessing, if they are surrounded, or have interspersed among them States that permit its manufacture and sale. It is a national question, a question fraught with momentous issues, and so a moral question which the Christian cannot avoid considering and in whose consideration he is entitled to the guidance of his church and of his minister.

While looking at the books in the window of a second-hand book store a few days ago, I was invited in by the proprietor. "Why do we not hear from you on the political situation?" he asked. "I have been expecting a letter from you in the papers." I explained that I could not get my letters published. "Well," he exclaimed, "here is a sermon delivered on November 6th, 1864, just before the second election of Abraham Lincoln that met with such approval that it was published by request." Glad to find such good precedent for a minister's participation in governmental questions, I bought the sermon. Here is a pertinent quotation:

"Ever and anon, some billow of our tempest-tossed ocean, surging to an unwonted height, bears aloft the ship of State far above the level of considerations merely political, into the purer region of Christian morals. At such times when the Almighty visibly makes bare His arm and the nation passes through some sublime moral crisis, that minister is false to his trust, as the prophet or spokesman of God, who does not seize the occasion and turn it to a religious use. Such an occasion, I solemnly believe, is the approaching Presidential election." Such an occasion I believe is the approaching November election in Pennsylvania.

Here is the preacher's view of Civil government. After quoting a number of texts he says: "We see, then, what the scriptural teaching concerning Civil Government is. It teaches us to accept government as a Divine fact, which exists as soon as and wherever men exist. There never has been a nation so degraded that it had no government. There has never been a nation so advanced that it intentionally based its government on the idea of Social contract except as a figment of law. Men never have lived, and men never will live and this simply because men never can live, without government.

We shall never be able to trace the origin or basis of Civil government further back than was done more than two thousand years ago, by the great philosopher of Stagira: "It is manifest," says Aristotle, "that the State is one of the things that exist by nature and that man in virtue of his very being is a political animal."

There we have, indeed, a solid philosophy of the State. According to Aristotle it is a product of nature, and according to St. Paul a Divine Ordinance. That sermon is a noble memorial of great days. I do not wonder that Philadelphia should remember with gratitude and reverence, George Dana Boardman, its author.

An additional reason for writing on this subject in the Parish News, is our inability to get a fair hearing in the newspapers. Prohibition was brought to pass without their aid, and its perpetuation will be without their assistance.

Vain have been my efforts to get a modest letter into their columns. Moreover if such letters are published, there is often appended some critical comment or prefixed some unhelpful caption. This boasted liberal movement does not foster that most basic of all principles of liberality, the freedom of the press.

One of the great moral principles involved in the government of our States and Cities under modern conditions is the necessity of preventing the heads of great utility corporations from dominating our politics, and in this way standing on both sides of the question when the State is legislating with regard to such corporations. The Courts pronounced strongly on the wrong done to Philadelphia in some contracts where the politicians who let out the contracts were the creatures of the head of the Corporation with which the bargain was made, and where the bonding company that guaranteed adequate performance had at its head a leading official of the City who thus had every inducement to refrain from penalizing the contractor for imperfect work, since the loss would have to be made good by his company. It seems to me a fundamental policy of good government and a basic principle of morals that the heads of these great corporations should not be leading politicians.

I wrote a letter on the subject and submitted it to an eminent lawyer in New York who pronounced it sane and well-balanced. But I could not get it published in a single paper in Philadelphia, though I sent it to four.

If it were not for the church papers and little parish and local papers, I do not know how this side of the question could be presented. The separation of politics from these influences is in the interest both of politics and business. Nothing does so much to foster the destructive and Bolshevistic forces at work among us as signs of the domination of politics by the heads of great utility corporations. He is the true conservative, who limits such activities.

We have two months now in which to make up the amount that we told the Diocese might be expected of us. These are hard times for many people and among the sufferers are our missionaries and agents. Let us not begin our economies with our charities but with our luxuries. Now is the time to do all that we can for the Welfare Organization and the Envelope System.

When I first came to Philadelphia I heard that a small group of people did all the giving, the same names appearing again and again in the lists of contributors to all the great charities. The Welfare Society was organized to bring in more people. It has been a great success and is entitled to our hearty support. Now is the time to practice some self-denial, not to add lustre to our crown, a selfish motive in the medieval system of charity, but in order to help our less fortunate brethren. He that seeth his brother have need and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him.

My theory of the State being larger than the theory that it is an organized antagonism to other nations, I am in favor of an appropriation of $300,000 by Philadelphia for the unemployed. This is the amount asked for by well-informed social workers.

We should be in line with our sister cities in making such provision. The world is not so organized now, that if a man is willing and able to work he can always find a job. That is the ideal. It ought to be striven for, but in the meantime worthy and unfortunate people must not be allowed to starve.

The congregation will be interested to know that our Sunday School is doing good work under an efficient band of teachers, and has grown in numbers. There are also a number of new members of the Girls' Friendly Society. This Society has its annual Corporate Communion on Nov. 2nd. According to its custom the flowers on the Altar are in memory of its beloved Secretary for so many years, Miss Maria Wilkins, and an Associate, Mrs. Louis Hall.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

The Woman's Auxiliary

The first meeting of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of the season of 1930-1931 was held October 16th, preceded by a corporate communion in the church.

Miss Bell was in the chair, and Dr. Grammer was present to hear reports of the various committees and talk over plans for the new work.

It was with deep regret that the members accepted Miss Bright's resignation of the treasurership of the United Thank Offering, on account of illnesss.

The Indian's Hope of the diocese has undertaken as a "special" the task of raising $1200 with which to lay pipe lines for running water at the Shoshone Indian School at Wind River, Wyoming.

Miss Roberts would like more magazine subscriptions for her very useful work in the Church Periodical Club.

The Woman's Aid of the Northern Convocation cleared $1445 at the annual garden party at Wyck.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held Thursday, November 20th.

Beulah E. Hollar,
Secretary.

The Misses Charlton, 4708 Chester Avenue, West Philadelphia, have five rooms to rent with or without board.

Under Dr. Ducachet's successor, Dr. Rudder, the congregation grew so large that the north transept was added. At the same time the whole Church was decorated by Mr. Frank Furness, of Philadelphia.

In the summer of 1909, chiefly through the liberality of Miss Julia Garrett, this decoration was restored. The color scheme was rich and unusual, and set off admirably the pure beauty of the memorial marbles and the stately reredos with its brilliant mosaic-picture. A handsome brass and marble tablet on the south wall commemorates Dr. Rudder's great ministry.

He was succeeded by Dr. S. D. McConnell, under whom the Parish House next to the Church was built on the site of an old graveyard. The tombstones are preserved in the pavement of the cloister. One of the most interesting tablets is let into the wall just outside the door, and commemorates three medical students from the south, who died in Philadelphia, A. D. 1825, while pursuing their studies at the University of Pennsylvania.

In 1889 the Venetian mosaic of The Last Supper was presented to the Church by the children of Mrs. James Magee, in memory of their mother. It was made from cartoons drawn by Henry Holiday, of London, and was executed under his own supervision, partly by workmen of Salviati in Venice, and partly by Mr. and Mrs. Holiday's own hands. All the heads were executed by Mr. and Mrs. Holiday. It contains upwards of 180,000 pieces, and has a surface of sixty square feet. It was a showpiece at a garden fete in London, where Mr. Gladstone was a guest, and he made an address of an hour upon it.

Mr. Holiday attained fame both as a painter and a sculptor. His pictures have been exhibited chiefly in the Grosvenor Gallery, London, and his statue "Sleep," and two bas-reliefs, one a Biblical subject "Jacob's Ladder," may be seen in the Royal Academy.

There is a picture of Mr. Holiday in his studio amid his statuary in the life of Lewis Carroll, whose poem "The Hunting of the Snark," this versatile artist illustrated with sympathetic humor.

The stone reredos ordered by the Vestry as a fit setting for this mosaic altar picture was after a design by Mr. George C. Mason, Jr., the architect of the Parish House.

Other memorials given by the children of James Magee, for many years a vestryman of the Parish, are: the large double window in memory of their father, in the transept, also by Holiday, the upper portion representing Eliezer, the faithful steward, and Rebekah at the well, and the lower part portraying Abraham entertaining three angels; the tablet to John Hart, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, on the west wall of the transept; and the new organ which was given Easter, 1907, in memory of Eliza J. Magee, by her brothers and sisters.

This great instrument, one of the largest in the city, was built from a scheme prepared by Dr. D. D. Wood, in consultation with the builder, C. T. Haskell, of Philadelphia, and has been universally admired by music-loving critics. The pipes were voiced in the building when they were to be played, an unusual and most admirable procedure, and the result has been a sweetness and just proportion of tone that reflect accurately the personality of the master who designed it and played it. It is of four manuals and pedals, and has sixty-seven speaking stops, beside fifty mechanical stops and accessories. Its echo organ is located about one hundred feet away from the main organ, in the loft over the chancel. The main organ weighs about ten tons, and is enclosed in a case of black walnut, thirty-three feet long by eighteen feet deep, with a front of one hundred and thirty-three pipes decorated in old gold. The total number of the speaking pipes is 4,218. They range in length from sixteen feet to half an inch, and their combined length would reach four miles. Their cross sections vary from four hundred square inches to nine two hundred and fifty-sixths (9/256) of a square inch, that is to say three sixteenths of an inch square.

The action is electro-pneumatic, and the organ contains five hundred and sixty electro-magnets which, together with the cables connecting the various parts, required about twenty-five miles of wire for their construction.

The entire vestry has pledged itself to attend church every Sunday for a year, in Grace Church, Glendora, California.

Girls' Friendly Society

A talk by Dr. Wm. H. Moore on "Better Water for Philadelphia," will be given on November 3rd, to the Girls' Friendly Society, at 8 P. M. Members of the congregation who would care to come, will be welcome. There will be a silver offering.

A Rummage Sale will be given on Saturday, November 15th, in the Community House, 11 A. M. to 3 P. M., by the G. F. S. Any donations of clothing or articles for sale would be greatly appreciated.

Benevolent Society

Benevolent Society meets every Wednesday morning from 10 A. M. to 12 noon. The members of the congregation are invited to come in any Wednesday morning and see the good work that is being done.

Down in Virginia people walked five and six miles over rough mountain roads to attend the Church Army Mission. One man walked three miles every night, with a crutch. It was fourteen years since he had been to church; he had not thought, he said, that there was so much in religion.

Development would seem intolerably slow to those who live where the Church is well established and is accepted as a religious force, but here where prejudice, often of the bitterest kind, must be overcome, where resources are limited and endless patience with small things is required, we welcome all signs of growing strength and of more settled conditions of Church life.—From a Mid-Western Diocese.

The members also express their appreciation for the furniture on the third floor and want to thank Mr. Fisher for his interest in the matter.

We had a pleasant evening hearing about the G. F. S. Conference in Chicago from the Diocesan President, Miss Maule, and our own President, Miss Moore, and Miss Daley and Mrs. Wood, all of whom attended and brought us such interesting reports.

Our next big event is the Annual Christmas Sale and Supper, to be held in the Auditorium on Monday, Dec. 8th. Supper will be served from 5.30 to 7 P. M. The price of the supper is 75 cents. We are planning for a good number. Tickets may be secured from the office or from any of the members.

ELLA HEADMAN, Treasurer.

The Parish Visitor thanks all those who responded so generously to Dr. Grammer's appeal for partly worn clothing. Now that winter is here, there is a continual demand for warm underwear. An 86-year-old man needs a winter overcoat, size 42 or 44. Another man, the father of 12, needs everything and so do the children. Packages, addressed to Parish Visitor, may be left at Community House or Parish House.

I. W. Higham,

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

Most gratifying and heartening was the celebration of my completion of 25 years as your Rector. My own purpose was to ignore this flight of time. But it was very pleasant to find that the congregation had spontaneously resolved otherwise.

The committee in charge, of which Miss Laura Bell was chairman, managed everything very cleverly—not till within a few days beforehand had I the slightest inkling of the conspiracy.

Mrs. Grammer and I were delighted to find so many at the reception. Bishop Garland's gracious words were deeply appreciated. My reply was entirely spontaneous, and I have no notes of what I said. Yet for the sake of those who were not present, I will endeavor to recall the substance of it.

After thanking the Bishop for his presence and words of praise, I confessed that I was somewhat overcome. I felt like the traveler in Uhland's poem who insisted on paying triple fare at a ferry, since invisible friends had crossed over with him. Many invisible parishioners attended this reception. Never could I forget those who first welcomed me and my family when we came out of the sociable South to this more formal City and gave us in addition to their loyalty as parishioners, the support of their friendship. Dr. and Mrs. Weir Mitchell, Mr. George L. Crawford, Miss Wilkins and Miss Washington, Mrs. H. P. Taylor, Louise Betts Edwards and Charles McKeehan and others too numerous to mention. Our supreme helpers at that crisis were undoubtedly Mr. Hunter Ewing and Miss Cornelia Ewing. I do not believe that I could have weathered those trying days without their aid.

As I had spoken recently at the unveiling of her memorial window of our great debt to Miss Anna Magee, I passed over her and referred to the great work done for enlisted men during the World War. Here the preeminent figure was Howard Reifsnyder. Never could we forget his devotion, generosity and tender interest in the welfare of others. With Mr. H. Barton and others standing beside him, he was the great dynamo in all that work. Widely was he loved and greatly has he been missed.

I did not venture to mention the names of the living friends some of whom belonged to the band who welcomed us, loyal parishioners through all these years, and others, brave souls who have joined us in this down-town Church and helped us in its numerous fields of service. Their friendship makes us feel rich indeed.

I felt confident that those who know me, do not imagine that my lack of emphasis upon the peculiar features of the Protestant Episcopal Church is due to lack of appreciation of them. As the son of an Episcopal minister and the grandson of an Episcopal minister, I am a living embodiment of our Church's traditions and influences. The combined years of my father's ministry and mine are over 90 years and if I added my grandfather Sparrow's ministry, the total would be 138. Dr. Sparrow was ordained in 1826. The peculiar features of our Church are not peculiar to me. I take them naturally. Dear as they are, I appreciate that the power of God unto salvation lies not in these peculiarities; but in the everlasting Gospel, the common possession of all Christians.

Such an occasion made me realize my blessings. I have a bishop who is both a friend and an admired leader, a warmhearted and constant congregation, an efficient and harmonious staff, a congenial and able assistant, a loyal vestry. Nor could I fail to mention, on such on occasion when she was a participator with me in these honors, my brave and idealistic wife, who ever sustained me by her courage, spirit and example. Best of all, I felt that God had as years passed, drawn nearer to me. Never a mere tradition, always more than a working hypothesis, or a philosophical conclusion, He had, as I approached Him in prayer, as I read the life and teachings of His Son, as I worked for His Kingdom, become more and more the supreme reality—a reality and a passion. Never had I felt that religion was so important, and that I had so much of a message.

The evening was brightened by two musical selections by Miss Manning of the Choir and closed with light refreshments. The company remained together till nearly 11 o'clock. In spite of the fact that there was a great Town meeting on the same night, and the secrecy of the arrangements (for it was intended as a surprise), the attendance of 178 was gratifyingly large and quite representative of the congregation.

At the reception nothing was said of any presents. Gifts have, however, appeared at the rectory—not only flowers, but also a handsome light for the study and a splendid Encyclopaedia Britannica, the 14th Edition. The Ninth Edition was on my shelves; but it is quite out of date and also outworn and this new edition is greatly appreciated. I can hardly keep away from it—always a great user of Cyclopaedias, with a special devotion to maps, I have now an additional interest in looking up the new historical appraisements. It thrills me to find my heroes exalted, and to see the imposters, selfish time-servers stripped of their peacock-feathers and shown as the daws they were. I have in this great library, not only a thesaurus of learning and exact information, but also an unfailing delight.

Not content with these fine gifts the congregation has since sent us a handsome purse. Certainly our cup is filled to the brim and runneth over. Such a generous recognition of the Past will be a great inspiration for the Future.

* * * *

Let me say a final word about our Expectation of $6,000, the amount that we promised to contribute to the Diocese and General Church. I can see from the packages of envelopes that are filling the collection plates on Sunday, that the Envelope-takers are sending in their back envelopes. We still have about $2,500 to raise. I have a good hope that in November nearly half of this came in and that with the aid of the Christmas collection we shall raise the rest in December. These hard times call for an increase of generosity. Let us add to our Christmas pleasures the joy of unselfish giving—of giving outside of our family, outside of the circle which repays us in gratitude and friendship, and give to the strangers, the needy and especially to those who are poor because they are living to help others.

* * * *

In our giving and planning let us not forget the Christmas baskets. This custom of giving out bountiful baskets to the poor has prevailed at St. Stephen's for more than a quarter of a century and I know not how much longer. Consecrated by time, it is also cherished because of its wonderful helpfulness. No one is injured by special gifts at Christmas. By the distribution of the dinners in baskets the recipients can enjoy their Christmas dinners in the privacy of their own home and without being exhibited as objects of charity. Not for years has this benevolence been so much needed. It will be difficult to keep up our standard, now that we have lost such generous givers as Mr. Clement Restein, who always donated a barrel of turkeys, and Mr. Howard Reifsnyder; but we can do our best. I am asking Mrs. Higham to take the usual safeguards, that our gifts do not overlap the gifts of similar agencies. We can count on her discretion and good sense, to see that our gifts are wisely bestowed.

* * * *

Superficial and frivolous people are largely governed by words. For example, I often hear young people who have thrown over the principles of their parents, speak of themselves as "Emancipated." It is such a splendid achievement to be free from bondage and enter into a larger liberty that I have examined with care this new "emancipation." To me it looks astonishingly like slavery. I notice these emancipated people are absolute slaves of fashion. They may not like tobacco, especially if they are girls and young women, who would really prefer to keep their mouths clean, their breath pure and their complexions fresh, but they feel obliged to smoke. All the others do it and these emancipated people can't differ from the crowd. They may know that liquor has to be bought, if it is to be much used socially and that its purchase must breed bootleggers and racketeers and encourage lawbreaking—not to speak of other aspects of drinking—but they do not feel free to refuse to take a cocktail, if the host is serving drinks.

They may know that gambling is a passion that has wrecked many a life and introduces into social intercourse a fierce element of competition and covetousness, but they are ashamed to refuse to play for stakes. Strangely like the members of a chain-gang are these emancipated people. They have to keep step; they dare not break the ranks.

They may joke about the timid subservience of those who stand by ancestral principles; but they themselves are afraid to profess a principle. If they don't smoke, it is not because they dislike the practice, but because it disagrees with them. If they don't take a cocktail, again they must elaborately explain that principle does not enter in; it is their defect of vitality or unfortunate idiosyncracy. If they do not play for a stake, it is, of course, for no puritanical scruple, but simply because they have no head for cards.

They will be fortunate, if their excuses are accepted. For there is an extraordinary amount of tyranny among these emancipated. The hostess is so apt to frown and say, "Don't be a spoil-sport," or the host to exclaim, "You mustn't queer my party." Their boasted emancipation looks much like the slavery of fashion and the fear of man that bringeth a snare.

These emancipated people remind me of the fable of Aesop. The sleek and comfortable dog, who was chained all night, almost persuaded the unowned dog, that he was as free as he, until the free dog happened to spy around his neck the marks of a collar.

These emancipated people talk big of their freedom, but I see the unmistakable marks of the collar. They are fashion's slaves. They do not dare to stand alone.

* * * *

I hope the members of St. Stephen's at this time of social festivities will remember that Christianity must not be left out of our Social life. We cannot be free or living the Christian life if we have to leave our principles behind when we are having a good time.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

A Pastoral Letter

This title is usually given to a communication from a Bishop to his Diocese. But it seems to me equally applicable to a letter from a pastor to his flock. I am much occupied in this last month of the Church's fiscal year in gathering your contributions for various good causes. I can see from the way the packages of envelopes are piling the offertory plates, that this responsibility is on your minds. These are the objects we agreed to support and the amount we promised.

We promised a total of $6,000, of which we designated for:

		$6,000
Boone University, Wuchang	$500
Training Bible Women, Hankow	400
St. Luke's Hospital, Tokyo	250
St. Margaret's School, Tokyo	250
Indian Work, South Dakota, Bishop Tyler	500
Tuberculosis Sanitarium, Arizona	500
Our Episcopal Hospital	1,000
		$3,400

We intended to pay the salary of Mr. Donovan, our Missionary, $1,320. As he did not return, we only contributed to his salary for a part of the year, till he was dropped. The balance of the $2,600 promised will be spent for the Mission work of the Church at the discretion of the Board.

The report from the Church House is that we have contributed:

Thus far	$3,945.49
The Thanksgiving Offering will be at least	600.00
Total	$4,545.49
We still have the offerings of Nov. 30th and the December Sundays and Christmas Day to raise	$1,454.51

With a pull all together we can make it. Who will help?

The Church's work is planned on the faith that these expectations will be fulfilled.

Yours cordially,
Carl E. Grammer.

The Reifsnyder Memorial

A bed in the Episcopal Hospital having been endowed by the friends of the late Howard Reifsnyder, a tablet to his memory has been placed on the wall of one of the Hospital's main corridors, which will be unveiled on Sunday afternoon, December 21st, at half-past three o'clock, with appropriate exercises.

Mr. Reifsnyder's friends are invited to attend and it is particularly desired that the contributors to this memorial to a most affectionate and generous giver, should grace the occasion by their presence,

The tablet will be unveiled by Mr. Reifsnyder's grandsons.

Wm. A. Longshore	Robert M. Coyle
Frank G. Cooper	Robert O. Kevin
Emily Ada Browne	Carl E. Grammer

Chairman.

The Woman's Auxiliary

The guest speaker at the November meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was Bishop Jenkins, of Nevada.

He has a territory more than twice the size of Pennsylvania, with no railroads running north and south, and not very many automobile roads.

Notwithstanding all this, Bishop Jenkins has made three trips this year, driving not less than twenty-five hundred miles each trip.

The towns are widely scattered and are of two kinds—new towns and old. Virginia City is an example of the old town. Once it was a mining town of 30,000 population, but now it has only 600.

In some of these old towns there stands a closed Episcopal Church.

Bishop Jenkins hopes to open them, and do something for the small population, for most of these towns have no other churches of any denomination.

In a few instances some loyal woman has opened a school or a Sabbath School to try to help hold a group together, and has succeeded so well it has made Bishop Jenkins wish for trained women workers. He would like to have three come to Nevada this year and more next year, if it is possible.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held Thursday, December 18th.

Beulah E. Hollar, Sec'y.

Besides these memorials, the Church contains the window, by Tiffany, in memory of Albert Pancoast, representing Christ in the garden among the lilies, the only flower He mentions in the Evangels, and the accepted symbol of the resurrection-purity, the gift of Mrs. Albert Pancoast and her daughters; the double window in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Griffith; and the memorial window in the transept, in which is depicted in the golden after-glow of a cloudless and serene sunset "the faithful witness in heaven" of Psalm 89, verse 37, a memorial to Henrietta Constantia Wilkins, by her niece, Miss M. S. Wilkins.

The artist and maker was Maitland Armstrong, of New York. The window in memory of Mrs. Eliza Graham McDowell, from her husband, J. Austin McDowell, is a copy of a picture by Axel Ender, which hangs over the altar of a church in Molde, Northern Norway. The angelic visitant sits light as a bird on the edge of the tomb, and the wings are partly unfolded as if to steady the figure from swaying backward. On the eastern wall, near the reredos, and facing the pew where the Cadwaladers have sat for generations, is one of the masterpieces of St. Gaudens, our greatest American sculptor, a memorial to Maria Gouverneur Mitchell, the daughter of Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, and Mrs. Mary Cadwalader Mitchell, who consecrated much of her young life to the service of others in the Sunday School and charities of St. Stephen's, and in the duties incident to her official position in the Church's organizations.

The commission was given to St. Gaudens by Mrs. Mitchell, and the great sculptor, out of his strong sympathy for his bereaved friends, since he had a friendship of many years' standing with Dr. Mitchell, stopped all his other work to design this monument. It is generally spoken of as a modification of St. Gaudens' figure "Amor, Caritas" in the possession of the French Government, and now at the Luxembourg; but this is incorrect, for the pose, the expression, and the flowers are all different, and the artistic conceptions are diverse. St. Gaudens expressed himself as considering this figure, "The Angel of Purity." This exquisite memorial was given during the rectorship of Dr. Elwood Worcester, who succeeded Dr. McConnell in 1896.

After Dr. Worcester went to Emmanuel Church, Boston, he was succeeded by Dr. Grammer, the present rector, in October, 1905, who by a remarkable coincidence was called from the rectorship of the same church, Christ Church, Norfolk, of which Dr. Ducachet was rector just before he came to St. Stephen's.

On the walls are also tablets in memory of Crawford Arnold, some time vestryman of St. Stephen's, and of Ellicott McConnell, a son of the former rector. There is a plate in the transept marking the vault of the Watson family. A tablet placed in the Church was given by Miss Josephine Lewis as a memorial to her sister, Mrs. Juliet Hamersly Lewis Campbell, in whose memory an endowment fund was also given by the same donor for the relief of special cases of distress. The brass pulpit was one of the first brass pulpits erected in Philadelphia; and was considered a great innovation in its day. In the front vestibule is a tablet in memory of William Brown, for thirty-seven years a bellringer in the Church.

THE TOUCH OF THE MASTER'S HAND

'Twas battered and scarred, and the auctioneer,
Thought it scarcely worth his while
To waste much time on the old violin,
But held it up with a smile;
"What am I bidden, good folks," he cried,
"Who'll start the bidding for me?
A dollar, a dollar, now two, only two,
Two dollars and who'll make it three?
Three dollars once, three dollars twice,
Going for three, but no,
From the room far back, a gray haired man
Came forward and picked up the bow,
Then wiping the dust from the old violin
And tightening up all the strings
He played a melody pure and sweet
As sweet as an Angel sings.

The music ceased and the auctioneer
With a voice that was quiet and low,
Said, "What am I bid for the old violin?"
And he held it up with the bow.
A thousand dollars, and who'll make it two,
Two thousand dollars, and who'll make it two,
Two thousand, and who'll make it three?
Three thousand once, three thousand twice
And going and gone, said he.
The people cheered, but some of them cried
"We do not quite understand—
What changed its worth?" swift came the reply,
The touch of a master's hand.

And many a man with life out of tune,
And battered and torn with Sin,
Is auctioned cheap to a thoughtless crowd
Much like the old violin.
A "mess of pottage," a glass of wine,
A game, and he travels on.
He is going once, and going twice,
He's going and almost gone.
But the Master comes and the foolish crowd
Never can quite understand,
The worth of a Soul and the change that's wrought
By the touch of the Master's hand.

The Woman's Auxiliary

On account of the busy season the December meeting is frequently not very well attended, so Miss Bell does not provide a guest speaker.

The delegate members had full reports and plans were made to try to fill apportionments in the various missionary committees.

Mrs. Reath, chairman of the Missionary Box Committee, has sent money for suits and underwear for two mission workers in the West. A new camera is to be sent to an Indian worker, and Mrs. Higham was given $50.00 for her work—all from the Missionary Box Fund.

Miss Roberts sent four boxes of toys and books to St. Andrew's Mission, Harper's Ferry, and a box to a family of nine in South Carolina.

Mrs. Cooper has received $104.00 for the United Thank Offering from fourteen contributors. She now has a total of $112.99.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held January 15th.

Beulah E. Hollar, Secretary.

Word was received from Bishop Thomas in Southern Brazil, that the Church's mission has not suffered in recent revolutionary troubles in that land, and the bishop believes the country will go forward in better conditions under the new regime.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

What better message can I bring you for the New Year than this message with which Carlyle closed his celebrated address to the students of the University of Edinboro. His election as rector of that famous university was felt to be a supreme honor by the great Scotch historian and essayist. So in spite of ill health, he bade farewell in London to his gifted wife, whose purely negative and critical spirit did so much to deepen his own pessimism, and journeyed under the care of the great physicist Tyndall to the picturesque city, where he had studied as the undistinguished son of a poor Scotch stone-mason. All Great Britain wondered what the sage would say. It was well-known that no one took a gloomier view of modern tendencies in Church and State. He couldn't bear shovel-hats and despised democracy and parliaments. According to his view of things, civilization was going down the rapids and would soon go over Niagara. Such was his philosophy in general, but what was the upshot of it all? When at last he poured out his heart and looked down upon the fresh faces of the students, and felt the ardor of their young enthusiasm, when he realized the new life that was in them, pushing its way up in spite of all incumbrances, somehow he couldn't end pessimistically. His final word, he said, was the message that he had received from his Master, Goethe:

"We bid you hope."
Wir heissen euch hoffen.

Pessimism confronted with radiant youth fled ashamed away.

What other message can I bring you on the opening of the year? I who believe that the universe is not a wreck, drifting helplessly through the oceans of space and time, to go to pieces on some jagged reef, or to have all its voyagers die as the provisions are consumed; I who believe that behind all is God, over all is God, and working in and through all is God; that the universe is under control and that love and wisdom will overrule all the folly and wickedness of man.

If hope springing eternal in the human heart could make Matthew Arnold with his twilight faith sing:

The world's great era dawns again,
After long ages rude,
Divinlier imaged, clearer seen,
With happier zeal pursued, how much more ought we to be hopeful, we who believe that God spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all? Has he not given us the earnest of His spirit, that is to say, the pledge of better things in the gift of His spirit now?

When St. Paul assured his converts that nothing could come upon them that they would not be able to stand, he based his confidence on the nature of God. If the God of the prophets had proven a refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble, how much more could Christians trust in God, now that He had more fully revealed Himself in His Son!

Let us enter on the New Year in this confidence. Our Master overcame the world, even though it seemed to conquer. Faith, whether in garlands or in chains, is always moving on to victory. Surely Christ's victory through death teaches that.

We bid you hope.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

I call the attention of the congregation to the report of the Committee on Christmas Baskets. Surely that was a fine showing—108 baskets, eleven more than in 1929—containing ten dinners in each basket, 1080 dinners in all. The letters of thanks are pleasant reading. Here is an extract from one:

"Thanks to you and the very kind lady that gave me a Christmas basket of food for my four children and myself as we would have had nothing only for the basket."

An Interesting Testimony

December 29, 1930.

Dear Dr. Grammer:

Due to the unpropitious industrial conditions, now so widespread, the writer has found himself with an abundance of time on his hands, and has obtained much temporary comfort from attending the brief informal services held in your church. The opportunity for private prayer during the day and worth-while sermons are of much comfort to many of us who need strength and courage to help bear up.

This letter was prompted by Dr. Schaeffer's talk today on "What Do We Live By?" This sermon certainly was timely and seemed to fit in with my general condition to such an extent that I feel that at this time, more talks along this line might be of great benefit to others who are in the same position.

I am beginning to wonder if affliction is not a powerful force in bringing a man to his senses.

No Removal

It is unfortunate that in a post-prandial discussion of the future of the mid-City Churches it was not stated positively that St. Stephen's is rendering such efficient service that it will certainly remain where it is. The reports of that address (probably imperfect) have caused so many people to ask me whether there is any probability of our removal and merging with another Church, that I am afraid that the taking of envelopes may be interfered with, and the morale of the Congregation weakened, unless I make a frank and clear statement.

In my judgment there is not the faintest likelihood of any removal of St. Stephen's or of the merging of the mid-City Churches with their widely different types of Churchmanship into one Central Church.

St. Stephen's stands nearly at the centre of a circle of a diameter of two miles. It is about a mile away from Christ Church, St. Peter's, Holy Trinity, St. Clement's and St. Jude and The Nativity. As business continues to move westward, there is every reason to believe that a large population will continue to live near it. The new subways have made it increasingly accessible. Its large endowments and fine memorials were given to anchor it at the old stand, and to enable it to continue there. The congregation now worshipping in the Church recently built a costly Community House and paid $70,000 upon it, and fitted up a new rectory on Clinton Street to which Miss Anna Magee gave at my request $10,000 that the rector might live down town and near the Church.

Last year St. Stephen's contributed to outside causes nearly twice as much as it gave 27 years ago. Its Mothers' Meeting has 165 active members, a small church in itself. Its Girls' Friendly of over 90 is one of the largest and most active in the City, has National standing through Mrs. Wood's Song Book, and has recently gained more new members than it has acquired for years. All the Societies are flourishing. It has a troup of 40 Boy Scouts.

Its Sunday School of 100 is conducted on Modern lines. The Lenten Services are as successful as ever and its Daily Noonday Services have an average attendance of 245 weekly. Its Community House is in constant use. The position of the Church as a leading Liberal Church is well-established and its Septuagesima Conferences of the Liberal Clergy have an attendance of about 200. The elimination by a merger of such a Church is unthinkable. I hate to write anything that sounds like boasting; but there is a defeatist note in the suggestion of the possibility of our removal and I want the Congregation to know that I feel hopeful of the future. What is needed is a profounder realization of the important service that St. Stephen's is rendering to this City and to our whole Church.

Instead of considering the removal of the Church, people who believe in what St. Stephen's stands for, ought to ask themselves whether they ought not to attend a Church which affords such a fine field for service. That is what St. Stephen's wants, workers in its vineyard—all around it the fields lie white for the harvest.

Carl E. Grammer.

Miss Anna Magee's Gifts
(Our Memorials—Continued)

BY C. E. GRAMMER

The previous articles about the Memorials were taken from a little hand-book written by me about twenty years ago at the request of the Brotherhood. The congregation will be interested to learn of the later memorials and improvements. We will not follow the chronological order.

First in importance and in costliness were the splendid gifts of Miss Anna Magee. When I came to Philadelphia only two of the Magee family, Miss Fanny and Miss Eliza, were regular worshippers at St. Stephen's; Miss Anna went to Holy Trinity, Mr. James Magee to the Church of the Advocate, and Mr. Horace Magee only appeared at St. Stephen's on special occasions. Not long after my coming Miss Eliza Magee died. She was the first treasurer of the United Thank Offering, and a devoted member of the Church. In memory of her the family gave the Eliza Magee Memorial Organ, our present splendid instrument, which was "voiced" in the Church under Dr. David D. Wood's personal supervision and owes much to his exquisite taste and fine judgment.

Realizing Miss Fanny's loneliness in the family pew, and at my urging, Miss Anna returned to the family Church and took her place among us, to become eventually an assiduous collector for the United Thank Offering, of which she was the treasurer, and a regular worker in the Benevolent Society.

When Miss Fanny died, Miss Anna was the sole survivor of her family. Knowing that she had a large income from the estates of her brothers and sisters and as well as a large property of her own, I called on her one day and asked her to put in a memorial window above the reredos in memory of her sister Fanny. I told her frankly that I was afraid that the unmeaning window then there might be replaced by some memorial window, that would not harmonize with the exquisite Venetian Mosaic. I advised her to protect that memorial to her parents and enhance the beauty of the Chancel by a proper window. "But my sister Fanny did not want a memorial," she protested. "That was modest of her," I replied, "but you do not share that feeling, I am sure, for this Church was a central interest in your sister's life and she remembered it in her will." "How much would it cost?" asked Miss Anna. "About $7,000," I suggested, "Or $10,000." Said Miss Anna, "That was what the Halliday window cost." "Very probably," I assented. She smiled and said, "Very well, I turn it over to you."

Whereupon, as the World-War made it impossible to get in touch with the English glass-makers, whom Miss Anna preferred, I turned to the Tiffany studios. Their able manager, Mr. George, came down, with some plans along the line I suggested of a proper setting for the Mosaic. Miss Anna, Mr. George and myself met in the Church and considered these proposals.

As we stood there I realized vividly that now or never was the opportunity to enlarge and raise the Chancel. The old Chancel was very small and the minister stood at morning and evening prayers close up to the pulpit, outside of the rail, only a shallow step above the floor of the Church, so low that he was invisible from the back of the Church, when the congregation stood up as at the reading of the Psalter. That the Magees might realize what a great improvement it would be to elevate the Chancel, some months before I had had a box placed in the chancel, (of course, suitably covered), and taken my stand upon it at a service and called the attention of the Congregation to the enhanced dignity that would be given to our worship, if the Chancel could be raised to that height. Miss Fanny was shocked and expressed her strong opposition. I found Miss Anna much more open-minded.

"Miss Anna," I said, as we stood there together, "if this window is put in now with the mosaic at this height, the Chancel can never be raised. This is our opportunity to give a new dignity to our worship and to make our services more effective. Let us tear away one pew all round, and raise the chancel two or three feet, at the same time raising the Mosaic. It is a much-needed improvement." Those were almost my exact words. I realized in some mysterious way that persuasion had gone out of me. Miss Anna waited a moment and then said decisively, "I will do it." I immediately tore up the sketch submitted by Mr. George and told him to work out a larger scheme. The result was the enlarged and elevated chancel, the new stone Communion table, pulpit, lectern and chancel furniture. The total cost was about $45,000. Miss Anna made a formal presentation at a great service and tasted the delights of generous giving. Of course, there were critics; people who thought Miss Anna ought not to erect a memorial during the war, who wanted Miss Anna to give her money according to their wishes and not according to her own judgment, who asked her why she didn't give us a new Sunday School building, thereby making it more difficult to interest her in that scheme when the necessity for a new building arose. We had at that time an unusual abundance of the people who trouble every parish more or less, who are prolific in criticism and in untimely and disturbing suggestions. Of course, we had the folk whose loyalty to the past, made them indifferent or irresponsive to the needs of the future.

Fortunately, the approval of the majority of the Parish was echoed and re-echoed by outsiders. Miss Anna began to realize her opportunity.

She began to help the Jefferson Hospital for which, with associated hospitals she did such fine things in her last will, a new happiness had come into her life. In a few years she drew me aside and handed me a check for $25,000, saying, "You did so well with the Chancel, I want you to make the rest of the Church to correspond. Ask the Vestry to give you a free hand, as they did with the Chancel." "I have no doubt the Vestry will do so," I replied. "But you are in the position of a woman who, pleased with a beautiful bonnet, has ordered a dress to match it. I know that $25,000 will not be enough." The upshot was that we acquired a new interior.

I copy here my statement in the booklet, published after the second presentation service:

The chief alterations were: Cutting back the south gallery to the line of the north gallery; closing the circular windows on either side of the reredos, the walls replastered and covered with canvas, a new baptistery of Champville marble, a screen of Champville marble and glass in place of the old wooden screen inside the front door. All the aisles and the vestibule were floored with Casota marble. New lanterns of Gothic design were hung all over the church. An elaborate and costly ventilating system was installed in the roof.

Later on Miss Magee gave me $20,000 to improve the exterior of the Church, and $10,000 towards the purchase of the rectory on Clinton Street.

It would be difficult to over-estimate the value of these improvements. The old church had been dark and miserably lighted and badly ventilated, since opening the windows let in all the dust and noises of the street. The total cost was $100,000.

When the Sunday School building burned down I went most reluctantly to her for aid. She said, "I am not going to build that building for you. People have told me that I ought to do it, but I won't." I repeat the conversation because I want it to be brought home to the congregation how those self-appointed leaders, suggesters and critics embarrass the rector, the duly appointed Chief in his leadership. "I sympathize with you, Miss Anna," I answered, "in resenting this attempt at dictation to your generosity. But you have taught me to come to you with my problems. If I raise $20,000 in addition to the amount we have on hand, will you give me $20,000?" "I will," she said. "If I raise $30,000 will you give me $30,000?" "Yes," she said, "But not a cent more." I thanked her with the liveliest gratitude, and asked her to put it in a form that would bind her estate. She was always a person of prompt decision and a lively realization of the practical requirements of good business, and did so at once. The congregation made a heroic effort and as soon as the subscriptions for $30,000 were secured, Miss Anna paid her pledge. The result is our splendid Community House, the most costly structure erected by the Church, since its first foundation. I should not be surprised if its total cost of $100,000 did not exceed the original cost of building the Church.

In all Miss Magee gave me over $200,000 for the renovation and improvement of our equipment. It is good to know that she found great joy in this giving. Her memory is fittingly preserved in the last of our memorials, the beautiful window by Ascenzo, near the recumbent effigy of Col. Burd. She also left in her will $105,000 to our Endowment Fund to enable the Church of her love to do its needed work in the heart of a great City.

Christmas Basket Committee

Once more it is my pleasant duty to report on the work of the Christmas Basket Committee, and again I have found it as always in the past a real pleasure to work for the congregation of St. Stephen's Church. Your unfailing generosity makes work like this very easy for your committees.

Your committee distributed 108 Christmas baskets, most of them to families selected by Mrs. Higham, with a few others added from outside sources. We believe they are all worthy people and that your charity was not abused in any way.

In each basket we packed the following items:

2 4-lb. Roasting Chickens.
1 Mince Pie.
2 lbs. Sugar.
½ lb. Orange Pekoe Tea.
1 lb. Coffee.
5 lbs. Potatoes.
3 lbs. Onions.
6 Apples.
6 Oranges.

We could have packed more by using a little more money, but as it was, the baskets were so heavy that it was almost impossible to carry them without breaking the handles, and most of the people had to take the chickens out and carry them in one hand and the basket in the other.

In some of the baskets where a family was very large, an extra Mince Pie was placed, and I understand one widow with 14 children was given 3 chickens and 2 mince pies to help out, which was certainly a well-deserved tribute.

We started with a balance from last year of $206.93 and we have received contributions of $343.45.

Our payments were $388.75, which leaves a balance in the treasury of $161.63 to start next year.

The value of the baskets, including the mince pies was about $4.00. As it is one of my greatest pleasures each year to present the mince pies, I haven't included them in the account of cash received.

I want to express my thanks and appreciation of the work done by the other members of the committee, especially Mr. Fisher and Mr. Carrigan, and my very deep appreciation to all the members of the congregation for their very generous support.

Craig Atmore.

HOUSE INSIDE

I have a house inside of me,
A house that people never see;
It has a door through which none pass,
And windows, but they're not made of glass.
Sometimes I like to go inside
And hide and hide and hide and hide,
And doctor up my wounded pride,
When I've been treated rough outside.
And sometimes, when I've been to blame,
I go inside and blush for shame,
And get my mind in better frame,
And get my tongue and temper the same.
I meet my Heavenly Father there,
And He stoops down to hear my prayer.
To heal my wounds, and cure my care,
And make me strong to do and dare.
Then, after I am made quite strong,
And things are right that were all wrong
I go outside, where I belong,
And sing a new and happy song.
And then I hear the people say:
"You're blithe and bonny, good and gay."
It's just because I feel that way,
But they don't know the price I pay.
You have a house inside of you,
Where you can fight your battle through,
And God will tell you what to do,
And make your heart both strong and true,

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

The law of the land does not allow the Protestant Episcopal Church to hold property as a Church. The reason for this legislation lies in the history of the Middle Ages. As the Church never dies, the property that passes into its control rarely comes back into common uses. Much of it is exempt from taxation and so increases the burdens of others. Let any one read of the causes of unrest and revolution in Spain today and he will find that the large holdings of real estate by the Church and the religious orders is a prominent factor.

To provide against such evils the State insists that the laity and not the Bishop and Clergy shall have control of the property of the Church. Moreover, the State is anxious that persons rather than doctrines should, as far as possible, control the disposition of property. It, therefore, provides a Vestry to hold the property for a congregation and the general policy of the Legislatures and the Courts is to favor the title of the people continuously using the property and making it effective for religious purposes. In the case of the Presbyterian and Congregational Churches of England and New England, Congregations were allowed to retain their property even when there had been changes of doctrine, if there had been continuity of life. Thus the policy of the State is to foster lay control of property and to emphasize the rights of the people who build and vitalize each particular Church.

I have always sympathized with this attitude of the State, since I have felt that the dominion of the Church was in the realm of belief and ideals and not in the realm of real estate. The Church has, however, often girded against the law of the State and shown a desire to control people through the real-estate, rather than through the laws of the Church or by spiritual influences. I will illustrate: When I was on the Committee on Canons in the General Convention, a Bishop appeared before us to advocate a Canon that would in some way—I have forgotten the details—ensure the Bishop of the Diocese being on the board which held the property of sisterhoods. He frankly confessed that he wished to have some power over the property because he found it hard to control these sisterhoods in their preference for the service of the Mass to the Communion Office in the Prayer Book. He knew that the Committee on Canons was loyal to the Communion Office, and counted on our support. He did not receive it. We pointed out that his remedy lay not in controlling property but in regulating persons. He ought to discipline the Clergy who were conducting these lawless services.

That may be said to be in principle the theory of the State. Let the dominion of the Church be exercised over persons, through canons and teachings, and let it not resort to control of property in order to dominate persons. By these general principles I am guided in my relation to the property and endowments of St. Stephen's. The people in legal possession of these properties are the Rector and Vestry as the custodians for the benefit of the people who worship in the church and give it vitality. They know best the terms on which the various bequests were made. Theirs is the knowledge and theirs is the power and the responsibility.

No one knows better than I the purposes for which most of our endowments were given. About seven-eighths of the endowments available for the support of the Church, as distinguished from the endowments held for specified benevolent purposes were given during my rectorship, and I was in close touch with the people who left them to us.

When you hear this talk about removal and mergers and various applications of our funds I want the congregation to know that we should have lost all of these gifts, if we had hearkened to the counsels of those who wished us to move and merge with some other Church. I had not been rector of St. Stephen's long before the first suggestion was made. Dr. Bodine had died and the Church of the Saviour was vacant. One of my Vestrymen came to me and asked whether I would consent to a union with that Church. "All we ask is that you consent; leave it to us to bring it about," he said. I refused most positively. I pointed to the long decline that had followed the fusion of St. Luke with the Epiphany; a decline that only stopped when a new rector appeared. The difficulty of uprooting people and combining congregations had been proven by many experiments. "The effect," I said, "will be that you will secure the money for the real-estate of St. Stephen's, but you will lose the people and all the rich possibilities of their loyalty. A church will be wiped off the map and no compensating gain secured." The Vestryman soon after left St. Stephen's.

The next proposal came when Mr. Gunnell resigned from St. Andrew's. St. Stephen's and St. Andrew's were founded the same year, 1823—and were near neighbors. Some of my leading people, as for example, Dr. Weir Mitchell, had been brought up in St. Andrew's. Mr. Francis A. Lewis asked me what I thought about a consolidation, St. Andrew's to come to us with four of their vestrymen on our Vestry.

In my opinion the proposal had great merits. We had a meeting with the St. Andrew's Vestry. They favored consolidation. So I wrote a report advocating the combination. Some of my leading people outside of the Vestry favored it. A few nights before the meeting of the Vestry, which was to pass on my report, the Magees sent their carriage around and asked me to come to their house. The whole family was assembled and Miss Fanny acted as spokesman. "Do you favor this combination?" she asked. I replied, "I do, if it can be brought about without too much friction and opposition." "Is it the St. Andrew's endowments you are after?" said Miss Fanny. "You need not consider them, for we engage to provide for the future of St. Stephen's." "That is fine," I replied, "but I am not willing to sit down and wait for endowments. I want to minister to people. It would greatly add to the efficiency of my ministry, if we could secure these people." "Let them come, as individuals," said Miss Fanny, "but we do not believe in these combinations. We will provide for St. Stephen's and we will fight a consolidation." "Well," I replied, "I shall test the sentiment of the Vestry, and I am glad to know how you feel, for that is one of the elements in my problem."

Mr. Francis A. Lewis, who was ardently in favor of the combination, came to me at the Vestry meeting, and asked if he could not read my report since I was in the Chair. I assented, although I knew that Mr. Lewis's advocacy did not help the project, with Mr. Cleeman and the older Vestrymen, who were vividly aware of the fact that Mr. Lewis had left St. James's when there was some trouble there and was not attached to St. Stephen's by any such loyal ties as the older Vestrymen. I could not, however, obscure the fact that Mr. Lewis was a prime mover in the matter. So he read the report favoring a combination. The vote was a tie, Mr. Hunter Ewing, my closest friend, voting "Aye" because he was not willing to antagonize me, his rector, but stating frankly that he did so against his own judgment. Charles L. McKeehan voted "no." "It is up to the Rector to cast the deciding vote," said Mr. Lewis, exultantly, thinking the victory won.

Without a moment's hesitation I said, "I vote 'No.' A project of this kind ought to be abandoned unless it is carried by an overwhelming majority. Moreover, since I wrote the report I had had word from the people in St. Andrew's that they resent the action of their Vestry in dealing with us, without consulting them, and will, under no circumstances, come to our church. I have also been informed by the Magees that they will fight the deal, but will provide for the future of St. Stephen's, if the combination is not made. If this scheme only secures a bare majority, by my casting vote, here, how could we hope to have it approved by a Parish meeting, with the Magees opposing it and making these promises?" "But," interrupted Mr. Lewis, "we need not consult the congregation." "I certainly would oppose any plan to make a combination without the consent of the congregation," I replied. "The proposal is defeated."

At the next meeting Mr. Francis A. Lewis sent in his resignation. I heard some adverse comments on my vote, as an undue subservience to the money of the Magees. But it is pleasant to recall that Bishop Whitaker when I narrated these circumstances to him, approved my conduct. At least one good came out of the agitation, we had definite assurances that the future of St. Stephen's would be provided for.

St. Andrew's subsequently moved to West Philadelphia and its endowments went into providing a Chapel for the Divinity School. Only a few of St. Andrew's people transferred their membership to St. Stephen's.

This narrative will make it plain that the Magees gave their money to prevent either removal or merging.

This conclusion would be further strengthened by a study of the terms under which their various bequests were made; some being for the organ, others for the upkeep of the Memorials, and all being not for the Protestant Episcopal Church in general, but for the Parish Church of their affection, St. Stephen's on Tenth Street.

In my judgment the Diocese would lose more by weakening the general confidence that such bequests will be loyally used for the purposes for which they are given, than it could possibly gain by pleading that these local uses are impractical and getting permission to appropriate the funds to kindred purposes.

I have already been informed by a person who proposes to leave money to one of our Societies, that if there is any uncertainty about our continuance on Tenth Street, this bequest will be changed.

If people have imagined that our Endowments were secured without any prudent management, I hope that this narrative will open their eyes. I could write other revealing chapters on this subject. The ship was not brought without careful piloting into the safe harbor where it now rides.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

The Bishop Coadjutor will visit St. Stephen's Church on Sunday, March 22nd, at 11 A. M. service for Confirmation.

The Owl and the Skeptic.

An Owl who had so successfully dominated the mice in his barn, that he felt himself to be a ruling spirit in the universe, by some mischance was out in the open air at noon on a summer day. Dazzled and pained by the light of the Sun, he fluttered home as best he could and thus complained to his mate: "The sun is nature's great mistake; it dries up the delightful little pools, it makes the weeds grow, fills the air with fog, and gives poor farmers the sunstroke. What a pity it can't be done away with. Then we should always have soothing night, so grateful to our eyes. So the beneficent sun, that gives vitality to our planet, ripens our crops, fills our morning and evening skies with glory and holds the Earth in its orbit is regarded by the Owl. So is Theism regarded by the Skeptic.—From St. Stephen's Bulletin.

The Woman's Auxiliary

There were twenty-three members present at the January meeting of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Mrs. Christie reported the need for help for the Blue Ridge Industrial School at Bris, Va. The school was founded in 1910 with 15 pupils, 4 teachers and employees and one building. Today there are 200 pupils, 22 teachers, and 21 buildings. Preference is given to the most isolated mountain children. Owing to this year's drought the school is much in need of money. In former years the garden and orchard furnished food for the school and made quite a sum of money extra. This year not even enough food was raised.

The Indian's Hope is far behind in the advance work. Twelve hundred dollars was promised for Shoshone water works—$472 has been raised.

A Ford car was promised Mrs. Kent, at Ethete, Wyo., but only $238 has been collected for it. Last year $1400 was given for salaries in the Indian mission field; so far only $803 has been raised for this work this year.

In the Diocesan Committee a drive has been made for second hand clothing for the City Mission. In less than three months 5416 garments have been sent in.

The Committee on Colored Missions needs $550 to complete this year's pledges.

The next Auxiliary meeting will be held February 19th.

Beulah E. Hollar,
Secretary.

MYSELF

I have to live with myself, and so
I want to be fit for myself to know;
I want to be able, as days go by,
Always to look myself straight in the eye.
I don't want to stand, with the setting sun
And hate myself for the things I've done.
I want to go out with my head erect;
I want to deserve all men's respect;
But here in the struggle for fame and pelf
I want to be able to like myself.
I don't want to look at myself and know
That I'm bluster and bluff and empty show.
I can't ever hide myself from me;
I see what others may never see;
I know what others may never know;
I never can fool myself, and so
Whatever happens I want to be Self-respecting and conscience-free,

A peaceful world to me is of very little value unless human life is lived on a high moral and a high spiritual standard. Mere material gain is comparatively of little value. The authorities of the world must not, therefore, merely pass resolutions in favor of peace. They must bend their attention to great programs relating to social well-being.—Ramsay MacDonald, quoted in The Living Age.

King's Daughters "Whatsoever Circle"

The Circle will give a dinner on Tuesday evening, February 17th, at 6 P. M., in the Community House. Subscription, 75 cents, the proceeds to be given to the Community House Fund. We are very anxious to make this a success, and will be pleased to see our old friends, who so kindly helped us in the past and will also be glad to meet any new friends who can come, as we need and will appreciate everyone's support.

Young People's Club

The Young People's Club have been doing their usual charity work this winter.

At Christmas time they entertained 24 children (aged 6 to 10 years), furnished by the Jefferson Hospital Social Service Department. We gave them a substantial supper, had movies and as they were leaving, gave each one a nice warm sweater, a box of candy and a toy.

In January we entertianed 24 "Mothers" with a supper and movies, giving each one a nice warm blanket. They all appreciated what we did for them, and one in particular told me it was the first time she had been away from home for nine years, and she had to borrow most of the clothing she had on to be able to come.

Very few do much for the women of the family, so we feel we are doing a good work by giving them a party where they are the guests of honor and they have a chance to get away from their families for a few hours.

President.

The Wickersham Report

The best thing about the Wickersham report is the fine declaration it brought forth from the President. President Hoover realizes that the evil inherent in the liquor traffic cannot be eliminated by legalizing the business. He appreciates that the Prohibition law has brought us gains that must not be lost. He is entirely opposed to providing for defeat, and is determined to press on now that the enforcement of the law is at last under the right department, the Department of Justice, and the officers of enforcement are chosen under Civil Service laws.

The next good thing is Mr. Wickersham's sensible opinion that it is unwise to think of changing a law that has only recently been made effective by proper legislation.

The comment of the only woman on the Board that the Prohibition law was injuring the morale of our people, shows a singular inability to distinguish between causes and the occasions for their manifestation. A thermometer reveals the presence of fever, but does not cause it, and the Prohibition law reveals lawlessness but does not create it. Its origin is the self-will and lack of loyalty to the legally expressed will of the people, that is the basis of bootlegging and the patronage of bootlegging. Nothing could be more destructive of our National morale than to yield to lawlessness. Our duty to obey is not measured by the size of the majority that passed the Amendment or that passes the necessary enforcement laws, nor by the votes pro or con of the Wickersham Commission.

The final resolutions of the Commission are satisfactory except the suggestion of a new amendment in case the present amendment should not be enforceable. That possibility ought not to be contemplated in a law-abiding land.

The individual opinions show that although the Committee was representative of the various Geographical sections, it was not sufficiently representative of the different social strata. Certainly the woman on the Board did not express the conclusions of women. After all Government by representation is better than government by experts, who like the rest of us are greatly influenced by their social environment and in this case were taken chiefly from one class.—C. E. G.

What Can We Do to Help?

We must give what we can.

We must look around and find what work we can give others.

We must give away our old clothes and hats and shoes. This is not time for saving. Mrs. Higham can use them.

We must contribute something even if only a little to the Red Cross.

Many mickles make a muckle.

We must not seek to make political capital out of this trouble.

We must pray to God to stir us to do our part and to arouse others to their duty, and to bring good out of this adversity.

West Africa bishops had a meeting during the Lambeth Conference, attended by the bishops of Lagos, Sierra Leone, Accra, Niger and Liberia. (One needs a map!) Bishop Campbell says, "One of the outstanding things that emerged is the enormous amount of missionary work being carried on by the African Christians themselves in Nigeria. The Bishop of Lagos said that one of his African priests has sixty stations to look after—nearly as many as we have in all Liberia! When will we in Liberia ever wake up to our duty to our heathen neighbors?"

Dr. Rudolf B. Teusler, head of St. Luke's Hospital, Tokyo, made a detailed report on the present progress of the hospital building. Funds on hand are sufficient to go ahead with certain units and Dr. Teusler was authorized to proceed with them. For other units, money is still needed. Dr. Teusler is now in the United States endeavoring to secure it, but no further general appeal is to be made.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

Never do I feel so profoundly my own short-comings as a Minister, and a Christian, as when I am gathering together and instructing a confirmation class.

I realize that the chief difficulty in winning recruits for Christ is the feebleness with which our own light shines. I often think of the sad remark of Horace Bushnell, who became very much interested in the construction of the beautiful park around the State House in Hartford, Connecticut, which now bears his name, that he was ashamed to think how much greater was his zeal for this material improvement than for the spiritual life of his people. I do not think that Bushnell was entirely just to himself in this judgment for he was a wonderful shepherd of souls and a great religious teacher. Yet every minister will feel that there was a measure of truth in his self-reproach. We allow ourselves to be deceived by the notion that the Eternal issues can be considered at our leisure and are not dependent on Time like sublunary concerns, where times and seasons and opportunities seem all important.

But while it is indeed true, that Eternal Truths are not so clamorous for immediate attention as bodily needs, and temporal affairs, still it is a great mistake to imagine that the claims of religion can be safely postponed or lightly set aside for temporal concerns. The truths of mathematics have no relation to time, they are eternally true. But our ability to learn them has a very definite relation to Time. I have never heard of any one learning the Calculus, when he was over sixty. Thiers, the famous French historian and statesman, took up the study of Conic sections late in life, but his mind was so slow to accept mathematical proof that his tutor had to give him an ocular demonstration of the effect of cutting a cone in various directions before he would accept the mathematical demonstration. In spite of the eminent professor who has recently claimed that people of advanced age can learn a foreign language as readily as a child, if they would give as much time to the endeavor as the child gives, I remain unconvinced. For one thing their ears are not sufficiently sharp to catch the subtilties of pronunciation; nor their vocal organs able to frame to pronounce the new sounds. This new theory is sufficiently refuted by listening to the English of immigrants who have come to this country late in life and done their best to learn our language and fallen far short.

Life has a dramatic quality. It has its seasons, its opportunities, its tides, making things possible or easy at one conjunction, that will be difficult and almost impossible later on.

The religious life comes under this law. When the affections are warm, the ideals high and unperverted by the false standards of the world, then is the time to consider the claims of the service of God, as set forth by the Church and expressed in the Bible. That is the time for sowing the seed. Spring weather then prevails in the soul. Sad will be the Autumn if there is no sowing in the Spring and Summer.

Another favorable time is after a great bereavement. After the plough has torn open the soil, the seed finds safe lodgment. And after some great loss or bereavement has pierced our hearts, spiritual truths come home with special power. When the night falls, the stars come out, and when earthly joys grow dim, heavenly realities reveal themselves. Sorrow, adversity, trouble, bereavement afford the soul glimpses of realities never seen before. I believe that this season of national distress is a great opportunity for sowing the seed of the Word. I look for an abundant harvest in an increased spirituality among our people.

With some gracious souls a great happiness is a source of spiritual uplift. When the life is brightened by reciprocated love, it is easy to believe that the Universe is governed by a loving spirit. When that miracle of miracles takes place and a new-born babe is laid in a parent's arms what powerful and unselfish emotions well up, life seems a different scene, all things become new.

These manifold experiences are taking place all around us. The great problem is how to utilize them, how to help others to turn them to the best advantage. If we could only realize that success in the spiritual life is largely dependent upon our taking advantage of these seasons and using them profitably! It has been well said that seven-eights of wisdom consists in being wise in time. To be wise too late, is only to be tortured by remorse.

I would that all of us could realize the opportunity of this Confirmation season. To the Communicants it is a call to self-examination. If our Christianity were more apparent in the sweetness of our countenances, the kindness of our words, the generosity and friendliness of our lives, there would be no difficulty in winning recruits for the cause of God. People would long to join such a resplendent band of children of light. The cause is straitened not in lack of opportunity, but in the lives of the professed followers of Christ. For the young this is the time of decision. With them life is plastic, to them the largest possibilities stand open; to them the invitation is specially urgent.

My general rule is that the candidates for Confirmation shall be 14 years old. I make this rule that the step may be taken with a sense of personal responsibility. My pastoral experience has taught me that if the vows are taken earlier, there is danger that they may afterwards be considered, as taken without a knowledge of what they involved. Of course, these vows do not create obligations; they only recognize them; still experience has taught me that it is wiser to wait till 14 at least. In cases of unusual precocity, spiritual or mental this rule has been waived—on the advice of parents. We can have no iron-bound rules in dealing with persons.

On Saturday, February 14th, were held the Commencement Exercises of the Burd School, and the celebration of the 75th Anniversary of this noble institution which was placed by Mrs. Burd under the perpetual care of the Rector and Vestry of St. Stephen's Church. Diplomas of graduation were given to Lillian Bovell, Shirley Edwards and Dorothy Ziegler. All three after their graduation at the Philadelphia High School were given special training; Lillian Bovell and Dorothy Ziegler in Farmville, Virginia, and Shirley Edwards in teaching music in New York.

The address was delivered by the Rev. John Hart, Jr., and the usual prizes were awarded for proficiency in Music and in School, for punctuality and for neatness.

An unusual and most artistic feature were the Old Valentines, tableaux accompanied by the reading of verses written for the most part by Edward Shippen Burd.

The valentines were:

(1) "Lines to a Young Lady Playing the Harp."
Harp Solo.
(2) Peggy Shippen and Daughter.
"Now is the Month of Maying." Burd School Chorus.
(3) Eliza Howard Sims.
Verses in Acrostic by Edward Shippen Burd.
(4) Edward Shippen Burd and Eliza Sims at Bedford Springs.
Lines to Eliza written by Edward.
Minuet—Burd School Chorus, "Grandma Told Me All About It."
(5) The Sisters.
Lines Addressed to Elizabeth and Margaret Burd.
(6) Woodrop Sims Burd.
Writings from his original copy book of penmanship.
(7) Mrs. Burd (Eliza Howard Sims)
"A Mother's Voice," from "Manuscript Gleanings."
(8) The Original Twelve.
(9) A Last Glimpse.
"Cornish May Song," Burd School Chorus.

The prologue was pronounced by Miriam Mitchell.

Mrs. Emma Rous was the Harpist; the Director, Miss Louise Everts; the Pianist, Mr. Vladimir Sokoloff; and the Music Director, Miss Frances McCollin.

The Burd School was inaugurated under Dr. Ducachet. Since his day there have been the rectorships of Dr. Rudder, Dr. McConnell, Dr. Worcester and myself. It is hard to realize that I have been Chairman of its board longer than anyone else. Few things in my ministry give me greater satisfaction than my share in the administration of this trust. During my rectorship it has been entirely reorganized, its finances put on a sound basis, its property at the end of Market Street sold at a satisfactory figure, and the School transferred to its present site and buildings.

The old property was sold in order to gain more income to meet the increased cost of living. It was also desired to house the School in buildings less institutional in character, and more like a home, with more modern conveniences. A location was sought closer in town in order that the girls might be kept in contact with their mothers who in a large majority of cases live in Philadelphia and also for the sake of the admirable Public Schools. It was also felt that it was very desirable that the children should be near enough to attend St. Stephen's Church's services and Sunday School. All these purposes were met by our present site and buildings near Clarke Park.

Under the admirable management of its principal, Miss Tappen, the School is adjusting itself to modern conditions and has received the highest praise from the State's Department of Social Service.

The Committee of the Vestry which administers this trust is unremitting in its interest, and administers the affairs of the School with exemplary fidelity. The Treasurer is Dean Emory R. Johnson. The Principal is assisted in her work by a board of Lady Visitors of which Mrs. Wm. B. Campbell is Chairman.

Let me say a word about funerals. The clergy are anxious to be of service to our members in every way possible. But there are some clerical services that must be asked for before they can be rendered. No minister has the right to assume that he will be asked to marry a couple. He may be their rector or close friend, but there may be relations who have the first claim at such a time. So ministers wait to be asked to officiate at a wedding.

The same holds true of a funeral. We offer our sympathy, and such consolations as we can give, but we must be asked to officiate; for aught we know there may be closer ties that may assert themselves. Still I confess that we are pained when we are entirely overlooked. We don't insist on the first place, but we are gratified when the pastoral tie is acknowledged.

We believe that friends who arrange the funeral overlook the wishes of the deceased, when they entirely ignore the pastoral relation. Where this occurs I should like it known, that we deeply regret our inability to pay this last tribute of affection and to discharge our pastoral office.

There are two considerations with regard to Prohibition. The first is whether it has brought benefits, that are worth the trouble it has cost. The second is the problem of enforcement—whether it is feasible and if so, how the result shall be achieved. This latter problem is for the statesmen and lawyers. But the first, which is the all-important one—can be decided by everyone on his own observation. If he wishes for expert advice the best advisers are the economists, and the social workers. Again and again we read in the Wickersham report, that "American ingenuity can be trusted" to discover some other way to solve the liquor problem if the 18th Amendment prove unenforceable. But it may be argued with equal plausibility that American ingenuity may be trusted to find some way to enforce the 18th amendment now that we have at last got enforcement under the right department, the Department of Justice, and organized the force under Civil Service rules. American ingenuity, I hold can be trusted to find a way, if the 18th Amendment has brought social, economic and moral benefits in its train that are worth conserving.

In the February Survey Graphic Whiting Williams testifies emphatically that Prohibition has brought marvelous improvements in the drinking conditions among working men. Passing himself off as a hobo he mingled last summer among the unemployed in Pittsburgh, Detroit, Gary, and Chicago. Here are some of his testimonies: "In the old days, more intoxicated men than I discovered this year could have been discovered in two, or possibly three, saloons within a few blocks in a single one of the whole list of communities visited."

Again: "All the speakeasies of Homestead are not handling in a whole average day of 1930 as much of either Alcohol or money as crossed a single average saloon bar in Homestead during a single morning of 1919."

Again: "Our present effort to control John Barleycorn has provided a cushioning of vast proportions against the impact of current unemployment."

Again: "Anything like a loyally backed efficiently organized, and ably staffed effort at nation-wide enforcement is not yet two years old."

The article is certainly worth reading.

One remark I should like to add; every one agrees that the saloon must not be brought back. I do not understand how we can have liquor sold for beverage purposes without the equivalent of the saloon. It was not the name that made the saloon injurious but the fact that it sold alcoholic drinks. Any place selling the same beverages will be equally harmful—let it be named what you please.

When this reaches you Lent will be well under way. I hope that it may be a profitable season to all of us, and that those who can do so, will make a point of attending some of our noon-day services.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

THE McALL MISSION

At the February meeting of the American McAll Association one of the members gave a vivid account of a recent visit to the Mission headquarters in France. After attending service at one of the Paris centers she joined a party bound for one of the chapel boats on the Seine. These boats minister to the families living on the canal boats, who find in them their one chance to attend a religious service. The auditorium with its alter occupied the main portion of the boat, the pastor and his wife living in tiny rooms at either end. The American visitor was filled with pity as she surveyed their cramped quarters, and especially the poor little oil stove on which the wife prepared food for the family. They were quite happy, however, and enthusiastic over their work. The good pastor had won the hearts of the boatmen by giving them violet ray treatment for rheumatism, a complaint to which these men, living on the river amid low-lying plains, are peculiarly liable. The little paper issued by the Mission, "L'Ami de Batelier," combines religious teaching with the news of the river and a story for the children.

The Mission work is conducted with the strictest economy. The dispensary, though clean and well-kept, has none of the tiled floors and walls, the porcelain and nickel accessories used in our own hospital work. The playground for children at Montmartre is simply an enclosed plot of ground with a few swings in one corner, but to the little ones who come from the narrow winding streets of the old city, this open space for games is a wonderful boon. The attendant in charge is a nurse, and under her watchful care many children receive needed medical attention. These devoted and cultured women receive but $600 a year, and without our help even that small sum could not be paid, for the Protestants of France are few in number, and some are very poor. It is good to know that the McAll Mission is on friendly terms with its Catholic neighbors. One Roman Catholic priest advised his people to attend the meetings; "You will learn only good there," he said.

The McAll Mission was founded by a clergyman of the Church of England, but it is undenominational, and supported by Christian people in England and America, regardless of sect. Surely the fact that Methodists and Presbyterians contribute to it should not induce us to withhold our hand, but rather move us to generous emulation, that we, too, may have a share in this good work.

Gifts for the Mission are being received by St. Stephen's representative, Mrs. George Donehower, 106 North 50th Street. Mrs. Donehower acknowledges with thanks the following contributions, already received:

A branch of the Church Periodical Club which distributes many papers to children, has a rubber stamp to mark all its books and papers "Episcopal Church." The subject is rarely mentioned, but the words sink into the children's minds. On going to town to live, one small recipient appeared at the "Episcopal Church" because she recognized the title and had a friendly feeling toward it. Of course, one wants to be careful what kind of literature is given out in the Church's name.

The Altar Society herewith records its sense of the loss it has sustained in the death of Miss Sarah Eisenbrey. Although in recent years she has not been able to serve actively, her influence was potent with all who were ever associated with her. She loved to serve diligently and to do whatever she did with thoroughness. She had many ties with St. Stephen's and loved the Church devotedly. The members of the Society send their sympathy to her bereaved sister, for so many years the superintendent of the Society and now its Honorary Superintendent.

The Woman's Auxiliary

The Woman's Auxiliary meeting was held Thursday, March 19th, in the Community House, with sixteen members present. Dr. Kevin made the opening prayer. Although there was no guest speaker, it was a most interesting meeting, the reports of the committees being particularly instructive and enlightening.

Christ Church at Cristobal, in the Panama Canal Zone, is used by both the colored and white population. Archdeacon Sykes is endeavoring to raise money to build a church for the white congregation, which consists of Army and Navy men and their families and civilian government employees and their families.

Mrs. Birney reported the address of Mrs. Hunt, wife of the Superintendent of Ft. Valley School. Mrs. Hunt is proud that the Harmon Reward of $400 for outstanding work for negroes had been given this school.

It was gratifying to learn the high standing of St. Stephen's Branch in the Woman's Auxiliary of the Diocese.

The next meeting will be held April 16th, at ten-thirty. All women of the church are cordially invited to attend.

Beulah E. Hollar.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

This Parish News will be distributed on Easter Morning, and must bring you an Easter greeting. What a glorious day this is, which commemorates that great triumph over the grave, when the risen Christ appeared to His mourning followers and cheered them by His presence, and words. I greet you in the words of the Angelic chorus in Faust, in Bayard Taylor's translation:

Christ is arisen!
Bliss hath invested Him,—
Woes that molested Him,
Trials that tested Him,
Gloriously ended!

Christ is arisen,
Out of Corruption's womb;
Burst ye from prison,
Break from your gloom!
Praising and pleading Him,
Lovingly needing Him,
Brotherly feeding Him,
Preaching and speeding Him,
Blessing, succeeding Him,
Thus is the Master near—
Thus is He here!

That is the message of Easter: since our Leader has conquered, let us conquer, too, walking in His steps and drawing our strength from Him.

We need the exhortation and the encouragement; for these are days of trial in many homes, and of discouragement in many hearts. With many the vision splendid of a Kingdom of God on earth, of a better order, when the blessings of civilization shall be more equally distributed have faded away. They live for pleasure, and for self-aggrandisement. Sometimes this self-seeking takes the form of wild invectives against things as they are, and the aim is to ride to prominence as the spokesmen of unrest. All restraints are scorned, moralities, proprieties, decencies are all scoffed at. "The old prudish world missed the good things of life, let us not repeat its mistake. We have only one life here, let us suck the orange, before it dries up." So they say.

With others the self-seeking takes the form of resisting all change and trying to keep things as they are lest present advantages be lost. With these cowardly, self-seekers, all reforms are false lights on the shore luring us to shipwreck. The cry is "Down with the idealists."

Where can we find guidance amid this confusion, these contradictory appeals and claims,—this wide-diffusion of worldliness, self-seeking, frivolity, superficiality shallowness, and self-indulgence! I know no remedy except in the Gospel of Service in the gospel of brotherliness, in the gospel of self-sacrifice for the good of others, in a word in the gospel of Him, who came not to be ministered unto but to minister and give His life a ransom for many.

If we be risen with Christ, let us seek those things that are above, and let us go about doing good as Christ did on Earth. He has left us behind as His representatives.

Undoubtedly one of those idealisms is the aspiration to rid the world of the evils of Alcoholism. Whether the 18th Amendment was wise or not it was undoubtedly the expression of an exalted purpose. The question of the hour is whether that amendment is enforceable, and whether it has brought benefits that are sufficient to justify persistence in the "noble experiment."

In our March number I quoted the explicit testimony in the "Survey Graphic" of Whiting Williams, an accomplished student of social conditions to the marvelous improvement in the drinking conditions among the working classes.

The Wickersham Report states roundly, "that there is general agreement among social workers that there has been distinct improvement in standards of living among those with whom such workers came in contact, which must be attributed to prohibition."

The testimony of the Manufacturers Record on this subject is conclusive and has never been met. Monday is a different day, a sober day in the factories since prohibition.

Now let us hear the testimony of the Educators. Elmer Joy Morgan, editor of the Journal of the National Education Association, speaks authoritatively the mind of the school teachers:

"Next to the establishment of the Christian church and the founding of the common school," said Mr. Morgan, "the coming of the Eighteenth Amendment has done more for the welfare of childhood and youth than any advance in the history of civilization.

"There is not the slightest foundation for saying that conditions are worse in the high schools and colleges since the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment. All the facts I have ever seen show just the opposite. High school enrollment has increased from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 since 1920. Many young people have been brought into high schools who never could have had a chance with the saloon competing for their father's dollars. Undoubtedly many of the additional 3,000,000 come from homes of the poorer classes. The ones who drink represent an insignificant minority.

"I have talked with hundreds of school men who almost invariably tell me that the newspaper reports of drinking among high school students are either exaggerated or without foundation. The school men with whom I have talked recently tell me that conditions are steadily improving."

The Eastern daily papers, with the exception of the Christian Science Monitor, are so marked by hostility to Prohibition, so unfair and so unwilling to quote evidence for it, that I think it necessary to give the truth of the matter in this monthly. At some later issue I shall tell of the Swedish system, which is being so highly commended, of the bureaucratic control it would set up—workable in law-abiding Sweden with only six million people, but thoroughly impracticable in our vast, lawless America. I shall also tell of the disastrous future of a similar system in South Carolina.

A Suggestion

I suggest as a needed equipment of our down-town Church and a beautiful memorial, a full chime of bells. Our present set is a make-shift. When I came to St. Stephen's I found in the tower only nine bells which were badly out of tune. An enthusiastic bell-tuner who dropped in on me one day made such a moving plea that I should let him tune the bells and add two new ones at the moderate cost of $600 that I made an appeal for that sum in the Parish News. Mr. H. H. Barton liked the suggestion and sent me a check for the full amount. He added to the gift later. The total improvement cost less than one thousand dollars, all the expense, according to my recollection, borne by Mr. Barton. We were thus enabled to enlarge our list of hymns. Greatly is this music appreciated by the walkers on the streets, the workers in offices, the patients in the Jefferson hospital. Far and wide is the message flung. Still the range of our bells is small and the number of hymns they can play accurately sadly restricted. Greatly would their appeal be enhanced if we could have a modern set of chimes with an adequate number of bells of a beautiful tone. I suppose they would cost about $10,000. It would be a beautiful memorial and a splendid addition to our equipment. It seems to me our greatest need in equipment.

Do not think me discontented or unappreciative of our present fine plant, because I make such a suggestion. This is the method of growth. Where there is no vision the people perish. To show how such planting of seed leads to a harvest, I quote an extract from a sermon preached on April 17, 1917, on the Sunday after the papers had made known that Mr. James R. Magee had bequeathed St. Stephen's $100,000 to be paid after the death of Miss Anna.

Most of the plans indicated in this extract have been carried out. The fire precipitated upon us the necessity of building the Community House sooner than we expected.

Sunday, April 17, 1917.

Let me say a word about my ideals with regard to this parish, and of the means whereby we may reasonably hope to work them out.

A distinguished layman of New York asked me where my church was situated in Philadelphia, and when I answered that it was on Tenth Street between Market and Chestnut, he inquired whether that location was not very far down-town. I replied that the position of St. Stephen's Church in Philadelphia is not geographical but theological. We stand for a certain attitude towards truth and towards other Christian people, and those that sympathize with that attitude are drawn to us from all quarters.

If St. Stephen's is to become the exponent of a stereotyped theology, it makes little difference whether that theology be of the Middle Ages or of the Reformation period; if it should represent the Christian Church as having reached a final form incapable of further growth, or if it should emphasize the peculiar features of our church and treat people of other usages and forms and modes of church government as outside the household of Christ, I believe that it would cease to fulfill any useful purpose in the City of Philadelphia, and the congregation would soon be dissipated.

This is a great city, full of philanthropies and loyalties and its people are endued with many splendid qualities derived from many fountains of idealism, that were opened in this land by the heroism of the early settlers. But it cannot be denied that theologically the churches of Philadelphia are excessively conservative.

In the midst of a world of change, where Medicine is being made over into a new science, and Law, having altered entirely its methods of teaching and its modes of practice is rapidly moulding itself along new lines, we find the Christian pulpit very slow to respond to new movements of thought. Wherever our affections are deeply engaged, we are prone to be conservative. The last place that we wish to see changed is the home in which we grew up, all of whose features are consecrated by our tender associations. The last word in the English language that will drop the unnecessary "u" will probably be the word "Saviour." Still it is not intended that our lives shall be dominated by sentimentality, but that we should be the servants of truth and that we should be guided by reason. In justice to the next generation we must remove those things that can be shaken and must speak the truth according to the light that God gives us.

Now my idea of St. Stephen's is that this Church can only rightly fulfill its functions by being the home of a liberal theology. It was because I believed that the pulpit was of such a character that I accepted the call in spite of the difficulties that lay around a down-town church.

But it is not enough that we should have a liberal pulpit; we ought also to have a liberal organization. Our charter requires that the vestry be elected by the pewholders. After a while I think that charter ought to be amended so that the vestry can be elected by the communicants who contribute a specified sum, not less than $5 toward the support of the church. But before any such change should be made we ought to accustom ourselves to working the machinery that we have. A liberty that expresses itself only in theories and does not mould life, is not worth much. I should like the parish to be a homogeneous parish, by carrying out the liberty of its doctrines in the progressive nature of its government. My ideal for this parish is that instead of the Easter election, we should simply have a formal meeting, and postpone the election of the vestry till the parish meeting. At the parish meeting the qualified voters should elect the vestry. I have no doubt that they would elect the gentlemen who already occupy that position. I don't expect anything revolutionary. I made such a change at Norfolk, and it worked admirably.

I should like to introduce it here gradually, first electing the vestry by the pewholders and later on extending the franchise to all communicants who contribute a specified sum.

The newspapers have spread abroad the information that by the will of Mr. James R. Magee we shall come into a generous bequest of one hundred thousand dollars at the expiration of an intervening life. Long may that gift be delayed, and when it comes may it be rightly used!

There are some churches that are killed by their endowments, because there is not sufficient energy in the congregation to make a right use of these blessings. Instead of being stirred up in a large and grateful way by these generous bequests, people accept them and lie back supinely, ungratefully enjoying them in inglorious ease. I am very solicitous that when the bequests come to us from the generous Magee family, to which we owe so much, the congregation shall have the organizations and societies and ramifications of various kinds that will enable us to make a fruitful use of these large means. Our institutional activities must be vitalized and prepared for that day. Our Girls' Friendly must not be allowed to grow smaller for lack of laborers or for deficiency in accommodation. Neither must we turn away workers for our Benevolent Society because we have not room for them. Our Boys' Clubs should not be permitted to grow less. Yet these are the dangers that lie ahead of us unless we can improve our parish building.

Nearly eighteen years ago, when I accepted the rectorship of Christ Church, Norfolk, I decided that we needed a new parish house there, and persuaded the congregation to build one. On my way north to look into the matter I passed through Philadelphia, and I recall that on inquiring at the Church House as to the parish houses that would be worth my inspection they replied there were only four churches whose parish houses would be worth my while, and they mentioned St. Stephen's as one of them. When I came around and inspected it I was very much astonished that it should have been indicated as worth a special visit. It was not to be compared to the parish building that I built for my church in Norfolk. Indeed, we have one of the poorest Sunday School buildings in the city. The lower story is cut up very unwisely. The Sunday School room has to serve too many purposes, and the boys' clubs have no advantages worth speaking of. I should like to put up a four or five story building there with a cage on the top in which the boys could play their basket ball; with rooms for the verger and the parish visitor; with a suitable hall to serve as a Sunday School room, and for theatrical entertainments. I do not know whether it would not be worth while to throw a bridge across and use some portion of the attic of the church. The furnaces could be carried over into the basement of the church.

I believe that I can lay my hand on ten thousand dollars for this purpose, if it should appeal to the congregation as a whole. In view of the great distress abroad and of the war clouds that are gathering over us at home, I do not think it proper to lay this burden now upon the congregation, for we would need about $40,000. All that I want to do is to present it to you as an ideal. I should be very glad if some of you would give the money that you wish to devote to the endowment to this purpose. It is more pressing just now than any increase in the endowment.

This is an object worthy of our endeavors. It would be a great mistake if the people should get into their minds the false notion that these future additions to our endowments are to relieve us of responsibilities. Just the opposite is the case. It is our duty to see that when they come, they become the possession of a living, working church, and are through it made widely useful to the community.

I hope that we shall have a good offering today for our expectation. We did splendidly in 1930; but we put off our gifts to the last month. We seem to be following the same procedure this year. By this time we should have contributed $1625.00, yet our total up to date is $577.98, according to the report of the Diocesan treasurer. Let us gird up our loins, give promptly. The Latin maxim tells us that he gives twice who gives quickly.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

The following resolution was passed by the Vestry at their meeting on March 9, 1931:

"The Vestry of St. Stephen's Church hereby places on record its profound sense of loss in the death of our late honored and beloved bishop, Thomas J. Garland. He was greatly endeared to us by his beautiful Christian character, and by his zeal for the cause of God and the welfare of humanity, by the consistency of his life and the friendliness and simplicity of his bearing. Clothed with humility he was worthily elevated to authority.

"Greatly was the Diocese blessed by his just and wise administration, and his remarkable gifts of initiative and organization. Long will the influence of his example and of his great bishopric be felt in this diocese to which he devoted almost his entire ministry. Profoundly grateful are we to God for the blessing of such a life and such a bishopric."

Carl E. Grammer, Rector.
Herbert Old, Secretary.

A PRAYER

Oh! that mine eye might closed be
To what concerns me not to see:
That deafness might possess mine ear
To what concerns me not to hear:
That truth my tongue might even tie
From speaking words of vanity:
That no vain thought might ever rest
Or be conceived within my breast;
So that in deed and word and thought,
Glory may unto God be wrought.
But what are wishes? Lord, mine eye
Is fixed on Thee, to Thee I cry!
Cleanse, Lord, and purify my heart
And make it clean in every part;
And when 'tis pure, Lord, keep it so,
For that is more than I can do.

A THRENODY

MARCH, 1931

Bleak are the days of this month,
Vernal month, often colder than Winter,
Fatal month, when the frost in retreat
Shoots backwards its deadliest darts;
When Death swings wide his keen scythe,
And funerals wind through our streets.

Fatal the Ides of this month,
To Caesar unscathed by his wars,
And fatal the Kalends of March
When our Bishop so suddenly left us,
So quietly breathed his last breath,
Unexpectedly laid down his burden
And entered so calmly his rest,
Our leader, so valient and true,
Our chieftain, far-seeing and sage,
Our friend, ever helpful and kind,
Our Bishop, so self-less and just,
So saintly in zeal for his Lord,
In patient forbearance and trust;
So heroic in sickness and pain.

All too few were the years of his rule;
But long will the memory last
Of his leadership, dauntless and wise,
Of his character humble and brave,
Consecrated to Christ and His Church.

Solemn the days of this month
When Lent calls us often to Church
To dwell on the sufferings of Christ,
On the treason, the cross and the shame,
On the life the disciple must lead
To walk in the steps of the Lord.
Chilling the blasts of this month,
And solemn the lessons of Lent.

But reviving the breezes of April
And joyous the message of Easter
Of victory over the grave,
Of re-unions and life everlasting.
In the light of that hope let us view
This bereavement so sudden and awful.
Eternity's brightness can change
Our tears into rainbows of hope.
The Master has taken him home.
The Chief Shepherd will care for the flock,
Over-ruling the folly of men.

Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

There are many reasons for rejoicing as we close our winter's work. All the reports of the Societies are encouraging. The Benevolent Society has done a truly astonishing amount of work, and has cooperated with the Lloyd Committee in giving employment to sewing women. The Community House has rendered large service to the Public. There has been a modest growth in our Sunday School and other Societies; not as large, of course, as we should like, but growth, and not decay. The Noon-day Services have improved both in attendance and in the quality of the Message. Religion may be used as an emotional luxury, or as a narcotic, or as a club with which to beat others, or as a stand on which to climb and look down on others. In short, like most good things, religion can be wrongfully used. The proper use of religion is to produce the fruits of the spirit, love, joy, peace, kindliness, fortitude, purity, generosity, helpfulness. It seems to me that the seed, that ought to produce such fruits is being sown abundantly at our noon-day services. The same may be said of our popular Lenten services.

The average weekly attendance at the daily noon-day service is between 200 and 250. The average daily attendance at the Lenten service is about 250.

The Parish Meeting on May 13th was unusually successful. The attendance was over a hundred in spite of the weather. The new method of having the Vestry nominated by a Committee saved trouble and left more time for social intercourse. The reports were commendably brief and to the point.

We are much indebted to Miss Laura Bell who was in charge for her excellent arrangements.

We missed the presence of Miss Emily Bell, Miss Blanche Moore and Mrs. John Coats Browne who were all three kept away by illness. Their absence was referred to with regret and messages were sent to them. Miss Laura Bell brought an affectionate message from her sister that was highly appreciated. This was the first Parish Meeting, I believe that Miss Emily Bell had missed, when she was in the country.

The congregation will take great pride, I am sure, in the generous gift that one of our number, Mr. T. Munroe Dobbins, has made to the Church Farm School of a finely equipped Infirmary in memory of his Mother. In her last days Mrs. Dobbins took a pew in St. Stephen's, where she used to sit with her son by her side. This was about ten years ago. After her death Mr. Dobbins moved his pew further back, and sits now near the Wood memorial. He has unfailingly responded generously to any appeals to him. Most grateful to me was the $500 which he gave to the Episcopal Hospital on Thanksgiving Day when I was lying sick there, and I am delighted that he has made such a generous gift to the Church Farm School, and erected such a beautiful memorial to his mother. Like his cousin, Mrs. John F. Combs, Mr. Dobbins belongs to a family of generous givers.

The Church has undertaken to raise $6,500 this year for causes outside the parish, the same amount that we promised last year. We waited till the last months of the year before sending in the money in 1930, but we are trying this year to send in our contributions more promptly. Here is the record of 1930 and 1931 as received from the Financial Secretary of the diocese.

Expectation 1930-1931	Proportion due in first 4 months	Paid first four months 1931	1930
$6,500.00	$2,167.00	$1,163.56	$781.66

The record shows improvement, but we might do better. Let us all try to send in our envelopes up to date before we leave for the summer. This will be a great help.

More and more is it borne in upon me that the two great forces needed in the Church are a spirit of cooperation, and friendliness. Experience has shown me that the loss of recalcitrant and obstructive people is never a real loss to the Parish. What a Church needs above everything else is a spirit of appreciation, interest in others, good will and zeal.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

Report of Accounting Warden

It is a pleasure to the Accounting Warden to again be able to report the finances of the Church in a sound and satisfactory condition. The Endowment funds of the Church showed a slight increase during the year 1930, and all funds are fully invested. The securities which the Church owns in its own right are in the possession of the fiscal agent of the Church, and those which are held in Trust for the benefit of the Church are in the hands of the Trustee.

The receipts for the year 1930 came from the following sources:

Interest on Endowments		$47,840.19
Envelope Contributions		966.97
Pew Rents		2,546.24
Burd School		500.00
Interest on Deposits		47.48
Community House Receipts		104.00
Total Receipts		$52,005.18

The disbursements were as follows:

Salaries of Clergy and Assistants		$20,350.00
Organist, Music and Choir		9,135.68
Church Pension Fund		1,102.50
Diocesan Assessments		1,795.91
Interest on Community House Mortgage		1,700.00
General Repairs	$2,192.27
Cleaning the Interior of the Church	1,485.00
		3,677.27
Installation of the Anna J. Magee Memorial Window		2 500.00
Operating Expenses		8,924.75
Fire Insurance		2,439.58
Taxes and Water Rent on Rectory		685.00
Total Disbursements		$52.310.69

It will be noted that during the year 1930 there were some non-recurring items and some unusual expenses. The beautiful window in memory of Miss Anna J. Magee was installed by the D'Ascenzo Studios at a cost of $2500, and some repairs were made to the Church, including the entire cleaning of the walls of the Church at an expense of approximately $3600. The fire insurance premiums were particularly heavy in 1930, due to the maturities of fire insurance in substantial amount during that year. With these unusual expenses taken into account the Accounting Warden feels that the income and disbursements were very well balanced.

The receipts for Special Parochial Purposes were as follows:

Communion Alms	$ 839.98
Envelope and other Contributions	1,430.44
Interest on Endowments	1,622.40
	$3,892.82

All of this money was disbursed for the purposes for which it had been given, and in addition there was contributed from various sources and to a large extent outside of the parish the sum of $5,000 for the endowment at the Episcopal Hospital of a bed in memory of the late Mr. Howard Reifsnyder, which sum was paid over to the Treasurer of the Episcopal Hospital for the purpose for which it had been donated.

The receipts for Diocesan and General Church Objects amounted to $5,921.67, and the disbursements were the same.

The Accounting Warden had on hand on December 31, 1930, the sum of $3,297.84 in reduction of the Community House debt, and it is hoped that during the year 1931 a substantial additional sum will be raised for that purpose.

Considering the period of financial distress through which we have passed in the year 1930 the Accounting Warden feels that the contributions made by the members of the Church, not only for the Diocesan Missions and Objects outside the parish but for special purposes within the parish and for parochial maintenance, have been on a most satisfactory basis. It is hoped that the communicants of our Church will continue to give to these objects the continued support which is expected of us and which they properly deserve.

Respectfully submitted,

I. Smith Raspin,
Accounting Warden.

Reports of the Noon-day Services, and Noon-day Lenten Services

Noon-day Services

Since the last annual report was submitted, a change has been made in the noon-day services.

The business organizations that have been maintaining the noon-day services, except the church service on Wednesday, having withdrawn, the church has assumed charge of all noon-day services.

These services have a promising outlook, and should be encouraged by members of the parish, as far as possible, both by their presence and interest. Those who make up the congregations are largely not members of the parish, but devout worshipers, whose daily attendance justifies the maintenance of the work.

There has been a gradual improvement in the attendance. The offerings dropped in the boxes at the church entrance, have thus far been sufficient to cover the expenses, but with the changes above referred to, the expenses will increase. The Vestry has made an appropriation to cover the arrearages.

Balance, May 1, 1930	$304.11
Receipts	432.91
	$737.02
Disbursements	648.55
Balance, May 1, 1931	$88.47

Noon-day Lenten Services

The Noon-day Lenten Services, which have been in existance for a great many years in this parish, are well known, far and wide, and awaken a great spiritual interest from year to year.

The estimated aggregate attendance this season was about 12,000. The largest attendance was 1,000 on Good Friday. Notwithstanding there are many other churches in the central part of the city now maintaining similar services, the attendance at St. Stephen's is very little affected.

It is no easy task to secure a full complement of acceptable preachers for the Lenten period. The Rector deserves a full measure of praise for his splendid selection.

Balance, May 1, 1930	$481.33
Receipts	893.13
	$1,374.46
Disbursements	1,198.00
Balance, May 1, 1931	$176.46

Respectfully submitted,
Clarence K. Klink,
Treasurer.

Benevolent Society

The Benevolent Society began the season of 1930 and 1931 with a cash balance of $11.95.

Just prior to our closing in April, 1930, we were advised that the former treasurer had deposited with a trust company her balance and that, with interest added, then amounted to $264.90.

Since only one envelope was given this season, Dr. Grammer added a generous contribution of $300 to make up the deficiency.

Had it not been for these two large amounts unexpectedly placed at our disposal, we should have been obliged to discontinue our activities in February.

With this great help, however, we were able to give our women more work than we had before, and were able, also, to employ two additional sewers, members of the church, who greatly needed this assistance.

We appreciate the donations from the Girls' Friendly Society, and from the King's Daughters of $10 and $5 respectively.

On account of the business depression and need of employment it was considered best this year to give work until our fund was exhausted. The result is that we now have an empty treasury; but the satisfaction of a record of articles made reaching the amazing total of 11,400.

The illness of Mrs. John Coats Browne has given us grave cause for anxiety; but we trust that we shall soon have more favorable reports of her condition, and we hope that she will be able to resume her work with us in the fall. She is indeed greatly missed, for her affectionate and sunny disposition endears her to all her friends, and to those in need she is ever sympathetic and generous.

Even in her illness she did not forget the Society in which she is so interested, sending her usual generous contribution for the luncheon to be served May 20th.

In conclusion, the treasurer appeals to the members of the congregation for support in this work, and she hopes that a goodly sum of money may be available for our use in the fall.

Isabel P. Davis,
Secretary.

Report of Sewing Done for the Committee on Unemployment

In February, 1931, the Benevolent Society was advised by the Committee on Unemployment that it would pay $7.25 a week to each of ten women if we would provide the sewing and be responsible for the work done.

We were glad to help in this good cause though it entailed extra time and work for those who attended the afternoon sessions when the sewing was given out.

The $7.25 per week each, meant more to these families than any one of us can imagine. They were most grateful for this help, and also for the personal interest shown them.

It was with sincere regret that on April 29th, owing to lack of funds from the Lloyd Committee this work ceased. We bade our new friends good-bye, knowing that they were going to homes where not a dollar was coming in for daily needs.

The number of articles made was 4200.

Altar Society

Thirty-seventh Annual Report of the Altar Society is herewith submitted. During the past year the Society has lost many of its members through death, sickness and several resignations. Owing to change of residence to Roanoke, Va., Miss Bertha Walshe is severing her connection with the Chancel Committee. She has served as a member for many years, giving such dependable and faithful service that she will be greatly missed.

The Society recorded in a minute the sense of loss that it had sustained in the death of Miss Sarah Eisenbrey, who had been a member for many years.

Three new members have been elected to membership within the last month.

The Treasurer reports:

The Woman's Auxiliary

The usual seven meetings have been held beginning in October with a corporate communion. Only one speaker has addressed the Auxiliary during the season, Bishop Thomas Jenkins, of Nevada, so much time being required to hear the reports of the faithful delegates that it has seemed unfair to curtail their time, and also it is not justice to a speaker from a distance to hurry him. Moreover, the Treasury has not been overflowing, so that donations outside the pledges have been restricted.

Two new members have been attending the meetings, and every woman connected with the parish is asked to show some interest in the Auxiliary, either by being a delegate to one of the committees, by attending the meetings or making a contribution toward the pledges expected from each parish. Interest grows in this way by becoming familiar with the names at least of the missionaries and their work in various parts of the world for the extension of the Kingdom of God.

There are many opportunities of hearing speakers at educational and devotional day meetings, and pleasant outings in the spring often lead to friendly relations with coworkers. Altogether, the church woman who does not join the Woman's Auxiliary misses an objective in her life which nothing else can fill.

Laura Bell,
President.

Wyck

The annual garden party and fair at Wyck, 6026 Germantown Avenue, the home of Mr. Caspar Wister Haines, takes place on Thursday afternoon, June 4th, when it is hoped to raise the last one thousand dollars due on the seven thousand pledge to be paid in five years to the Diocesan Campaign Fund.

St. Stephen's is asked to co-operate in this effort with the other parishes of the Convocation of North Philadelphia, contributions of money, fancy and useful articles or whatever else the donor may wish to give, will be gratefully received at the Parish House in care of Miss Laura Bell and tickets are always available.

Missionary Box

On November 27th, a check was sent from St. Stephen's Auxiliary to Mr. W. D. Swain, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, for $70.00 for two suits of heavy underwear and two suits of clothes for two Indian Catechists—William Crow-Eagle and Amos Mocassin, on the Rosebud Reservation.

Seventy-five dollars was given Mrs. Higham for work for the unemployed. In one case a poor woman wanted work and Mrs. Higham bought a small sewing machine so she was able to make garments and help support herself in that way.

In January a kodak was sent through Miss Thackara for the Reverend Levi M. Rouillard, Missionary to Indian Schools, Rapid City, South Dakota.

The amount paid was $37.95—this included the camera, leather case and portrait attachments.

In January a portable Remington typewriter was sent to Rev. Paul H. Barbour, Rosebud Indian Mission, South Dakota. A letter was received saying he had every reason to be grateful for this gift.

The amount paid for the typewriter was $51.55.

In February a check was sent for $15.00 to Mr. Albert W. Eastburn for undernourished children, Third and Dauphin Streets. He wrote they were daily giving hot suppers, the menus carefully made out under direction of dietitians, to children and their mothers sent to them by hospitals and health centres. The work is done by volunteers from the auxiliaries of five other parishes. They were in great need of shoes, and this gift was to be spent for that purpose.

I am glad to report we had more money this year, as Mr. Crowell, whom we all miss, gave us a check for $100.00. Last year we had more from the Lenten services. We have a balance for the year of $269.53.

St. Stephen's Choir

It is a pleasure to be invited by Dr. Grammer to include in the Parish News this brief report of the activities of the Choir. It may be said without boastfulness, I believe, that the season just ending has shown the highest grade of work from this organization that has been produced since it has been my pleasure to act as Choirmaster. The trouble to which many of our congregation have gone to express personally their pleasure in the music has been most gratifying and is deeply appreciated, and we would say that we are most anxious to perform such works as are particularly desired by any of our friends and hope that they will always feel free to proffer requests.

The general tendency this year has been to reduce somewhat the number of singers and to retain only the most proficient at fair rates of compensation. This seems to result in no impairment of volume or dignity of tone and in a more clean-cut, malleable and refined ensemble.

Every choir must depend largely upon acquired repertoire for the mass of its work, but we have this season also produced (or will have produced by the end of June) musical works new to this organization to the number of twenty-two. This is about an average year's addition to repertoire, and the total number of compositions available through merely "brushing up" is now very large.

The spirit of the Choir as a "Choir Family" remains, as it has always been, most delightful. There is great interest and firm loyalty and the utmost willingness to work very hard. We have held, at intervals, choir suppers, which have been most amusing and enjoyable, and to the committee in charge of which I would express my thanks.

The results we have obtained have necessarily been obtained with but one rehearsal a week. I have often wished that two rehearsals might be possible, for the still greater refinement of our music, but this could not be, in fairness, undertaken without increasing the remuneration of the members beyond our present appropriation.

To Dr. Grammer and Dr. Kevin we extend most sincere thanks for their complete cooperation and encouragement. I would also mention the care expended by our soloists, Mrs. Wynkoop and Mr. Williamson, in the preparation and beautiful execution of their solos, the careful and competent work of our Secretary and Librarian, Miss Falkingham, and the untiring devotion of the chorus members, several of whom have acted in solo capacity—to all of whom I would express my grateful recognition.

Edward Shippen Barnes,
Organist and Choirmaster.

St. Stephen's Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society, Oct. 1930, to May 1931

It is impossible to give a record of the year's work of St. Stephen's Branch of the Girls' Friendly Society, without first mentioning the serious illness of our beloved President, Miss Blanche V. Moore, and expressing our gratitude to God that He has graciously spared her life. Giving herself in such unstinted measure to all the interests of the Society, it has indeed been difficult to carry on without her presence among us.

According to custom, Dr. Grammer presided at the first meeting in October, making the program delightfully reminiscent of the summer vacation just passed.

On subsequent evenings two of our own girls gave very interesting talks descriptive of their travels:

"A Vagabond in Porto Rico" (illustrated) by Helen Ramsey, and, "California and the West," by Anna Dice.

Miss Anne R. Daley, one of our associates, whose resourcefulness never fails, has stood ready at call to fill in any gap in an otherwise meager program. On Armistice Day she gave a very interesting talk, and again on Lincoln's Birthday she was delightfully entertaining, giving some unusual anecdotes of the great Lincoln.

On other Monday evenings we have had:

An illustrated lecture by Mr. L. C. Kight, "The Beautiful City of Washington."

A talk by Dr. William H. Moore, entitled "Better Water for Philadelphia," Educational and illuminating.

A Health Talk, by Dr. Stanley Reimann.

Miss Margaret Maule, Diocesan President, came for an evening to give instruction to probationers and to discuss problems of interest to the whole group.

There was also a religious talk by Mrs. Grace Livingston Hill.

Appealing to our Honorary Associates, Miss Laura Bell responded by reading a very interesting and enlightening paper on India, and Mrs. John Coats Browne sent for our entertainment a moving picture. This assistance was greatly appreciated.

In November the Annual Corporate Communion was held in the Church.

The following events, however socially inclined—and we enjoyed them to the full—had as an ulterior motive the making of money to increase our Special Effort Fund: numerous card parties; dinner and sale of Tartan brand products; a rummage sale; Christmas dinner and sale, from which we realized $117.00; on the evening of May 4th, our so-called "Special Effort Night," a play, entitled, "Modest Maidens of 1900," was given, followed by tableaux. The grand total of our effort will amount to something over $400.00.

A delegate was sent to the National Council Meeting in Chicago in October, $100.00 having been appropriated for this purpose. It may be of interest to note that in addition to the delegate, two associates from St. Stephen's Branch attended the Council Meeting, an unusual representation from any one branch to a convention at so great a distance from Pennsylvania.

At that time we contributed $150.00 to the National Budget G. F. S.

It was at this convention that the new song book of the Girls' Friendly Society, edited by one of the associates of our own Branch, was first used.

One hundred dollars was contributed to St. Stephen's Community House.

At Christmas time one hundred stockings were filled for the children in the Philadelphia General Hospital. There were also fifty dolls dressed and fifty toys provided for boys.

In common with other societies with which she was connected, the Girls' Friendly Society keenly feels the loss by removal from the city, of its friend of long standing, Miss Bertha T. Walshe, Member Chairman, whose unfailing enthusiasm and untiring zeal have contributed so much to the success of our Branch. On May 11th a surprise farewell dinner was tendered Miss Walshe. Dr. Grammer added to the happiness of the occasion by reading an original poem dedicated to Miss Bertha Walshe.

Miss Anna Dice has been elected to fill the office of Member Chairman resigned by Miss Walshe.

"True friends love each other, gladly give and take,
Bear with one another for sweet friendship's sake,
Even when parted, always love each other still,
Both in joy and sorrow, sharing good and ill."

Never has this hymn, the rallying song of the Girls' Friendly Society, had such meaning for St. Stephen's Branch, as this year of grace 1931!

The King's Daughters ("Whatsoever Circle")

The King's Daughters have held sixteen meetings this past season, with an average attendance of ten members. One of our members passed away and one new member joined our Circle.

We all regret that Miss Walshe, our past President, is leaving us to go to Roanoke, Virginia. We shall miss her, she was a faithful and loving leader. We wish her success and happiness in her new home.

We have about 62 articles finished. We are giving some to Mrs. Higham and are going to give some to the Hope Day Nursery; we have also given some to families who have been in need. At Christmas we contributed toward the Church baskets, and twenty-four stockings were filled with candy and toys for the Hope Day Nursery.

We held our dinner this year in February, which netted us $52.00—we made this amount up to $55.00 which we gave to the Community House fund. We have also made contributions to the Travelers' Aid Society, Home for Aged at Narberth, and The Benevolent Society.

Elizabeth H. Townsley, President.

Burd School

The year 1931 is a memorable one in the annals of the School, as we have celebrated our Seventieth Birthday. Three score years and ten is a venerable age, but this Seventieth Anniversary finds the school in the heyday of its youth, full of vigorous life, more ably administered than ever before, and with a promise for each girl of a happy, busy future if she will work and strive for the rewards the Burd School has to offer.

On the 14th of February, this birthday was most artistically commemorated by Tableaux Vivants, the scenes of which were taken from pictures and paintings of Mrs. Burd and the various members of her family. The tableaux were accompanied with music and appropriate descriptive recitations in verse. Poems written by Mr. Burd and his son, found among the Burd papers, were brought to light for this occasion and added their quota to the most charming program ever given in this school.

Following this entertainment came the Graduation Exercises with the presentation of prizes, an event of double interest this year, owing to the postponement of similar exercises last year, due to quarantine on account of measles and whooping cough. Fortunately for the school and the pleasure of the guests this year, scarlet fever of which there were three cases early in the winter, did not interfere with the carrying out of the well-prepared plan for this celebration. Dr. Grammer and the Board of Trustees asked Miss Tappen to extend to the Alumni of the School an invitation to dinner following the exercises of the afternoon. The dinner, given at Hamilton Court, was attended by fifty-seven graduates, twenty-one of whom had passed through the school during Miss Tappen's administration. An honored guest at the feast was one of the original twelve with whom Mrs. Burd started the school. She came from Gettysburg for the occasion. The only other original member now surviving is resident in California. The reunion proved most felicitous in every way, and will be remembered by all who participated as one of the high lights of the present administration.

In June, 1930, Lillian Bovell, Dorothy Zeigler and Shirley Edwards finished their collegiate courses and are now engaged in gainful occupations. Marie Carter is at Temple College and Mary Jane Gutierrez is taking a business course in Buffalo, and is now living with her brother. Elsie Martin entered Pierce's Business School in September, 1930. Nine children have been admitted since September. Eight girls were confirmed during Lent.

Again this year our girls will go to camp. The majority to a camp in northwestern New Jersey and some of the older girls to a camp near Lake Champlain.

The Board of Women Visitors have made the usual weekly visits during the year, except during the periods of quarantine. Their reports have been most favorable.

Respectfully submitted,

Emily K. Campbell, Chairman.

Parish Visitor

The past year has been very trying to a number of families connected, in various ways, with St. Stephen's.

Designated contributions from several members of the church for rent, in two cases where the constable was threatened, the physician's fee for bringing a child into the world, electric and gas bills, coal, groceries and a new hat for an elderly man, all helped to relieve anxiety and tide over difficulties for a time.

Another member gave material and the money to pay for the making, of nine girls' dresses. The King's Daughters made and gave eighteen different articles which will make the children who get them very happy.

The Missionary Box Committee of Woman's Auxiliary contributed $75.00 for the Parish Visitor's work. This fund was used for six tons of coal at $5.00 per ton, six baskets of groceries, $5.00 per basket, and a $10.00 sewing machine for a woman, deserted by her husband, and left with four children to support. This woman was able to get sewing from the Supply Bureau of Church House, and in this way help with the rent. A member of the church gave her beds and bedding, clothing and food.

The church funds were used to take care of our regular pensioners, and a dollar or two given to those in need and known to the Parish Visitor. Strangers coming in and asking for aid, would frequently be given a small amount—enough for a cup of coffee or a bowl of soup.

In return for a small contribution to the Salvation Army, lodging and meal tickets were secured, and 125 men were cared for in this way. The Volunteers of America sent word to send hungry men to them for a hot meal at night. There was no place to send a hungry woman.

During the winter months 1327 articles of clothing, 5 pairs of new shoes, 83 pairs of partly worn shoes and 14 pairs of rubbers, helped to make many comfortable that would otherwise have suffered.

Layettes made by St. Stephen's Aid Society were in demand, ten being given out. This includes one to the Family Society and one to the Unemployment Relief Committee.

At Christmas 108 families were given generously filled baskets that were received with real appreciation. The mince pies added to their enjoyment of the dinner.

During the year 372 visits were paid to 126 different people, living in all parts of the city and suburbs.

With grateful appreciation for the help received in her work, the Parish Visitor submits this report.

Idella W. Higham.

Aid Society

The work of the Aid Society was carried on during Lent under the able direction of our Parish Visitor, Mrs. Higham. Many baby garments were made and a well-stocked closet will enable Mrs. Higham to carry relief and aid to many a household.

Treasurer reports that the balance on hand last year of $1.65 was turned over to Mrs. Higham at the end of the Lenten season.

The McAll Mission

In spite of the many calls at home, the friends of the McAll Mission in St. Stephen's did not forget the workers across the sea. Those who heard Mr. Donovan describe his work in Liberia will remember how discouraged he felt when obliged to cut down his work because the subscribers in the homeland had reduced their subscriptions. The workers on the field need all the sympathy and support we can give them, and the McAll Mission, in particular, gives such tiny salaries to its faithful staff that further reduction seems impossible. The $43 turned in by your representative to the Philadelphia Auxiliary included a gift of $10 from our Sunday School, to be used in the summer vacation work of the Mission. A fine old chateau has recently been fitted up to take in children from the industrial sections of Paris. As $1.60 pays for a week's board in this lovely home with its spacious grounds, the boys and girls of St. Stephen's will act as hosts for half a dozen little Jeans and Jeannettes from the crowded city streets and insure them a whole week of bliss to be remembered throughout the year. The annual meeting of the Philadelphia branch was held this year in St. James' Church, which indicates a growing interest on our part in this great interdenominational work.

Emilie Donehower.

The Sunday School

During the past year the Sunday School has sustained marked growth with the organization and addition of another class to its membership and the necessity facing us of adding a second new class with another teacher at the opening of the fall term.

Sessions began the third Sunday of last September and will continue until the middle of June. We have 100 pupils, with nine classes, nine teachers, three musicians, a secretary-treasurer, and the superintendent.

Of the teachers, four are college graduates, two are students at the Church Training School and deaconess house, two are Philadelphia High School teachers, one a grammer school teacher, two are scout masters in the Boy Scouts. The work of the Sunday School is carefully graded according to the best educational and psychological standards with no one lesson course invariably followed, but the best of five different lesson systems, as they seem to fit most admirably the needs of the age of our classes.

The Sunday School picnic in the early part of June last year took place in Forest Hills Park, near Chalfonte, Pa., where buses engaged for the purpose transported the children. This year the probabilities are we will go to Riverview Beach on the Delaware in the last week of June.

The Christmas and Easter festivals were given in the Community House and in the Church, as in former years, the Christmas play being a modern adaptation of an old French masque, "The Holy Night." Miss Frances McCollin greatly assisted the production by directing the singing of the French carols used in the work. The Easter pageant was dramatized by Miss Hazlett, one of our Sunday School teachers, and followed a poem of Thomas Bailey Aldrich, called Friar Jerome's Beautiful Book.

The Lenten offering was larger this year than last, $100.37 being raised during Lent as compared with $73.10 last year. The Sunday School's total missionary givings this year, all of which with the exception of a gift of ten dollars to the McAll Mission in France, were sent in with our Lenten offering were $210.00.

Respectfully submitted.

Robert Kevin,
Superintendent.

Mothers' Meeting

Although financially the past year has been a difficult one for the members of the Mothers' Meeting, we have made our last payment of $120.00 for the Diocesan Campaign Fund, thus fulfilling our pledge of $600.00.

Our annual contribution of $5.00 for palms for the Altar on Palm Sunday, and $5.00 for the United Thank Offering leave us a small bank balance for next season.

Our average attendance has been nearly 100. We have lost three members by death —and a number of our older members have become unable to attend, but new ones have filled the places.

Besides our usual entertainments, moving pictures, etc., we have been delightfully entertained by the B. W. C. L. on three League nights, and are anticipating with great pleasure the Reception and Musicale, to be given by Miss Vida Hunt Francis, at Alden Park Manor on May 21st.

Our last meeting was a Real Party, with Dr. Grammer presiding, Dr. Kevin our guest, a beautiful moving picture, "Babes in the Woods," baskets of flowers from the mothers for officers and guests, cakes and ice cream, and 140 present.

We look forward with pleasure to our Summer Outing to Atlantic City in July, hoping that Dr. Grammer and Dr. Kevin will both be with us on that occasion.

Respectfully submitted,

Blanche M. Harper,
President.

Young People's Club

The Young People's Club had their first meeting in November and have met the second and fourth Wednesdays in the month.

In January we entertained the Young People's Fellowship at dinner, and on our invitation they joined our Club. We were very glad to welcome them.

In June we had our usual children's party at the Zoo.

At Christmas time we entertained twenty-five children for supper, had a movie and gave each child a sweater and a toy.

In January we entertained twenty-five mothers for supper, having a movie for them also, and each one was given a blanket.

In April we had an auction supper to raise money for our charity work, which was very successful.

We have given toward the purchase of the new furniture in the third floor, for Dr. Grammer's twenty-fifth anniversary gift, and toward the fund to reduce the debt on the Community House.

As we have increased our membership we are hoping to do more work another season.

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. Howard Reifsnyder,
President.

The Young People wish to thank all who purchased tickets for our supper and auction sale, and also those who attended.

We had prepared for seventy-five and over one hundred and twenty-five came. We were very sorry not to be ready for so many, and wish to thank you for your patience and good humor, and promise when we have our next one (which we hope will be next winter), to be prepared for you all.

Be sure to give us another trial.

Mrs. Howard Reifsnyder,
President.

The Community House Committee has endeavored to carry on during the past season.

We deeply regret to report the resignation of our Treasurer, Miss Bertha Walshe. She has done this work most efficiently and it has been a privilege to work with her. Mrs. Higham has very kindly consented to accept the position.

From May, 1930, to May, 1931, about 11,360 persons have used the building, consisting of some 21 groups, such as Church Organizations, dances, bazaars, suppers, meetings, receptions, Sunday School, etc.

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. Howard Reifsnyder.

Church Periodical Club

It was the realization of a great opportunity that led the founder of the Church Periodical Club to conceive the idea of an organization to supply good reading matter where it was much needed. So long as our rural and missionary clergy are shut off from libraries and unable to buy books and magazines; so long as they need in their work Church literature which they have no means of securing; so long as there are schools and missions here and abroad where magazines and text and reference books are needed; so long as there are people whose minds are starving for good literature which they have no way of providing for themselves; just so long will there be opportunity for the work of the Church Periodical Club.

Thirty-five members of St. Stephen's continue to send regularly their current magazines, and 32 subscriptions are entered in the names of the recipients.

Greeting cards are sent at Christmas and Easter.

Many magazines are taken to Jefferson Hospital.

Books were sent to help in establishing Community Libraries at Collegeville, Pa., and at McKenney, Va.

We are also assisting St. Andrew's Mission-on-Mountain, at Harper's Ferry, West Virginia.

Many words of gratitude come to us. One letter says: "In whatever I have done that is worth while the Church Periodical Club has been the active partner. Religion needs to be mixed—well mixed—with brains. The Church Periodical Club has given the spoons to do the mixing. God bless the members, every one."

A deaconess tells us: "Entire families are enjoying the books and they are lending them to the neighbors also."

"Suppose there were no books!
No books to read in cozy nooks!
No books to fill the hungry mind
And teach the art of being kind.
No books to while an hour away;
To link today with yesterday;
No books to charm us for awhile;
To bring a tear or lure a smile.
But there are books, praise God above!
If we have books and we have love
We can dispense with other things—
'Tis books, not crowns, that make men kings."
—J. B. R.

Young People's Fellowship

The past year has been an interesting one for the Young People's Fellowship. Starting mostly with new members the organization has progressed by degrees. We changed our meeting night from Sunday to Thursday, in order to enlarge our activities. Different members led discussions on many topics, the most interesting of which were on justifiable lies, the ideal boy or girl, the boy scouts, conscience, and admirable traits of character. We were also privileged to hear the Rev. John Roak and Mr. Paul Lewis tell of their experiences with fellowships and young people.

A basketball team was organized with the intention of entering the Fellowship League, but because of youth and lack of training, we decided to play independently. We won the majority of about 25 games and everyone who participated derived the many benefits of the sport.

Other events included a Hallowe'en party and a dance, which both met with fair success.

The diocesan commission on young people also had a delightful program which many of our members enjoyed. The program consisted of a dance at the Brookline Square Club, and a play. There followed Inspirational Day, and many conferences which helped solve some of our problems. We are now anticipating the Diocesan Convention next week, Corporate Communion in June, and a picnic later in the summer.

Another beneficial development has been the closer association of the Fellowship with the Young People's Club, which has served to add new blood and new interests to each group.

We have gained much by our experiences in the past year and we are looking forward to entering the new year, a stronger and a more secure organization.

The treasurer's report shows a balance of $5.90 in the treasury after having paid all expenses, including diocesan dues.

Respectfully submitted,

Frank Brawner,
President.

Troop 2, Boy Scouts of America

There are at present 34 boys registered in the troop, all of whom have made some advancement in the last year.

At the Fall Court of Honor last year Richard Grindler and Jack Girogasian reached Life Rank, and at the Spring meeting John George, William Leyrer, George and Joseph Dougherty were advanced to Star Rank. William Leyrer also made Life Rank. Incidentally, more boys earned Merit Badges this year than ever before.

Most of our success, I believe, is due to our Summer Encampment, as this is the best opportunity I have of coming in close contact with each boy individually. The camp provides the foundation for the next year's work, not only in recreation and education, but in the morale of the troop. This encampment is made possible through the kindness of Dr. Grammer, and I take this opportunity of expressing my sincere thanks for his help. During the summer of 1930, twenty-nine boys spent at least a week at Treasure Island.

A considerable amount of interest was shown in Indian lore.

Much credit is due to the following Scouts for their wonderful cooperation for the advancement of the troop: Fred Schmid, Richard Grindler, John George and George Dougherty who with his brother, Joseph, were transferred to our troop a few months ago.

In January the following scouts were elected to office:

Fred Schmid, Junior Assistant; William Leyrer, Scribe; and William Bert, who has been a member of the troop for some time, was advanced to Assistant Scoutmaster.

We had the honor again of winning the Red Star at our annual inspection, which keeps our troop in the lead in our district.

In order to hold the older boys' interest in scouting we have organized a group of Sea Scouts. At present there are seven boys enrolled. These boys are taught the use of boats and life saving at the Sea Scout Base, which is just above Torresdale on the Delaware River. They also learn the various nautical terms as well as the building of ships and how to sail them.

Respectfully submitted,

R. M. Robinson,
Scoutmaster.

Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

It used to be the custom of the Johns Hopkins, when that great University was still a small group of scholars, to begin the session by a meeting at which those who had had any unusual opportunities or experiences would tell them freely and informally. It would be interesting if such a custom prevailed in St. Stephen's. During the last months I have received postals from our travellers, from Wales, from North Cape, from Moscow, from Greece, from New England, from the mountains of New York, from Southern Germany. Think of the rich experiences that many have enjoyed. No reports would be more profitable than news from Soviet Russia, where such a remarkable experiment is being conducted with such ruthlessness, such disregard of the rights of personality, and property, that bulk so large in the eyes of Americans and Western Europeans, and such a strange religious enthusiasm in behalf of an atheistic philosophy and the social theories of Karl Marx.

My own holiday has been passed in Summit, New Jersey, where I have had unusual opportunities for study and writing. Never have I written so much, excepting the summer at Cragsmoor when I wrote my Bohlen Lectures, and never have I read so much. I have not thought it advisable to risk the fatigues of golf, so I have had much time for books.

It was always a basic theory with me as a teacher of Church History, that that department could not be profitably cultivated, unless the student also acquainted himself with secular history. I have heard of a Theological Seminary where Ecclesiastical law was made the backbone so to speak of the history. It is the least edifying of all possible approaches.

Other teachers of Ecclesiastical History throw all their emphasis upon the history of doctrine, and trace the sequence of doctrines, as if they were the flappings of a bird's wings, each of which leads to the other, although, in fact, the progress of doctrine is like the bounding of a stag, which passes from the air to the earth, and from the hard earth to the air. Theory and the facts of life constantly react upon one another. Christianity affecting life, and life reacting upon Christianity. No one, for instance, can understand that great awakening in a spiritual life, which we call the Reformation, who only knows of its effect upon Church government and doctrinal standards. It breathed a new spirit into the Northern nations of Europe, and I don't know any more fruitful way to study it, than in reading the effect of that great movement upon the people of the Netherlands, and among the Huguenots of France.

The Reformation in England was brought about under the most unfavorable circumstances, in the predominance of such characters as tyrannical and cruel Henry VIII, unscrupulous Somerset, embittered Mary Tudor, and worldy and selfish Queen Elizabeth. Its progress in Germany was retarded and the heroic element taken out of it, when Germany settled down contentedly on the agreement; cujus regio, ejus religio: [whose the reign, his the religion].

> i. e., that the Sovereign had a right to establish the religion of his realm. On this principle, Philip II and the House of Valois sought to keep the Netherlands, and France in obedience to Rome. The Protestantism of those lands was an assertion of the sacred right of the individual to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience.

The heroism of the converts to a purer faith was unparalled. Certainly there was nothing in the famous persecutions of the early Church equal to the cruelties of Philip and Alva. Alva boasted that he caused 20,000 people to be put to death for heresy in the Low Countries. The sufferings of the Huguenots in France in their long contest with a State controlled by Jesuits is appalling. At one time, for example, in Toulouse, about 4000 "of the religion" as the Huguenots used to call themselves, were slain.

The anniversary of the Massacre, May 16-23, 1562, was celebrated as late as 1762, when Voltaire remonstrated against a jubilee "to thank God for 4000 murders." A century later in 1862, the Archbishop of Toulouse wished to celebrate the tricentennial of "the glorious act accomplished among you 300 years ago." But the French Government forbade the procession and all out-door commemorations "of a mournful and bloody episode of our ancient religious discords." It is a pity, that those in our Church, who admire so greatly the Church of Rome, do not read of those times, for as an eminent scholar, once a Roman Catholic priest, reminds us in his Letters to His Holiness, Pope Pius X, "while the Papacy no longer has the Inquisition in practice, it still stands committed to the Inquisition in principle" . . . for which he quotes the bull of Gregory XVI, August 15, 1832: the famous Syllabus of Errors of Pius IX 1864 (one error according to that Syllabus is that "the Church has not the power of inflicting violence"). The records of these glorious Reformation struggles, I have been reading this summer in Motley's Rise of the Dutch Republic, the same author's United Netherlands and John Olden Barneveld.

Such fascinating and eloquent pages; all the statements based on original sources, such as the correspondence of the famous Venetian ambassadors, with their Masters at Venice, the private letters of Philip II, and Alva, and William of Orange, and the confidential reports of the English, French, and Dutch envoys to their home governments. I have followed this up with Baird's History of the Huguenots. Baird was the professor of Greek in the University of New York, an accomplished scholar in his own department, the author of a highly esteemed work on Greece; but the main literary interest of his life was the history of the Huguenots which he brought down to the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, in six solid volumes, drawn like Motley from original sources and written with the most admirable care and balanced judgment. I am persuaded that he is correct in his view of the Massacres of Saint Bartholomew, as not a carefully prepared conspiracy, but as an outbreak of hate, for which Catherine de Medici, and her favorite son, the Duke of Anjou—afterwards Henry III—were chiefly responsible. They feared that the King, poor, weak Charles IX, would yield to the influence of Coligny and escape their control; and so set fire to the combustible elements that were everywhere present in France and particularly in Paris as the result of the fierce efforts of Roman Catholics, urged on by fanatical popes and Jesuits, to keep France a people of one faith, as well as of one law and one King. The same hateful theory that had established itself in Germany, that the people must have the religion of the Sovereign—which led to the terrible Thirty Years War—and which was the principle by which Elizabeth and James in England harried the Puritans, as well as the Roman Catholics.

Along with these volumes of Motley and Baird, I have read the Invitation Heeded of Kent Stone, a clergyman of our Church, the grandson of the eminent Chancellor Kent, who went over to Rome, and the Letters to the Pope of a Modernist who left Rome—the book I referred to above. I ought to state that of Baird's Volumes, I only read through two and consulted two others. I have also had a fine time testing these writers by referring to the great Ranke's History of the Popes, a favorite book of reference with me, in old days. It has been quite a refreshment to revisit these old fields. I was richly rewarded in learning to know better William of Orange and Coligny, who is, I believe, the grandest man of affairs

France has ever produced, and Grotius, John Barneveld, Lewis Nassua, and St. Aldegonde, and the Queen of Navarre, dauntless Jeanne d'Albert—a thousand times wiser and nobler woman than over-praised Queen Elizabeth—and Beza and Calvin and Andelot Chatillon, the younger brother of Coligny, and the first wife of Coligny and hundreds of nameless heroes, who counted not their lives dear unto themselves but followed Christ in witnessing a good confession.

Take the following incident; how it warms one's heart. It is worthy of Weyman, and might be the basis of one of his tales. There were in Paris two gentlemen, named Vezins and Regnier, of good families, in the province of Quercy in Southern France. Both were equally distinguished for valour; but their dispositions were singularly unlike; for while the Huguenot, Regnier, was noted for his gentle manners, the Roman Catholic had acquired considerable notoriety for his ferocity. Between the two there had existed for some time a mortal feud.

While the Massacre was at its height, Regnier was visited by his enemy Vezins who broke down the door and fiercely ordered the Huguenot—who well assured that his last hour had come, had fallen upon his knees to implore the mercy of God—to rise and follow him. A horse stood saddled at the door upon which Regnier was told to mount. In his enemy's train he rode unharmed through the streets of Paris, then through the gates of the city. Without a word of explanation Vezins kept on his way to Cahors, the Capital of Quercy, whither he had been dispatched by the government. For many successive days the journey lasted. The prisoner was well guarded, but he was also well lodged and fed. At last the party reached the Castle of Regnier, and here his captor broke the long silence. "As you have seen," said he, "it would have depended only on myself to take advantage of the opportunity which I have long been seeking; but I should be ashamed to avenge myself in this way upon a man so brave as you. In settling our quarrel I desire the danger shall be equal."

It need scarcely be said that the Huguenot could not find words sufficiently strong to express his gratitude. But Vezins merely replied: "I leave it to you to choose whether you wish me to be your friend or your enemy. I saved your life only to enable you to make your selection." With these words he abruptly left him and rode away, nor would he even consent to take back the horse upon which he had brought Regnier to safety so many leagues.

At some other time I may tell what noble use Regnier made of the life so saved, and how he delivered the city of Montauban.

But I must close this letter, already too long. But one question I must ask: why should people waste their time on poor literature, when all these great deeds are gloriously recorded, and will enrich us by noble admirations if we read them. Years ago I read Meredith's Egoist, a powerful novel in some respects. It happens to be in the library of this cottage. I pick it up and read some of the tedious conversations, in which Dr. Middleton tries to show his wit and learning, and the interminable analyses of the self-centered heart of Willoughby Patterne and I ask myself, why should we live in thought with such people when we may associate with heroes, sages and martyrs?

One of the most instructive books of my summer reading was a History of Mexico from a communist point of view. It was very illuminating. Such were my chief travels this summer, in the realm not of geography but of history.

It is too soon to speak of the General Convention, which I shall discuss in a Sunday Morning Sermon. And I shall in another place refer to our bereavements. One of the pleasant incidents of the summer was a lunch in Garden City, with Miss Blanche Moore, at her sister, Mrs. Donald's home. It was grand to see Miss Blanche strong and well again and to know that she could resume her place at the head of our vigorous branch of the Girls' Friendly Society.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

Obituaries

During the summer St. Stephen's lost three parishioners, whose places it will be hard to fill.

In June, Mrs. John Coats Browne was taken from us. Widely loved, helpful, friendly, interested in others, lovely in face and in character—greatly will she be missed. Born in England, for a time a student in Germany, a trained nurse in Edinboro, the superintendent of nurses of the Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia, Miss Ada Payne had had a rich experience of life in many lands, when she married Mr. John Coats Browne of this city. Shortly before her marriage she came to St. Stephen's, where she interested herself particularly in the activities of the Benevolent Society, which will greatly miss her generous contributions and her friendly aid and presence. Her married life lasted only seven years. After the death of Mr. Browne, she devoted all her time and means to good works. The Deaconness' House was especially dear to her. But no good cause and no needy person found her indifferent.

When I lay ill in the London Hospital, I counted it a special kindness of God that she should be in London. Frequently have I mentioned and never can I forget how she visited me in the Hospital, changed her date of sailing and came home with me, giving my nurse a berth in her cabin. Never can I forget her wonderful care of me during the voyage. Wherever she went, she was a ministering angel, living, even here on Earth, in heavenly places of kindness, love and generous helpfulness.

In the death of Miss Emily Bell, St. Stephen's lost a member who had achieved prominence in the social life of Philadelphia. A member of the Civic Club, Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Dames, Contemporary Club, New Century Club, and other organizations, she also at one time served as President of the Traveler's Aid Society. A daughter of the late John J. Bell, at one time Associate Judge of Monroe County, and Antoniette Jordan Bell, she was a native of Philadelphia. One of the Church's most loyal members, she represented the Parish in an important Diocesan society. Widely travelled and indefatigible in her activities, Miss Bell will be greatly missed. After an illness of eight months, she passed from earth on August the 19th.

Her funeral in St. Stephen's was largely attended and was conducted by the Rector and Bishop Taitt. The sympathy of the whole congregation goes out to her sister, Miss Laura Bell, who has been such a leader in the Diocesan activities and is the honored head of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary.

The death of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Birney, on August 31st, has deprived the Woman's Auxiliary of a Treasurer who was coming to mean more and more in the work of that important organization. She was drawn to our Church especially by her friendship with Dr. Kevin, who is a friend of her son and was with us only in the latter years of her life. In former days she was the President of many important clubs and a woman of large influence. Her bereavements and sickness had greatly circumscribed her activities during her latter years, but it seemed as if she might regain something of her former zest in life when she was taken from us, just as we were beginning to realize her full worth.

May the influence of the good examples of these noble women long live in the Parish and may God grant that successors may be raised up to continue their work.

Miss Laura Bell wishes to thank the individual members of St. Stephen's congregation who have been kind enough to send her telegrams, letters and cards of sympathy for the loss of her beloved sister, and trusts they will please consider this as a personal acknowledgment.

A GLIMPSE OF INDIA

Letter from Stanley Jones to Mrs. Megrew

My dear Friend:

We are now about to finish up the work of the Ashram for this summer, so I will send you word how things have gone.

The term Ashram means the ancient forest schools where the guru or teacher would retire with his chelas, or disciples and by personal contact indoctrinate them with his ideas. The keynote of these schools was and is simplicity and spirituality.

We have tried to be true to this ideal, with this difference that we made Christ the center. This is the second year of the Ashram, so we are no longer experimenting. Our purpose was clear and our goal definite. We who have been in active service for the rest of the year wanted to get aside in the quiet to brood over our problems, in private meditation and prayer. This could only be done in an out-of-the-way place where there would be no cross currents whatever. Sat Tal lends itself to that for here we are surrounded by forests. This morning while we were in our time of meditation and prayer a barking deer stood close to us and barked at us! Some leopards have visited us but have taken nothing more than some dogs! We make the place a sanctuary for birds and animals so they become very tame.

The rising bell goes at five and at five-fifteen we assembled on the knoll with our Bibles for our early morning hour of meditation and prayer. We opened this with a hymn, but the rest of the time was spent in personal quest and quiet. At the close of this prayer hour, we came back, walking in a line, singing a processional hymn, written by one of our Indian members who is quite a poet. We kept silence as far as speaking with each other from the time we arose until morning tea-time at 6.30. After tea we hurriedly cleaned up our rooms and then went to the grounds to work an hour with the hands at something.

My job was carrying wood, and I learned to bring it in Indian style on the head. Many a time as we trudged home with a heavy load of wood we discussed God and life with some companions. It is a good time to discuss things for then you feel the problem from the standpoint of the toiler.

After this hour of work we assembled at 8 for our first group study. This was usually a study in the New Testament. For the most part, I led it with a study of the Sermon on the Mount. During the year I had written a book on the subject so I have had the very great advantage of going over the manuscript with the members of the Ashram. Their criticism was invaluable. After this we studied various topics connected with the Christian message which was our general topic for this year's study.

Four experts came to study with us our message to Islam. Three of these were connected with the school of Islamics at Lahore. One gave us a picture of what the Gospel is according to Islam.

It was interesting and instructive to find out just what the Gospel is according to the Koran. The fatal twists they give to things! Then we studied the Christian message on sex, led by a lady who had spent years studying this subject. The Christian message and Immanence was led by a man who has given years to it. One of the members of the Christian Leva Sangha, a group of Christian ascetics, led us in a course on Karl Barth's teaching. A member of the Servants of India Society led us in a study of the Christian message on the Social, Economical and Political. Two friends came from South India and gave us a course on Church Union, with special reference to the Union about to take place in South India between the Wesleyans, the Anglicans and the South India United Church. We felt the Union there was rather weighed on the side of the bishops. So we are approaching the matter from the side of the Congregation in the North. Perhaps in the end, when we put these two schemes together we will get something that is close to comprehensive.

Two friends of very real ability led us in the Bhakti movements and their relation to the Gospel. One led us in the study of the history of Indian Culture and showed the elements that were worth preserving in it. Some of the younger group of Indians and Missionaries got together and brought in a paper on the Reconstruction of Missions, which caused a good deal of heart-searching. Another friend talked to us about ways of sharing with other faiths which brought out a real difference of opinion. We felt there was real danger of syncretism and this would be fatal to the Gospel.

The "Impact of Science on Religion" was a topic that made us think, and in thinking we found ourselves in healthy disagreement with the writer of the paper.

Of course, this cursory statement gives nothing of the beautiful spirit that ran through all our study and meditation. Some described the days we spent together in this way as days of "Heaven on Earth." They were. While the divergences were often real yet we were always true to a motto on the wall of our meeting-room: "Here we enter a fellowship, sometimes we will agree to differ, always we will resolve to love and unite to serve." The spirit of that motto has been through the whole of the summer. I do not think there has been an ugly thing spoken and yet we faced questions with a realism that was searching. Out of this summer discussions we will publish a book which will be published as our Ashram volume.

One of the most beautiful things of the summer was the coming to the Ashram of a rather famous swami. He has a very large Ashram himself and has about 3000 families who take him as their guru. When he walked into the room on arrival, he fell at my feet and said, "You are my guru." He took that literally and was ready to do anything I said. It laid on me a very heavy responsibility. But he opened like a flower to Christian Truth. The day came when he wanted me to baptize him. But just before the Sunday came on which he was to be baptized he revealed, as in a flash the terrible hatred he had toward the English. It wasn't the ordinary nationalistic feeling. It was bitter and fierce. I told him I wanted him to be a nationalist, but I could not baptize him when his heart was filled with this fierce bitterness. It was a terrible disappointment to him. He had walked hundreds of miles to get to me and here I was refusing him. The tears rolled down his cheeks. He turned to me rather fiercely and said, "How can I get rid of this hatred? Can I change my own heart?" He could not. But Christ did. Some time later he came to me and said: "You will baptize me next Sunday. The hatred is gone." It was!

I have scarcely ever been in such a meeting as the one in which we baptized him. Every heart there was melted. Two of our missionaries wanted their little baby baptized along with the swami, so we baptized them together for the swami had become a little child, too. He stayed with us a month and then went back to the place where he had built up his great work as a Hindu, to begin all over again as a Christian. He will have to stand much but he faces it with a song. He declared that he would win 500 sannyasis in a year. I believe he will. He has rajas and maharajas as his disciples and many temples under him. It will be a grim struggle but he will win. The day he left, we asked him where we could send him the photos we had taken of him. He waved his hand with a laugh and said: "I have no address now," and off he marched with just a little bundle of books and a change of his saffron robe.

It has been a great summer, one of the very best of my life. The intimate fellowships, the hours of communion, the struggle for souls that needed light, the clearing of truth in the mind, the exquisite presence of the living Christ, the enriching of the whole of life, these are some of the things that happened.

I have decided I could not go to China, India is too interesting and compelling, so I shall stay on here and throw myself into this great struggle for the soul of a great people. You who are helping with prayer and money are the real partners. Keep it up!

Yours in Him,

Stanley Jones.

THAT THE TRUTH SPEAKETH INWARDLY WITHOUT NOISE OF WORDS

Speak, O Lord, for Thy servant heareth. I am Thy servant, grant me understanding, that I may know Thy testimonies. Incline my heart to the words of Thy mouth: let Thy speech distil as the dew. The children of Israel in times past said unto Moses, "Speak thou unto us, and we will hear: let not the Lord speak unto us, lest we die." not so, Lord, not so, I beseech Thee: but rather with the prophet Samuel, I humbly and earnestly entreat, "Speak, Lord, for Thy servant heareth." Let not Moses speak unto me, nor any of the prophets, but rather do Thou speak, O Lord God, the Inspirer and Enlightener of all the prophets; for Thou alone without them canst perfectly instruct me, but they without Thee can profit nothing.

They indeed may sound forth words, but they cannot give the Spirit. Most beautifully do they speak, but if Thou be silent, they inflame not the heart. They teach the letter, but Thou openest the sense: they bring forth mysteries, but Thou unlockest the meaning of sealed things. They declare Thy commandments, but Thou helpest us to fulfill them. They point out the way, but Thou givest strength to walk in it. What they can do is only without, but Thou instructest and enlightenest the heart. They water outwardly, but Thou givest fruitfulness. They cry aloud in words, but Thou impartest understanding to the hearing.

Let not Moses therefore speak unto me, but Thou, O Lord my God, the Everlasting Truth; lest I die, and prove unfruitful, if I be only warned outwardly, and not inflamed within. Lest it turn to my condemnation—the word heard and not fulfilled, known and not loved, believed and not observed. Speak therefore, Lord, for Thy servant heareth; for Thou hast the words of eternal life. Speak Thou unto me, to the comfort, however imperfect, of my soul, and to the amendment of my whole life, and to Thy praise and glory and honour everlasting.

Just a Word of Greeting and of Counsel

These are dark days in many homes, days of anxiety and of gloom. Let us then make it a point to be cheerful and hopeful. It was said of Cromwell that in dark hours, in the high places of the field, hope shone in him like a pillar of fire. Brave people are braced by danger, and believing people in times of trouble lean hard upon God—a very present help in time of trouble. One of the deepest sources of our present evils is panic-fear—a fear that instead of putting us on our guard against danger, increases our peril. Let us put our trust in God, Who has led us safely through many dangers and taught us thereby many lessons. Let us not think only of ourselves but also mind the things of others. If all of us will be willing to run the usual risks together, none seeking to secure greater safety than others, all willing to share the same risks, then there will be no risk and prosperity will return.—C. E. G.

Mrs. Coolidge's Poem

The poem written by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, inspired by the fifth anniversary of the death of her son, Calvin Coolidge, Jr., July 27, 1929, appeared in Good Housekeeping.

THE OPEN DOOR

You, my son,
Have shown me God,
Your kiss upon my cheek
Has made me feel the gentle touch
Of Him who leads us on.
The memory of your smile when young,
Reveals His face,
As mellowing years come on apace,
And when you went before,
You left the gates of heaven ajar
That I might glimpse,
Approaching from afar,
The glories of His grace.
Hold, son, my hand;
Guide me along the path
That, coming,
I may stumble not,
Nor roam,
Nor fail to show the way
Which leads us home.

The world has tried war with force and has utterly failed. The only hope of success lies in peace with justice.—Calvin Coolidge.

The Woman's Auxiliary

The first meeting of St. Stephen's Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of the season of 1931-1932 was held October 15th, with seventeen members present for corporate communion, celebrated before the regular meeting.

Miss Bell was in the chair and Dr. Grammer was present and made a short welcoming address. Two new members were enrolled.

Three of our most valued members were taken by death this summer: Mrs. Birney, the treasurer, Mrs. John Coats Browne, and Miss Emily Bell.

Reports were read and plans for the year's work made. The treasurer's balance was $240.20, and the Missionary Box Committee has a balance of $333.33, both quite good sums with which to begin the work for this busy winter.

Beulah Evans Hollar,
Secretary.

No one is so poor that he cannot give something at this season of the year. Hope, cheeriness and courage are far above rubies; sympathy, friendship and love, are beyond price.

ANOTHER—ANY OTHER—EVERY OTHER—EACH OTHER

How different the meaning
Of words so much alike!
Though close together leaning
What diverse notes they strike!

Two boys each other teasing,
One calls the other, "fool."
To this epithet displeasing,
"You're another" is the rule.

Gay girls together seated,
Waiting partners for a dance,
By awkward bumpkin greeted,
Sigh for "any other" chance.

A youth to party going,
Without a dress-suit clad,
Cries, "I'll make an awful showing
While every other lad———!

A girl and boy together,
(Not sister and not brother),
Whatever be the weather,
How happy in each other.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

These are times when luxuries must be cut out, that we may be able to give more, and spend more in a helpful, constructive way. Money spent for jewelry helps only a few persons, money spent for a vacuum cleaner lightens labor, and helps to employ labor. Such discriminations and economies as we ought to practice in our personal affairs, I wish to introduce into our Church's affairs.. To this end I decided to discontinue a separate Bulletin for every Sunday, with the weekly notices, and a little message at the back. When a kind friend heard of this decision the present form of the Bulletin with all the Music for six Sundays was kindly given to the Church. I have asked myself the searching question whether I ought not to discontinue the Parish News. It costs a good deal and some of my advertisers have asked to be dropped on account of the hard times. Yet I have decided to keep on. It is an ancient custom of the parish. I have enlarged it a little, and had all the numbers bound. They are an invaluable record of St. Stephen's for a quarter of a century. The other day Dr. McConnell sent us the bound volumes of the numbers published during his rectorship. I dislike very much to terminate such a record. Moreover scattered as our members are, this monthly is an invaluable means of spreading information and keeping up interest. Hundreds of dollars are brought into our treasury for worthy causes by givers whose knowledge of our appeals and responsibilities is derived from the Parish News. There are some important annual checks that might not come if this nexus were destroyed. Then there are sick members, the "shut-ins" to whom it brings cheer. Besides there are a number of outsiders who read our paper and the editor of a widely circulated religious weekly has quoted our News letter a number of times and so given our message a wide circulation. The secular press is largely controlled by the big advertisers; it is impossible to get them to publish any criticism of the Motion Pictures. A resolution was passed at the General Convention favoring Federal Control of the production of films intended for inter-state circulation, but the secular papers omitted all mention of its passage. The National movement for the control of alcohol made its way against the opposition of the secular press, and it is a scandal the way in which the breaking of the Volstead Act is condoned, apologized for and justified in our great dailies. This little paper gives me an opportunity to deliver my message on these subjects.

An appeal to the past would show how safe a guide the moral and religious point of view has been in National and International affairs. Long ago I advocated our participation in the League of Nations, holding that the minority in the Senate were wrong to insist on conditions, and also that President Wilson was equally wrong not to accept the conditions and go in on terms that were acceptable to England and France. I was an advocate of the Kellogg-Pact and differed entirely from those who belittled it as an unreal and hypocritical profession.

Events have shown that the signatories are going to hold Japan up to the obligation of the Pact. If the Sunrise Kingdom does not yield to persuasion, I hope the other signatories will declare an embargo against trade with Japan. I favored scaling down of the world debts and we now know that the present condition of world trade is largely due to this unbearable burden. The claim I am making is not that I am infallible or inerrant, but that a minister occupies a detached position apart from political, partisan and corporate interests and has in his occupation with moral issues a helpful clue to the wise course for the Nation as well as for individuals. The Parish News is a useful medium for the diffusion of these views.

Years ago I asked Louise Betts Edwards, a loyal member of St. Stephen's who was the gifted writer of verses and also the author of a well-written novel, to write a hymn to be sung to the tune composed for the third hymn in our Hymnal by Selden Miller, who succeeded Dr. Wood as our Organist. The result was the following hymn, which I think worthy of a permanent place in the Hymnal. How appropriate it is for this time. I recommend my readers to learn it by heart as I have done. It is well worth it.

Christian Soul, the times are calling,
Altars falling,
Men's hearts failing them for fear;
Unto thee their eyes are turning,
Spirits yearning
For the word of faith and cheer.

Christian Soul, great deeds await thee,
Consecrate thee,
To the task that nearest lies;
Question not that God will use thee,
Nor refuse thee
Blessing on thy sacrifice.

Walk thou not as one benighted,
Nor affrighted;
Where the foolish see no God,
Thine to glimpse the fiery column,
Thine the solemn
Comfort of His staff and rod!

—Louise Betts Edwards.

The figures below show where we stand on the Expectation. We raised what we promised last year, and I am sure that we can do as well this year. We are further ahead in spite of the hard times. Everybody has approved of the decision at Denver, to keep up our various activities in spite of the hard times, but that approval means nothing unless we back it up by self-denial and giving. I do not go to the Motion Pictures often, but I went lately to see that instructive film, The Dreyfus Case, and there was a full house. If a tithe of the money spent on pleasure were given to help those in distress, there would be but little distress.

Expectation for Year 1931: $6,500.00.
Total for 9 Months, 1931
$2,404.19
Expectation for 9 Months, 1931
$4,875.00

I do not wish to appear unsympathetic with the unemployed. But there is no reason why their leisure should not be utilized. There is a great deal of work about a house that a man can do, which will make life easier for the woman. Mark Twain tells a true story of a man who walked into a store and asked to be allowed to make himself useful—no wage specified—just to show how useful he could be. He was so helpful that they felt he was indispensable. One thing is certain, that it only makes matters worse if the unemployed lose their morale and self-respect. Learn to draw, learn to read music, learn to play an instrument, learn to sew and knit, learn to cook. Don't despair, don't allow yourself to become mentally and morally disheveled. Make this undesired leisure contribute to your future equipment. Above all deepen the springs of your soul by drawing near to God in faith and self-dedication.

The Party-system has its advantages and disadvantages. It is undoubtedly important that there should be official critics, as well as official defenders of the administration's conduct of affairs. But there are limits beyond which partisanship should not go. It used to be said that partisanship ought not to extend to foreign policy. It seems to me that partisanship ought not to be allowed to control our conduct and speech at this time. It is good to see how broad-minded men like Newton D. Baker and Owen Young come forward with words of praise for President Hoover in his surpassingly difficult task. Let us take large views of the situation and avoid partisan strategy. The fate of the Nation is more important than the fortunes of the Republican or Democratic parties.

The congregation will be interested to know that the campaign against the so-called American Missal attained the full measure of success that was expected. The General Convention is not a court and has no right to punish any one for using the Missal. The Protestant Episcopal Church has no Index Prohibitivus and attempts to exercise no jurisdiction over publishers.

The campaign was inaugurated to reveal to the Church the propaganda that is going on in our midst and make plain both its lawlessness and its pro-Roman character. This it succeeded in doing. Anglo-Catholicism was under a cloud at Denver, and the General Convention condemned such authorization by the custodian of the Standard Prayer Book.

On the morning of November 8th, the preacher will be the Reverend Joseph S. Loughran, who is applying for admission into the Ministry of our Church, and has been granted by the Bishop a license to make addresses. Mr. Loughran has had a most interesting career, and is a preacher of charm and inspiring power. After his graduation from Georgetown University and his ordination as priest of the Roman Catholic Church, he studied for a year at the University of Freiburg in Baden. For five years he was Chaplain in the United States Army and in that capacity went to Siberia during the World War, journeying as far west as Lake Baikal. His experience of life and further study finally destroyed his faith in the peculiarities of Roman Catholicism and he left that Church and spent a year of study at Oxford, England. Hearing that Unitarianism was the freeest Church in the world, he became a pastor in that Society, as the Unitarians used to describe themselves. During the last four years, he has been pastor of the Unitarian Church in East Orange. It has, however, become increasingly plain to him that Unitarianism was out of touch with historic Christianity, and not a Church home in which he could continue to work with enthusiasm. His religion is Christo-centric and he has no sympathy with a religion that is not thoroughly theistic. So he has applied for admission to our Ministry. Your rector is one of the two clergymen who will sign his papers, and Bishop Taitt has accepted him as a candidate. During the interval before his examination, he is authorized to make addresses and I hope to have him at times in our pulpit on Sunday, and at our Noonday services.

In these trying times people naturally cast around for supports and stays. They naturally turn to religion. It has been well said: "Religion is no languid luxury, no mere embellishment like a tassel on a robe or a feather in a hat. Its world-wide and world-old existence proves that it is a necessity of human nature. With all its imperfections, because of its too human instruments, it centralizes and stabilizes our lives. Religion touches the dark night with a morning of promise; it lifts eyes dimmed with struggle to fulfilments offered to the heroic; it rings the bell that wakens within us what no man can ever wholly lose—the power to dedicate ourselves, to hope grandly, to trust nobly, to endure victoriously."

But to gain this support it is not necessary to turn to new forms of religion, or to hectic phases of religion. There is no comfort greater than our belief that we have in God a Father, and Supporter. How can a belief in Guardian Angels or Spirits give more comfort than such a trust in God? His is a belief in a return of Jesus in the flesh, as imminent and near, more comforting than our confidence that God has not left us comfortless but sent down to us His Spirit to guide us. What the world needs is a reasonable, religious and holy hope,—not a faith that is ecstatic but lacks reason, nor a faith that robes itself in aesthetic adornments but lacks moral content, nor a faith that is mere Stoicism, and seeks comfort in resignation to things as they are without any reference to God. Reasonable, religious and holy:—such must be the grounds of our confidence.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

Girls' Friendly Society

Members of the Girls' Friendly Society (St. Stephen's Branch) began their meetings on Monday, October 5th.

Dr. Grammer came and gave us an interesting account of his summer vacation, spent at Summit, New Jersey.

Plans were discussed for our winter's work.

On November 16th an illustrated talk, on the Port of Philadelphia, by Mr. Berry will be given in the Auditorium of the Community House. Members of the congregation and their friends are cordially invited to attend this very interesting lecture.

We had two new members the opening night. The organization is non-sectarian. Young married women are admitted and we will be glad to welcome any one who may be interested in joining the Society. Our work is educational. It is an opportunity to meet your old friends and to make new ones. Dues, $1.00 a year.

The Society feels the loss greatly of two of our Honorary Members: Mrs. John Coats Browne and Miss Emily Bell. They were always interested in our work and their support and kindness in every way are keenly missed. Also we feel the loss of our member and friend, a delightful young girl, Miss Laura Frisch.

The Branch President is very happy to be able to take up the work of the Society this fall and wishes to express her sincere appreciation and gratitude to all the members for their many kindnesses and loving prayers during her illness last winter.

B. M.

The women of the congregation will be happy to hear that the United Thank Offering presented at the triennial convention just ended at Denver, this time totalled $1,059,575.27—a surprising figure in the light of present economic conditions. The total at the last triennium in 1928 was $1,101,450.40.

O brother man, fold to thy heart thy brother;
Where pity dwells, the peace of God is there;
To Worship rightly is to love each other,
Each smile a hymn, each kindly deed a prayer.

—Whittier.

Hatred never yet was overcome by hatred, but hatred is always overcome by love.—Buddha.

All within the four seas are breathren.—Confucius.

Beware what you set your heart upon, for it surely shall be yours.—Emerson.

Whate'er thou lovest, man,
That, too, become thou must;
God, if thou lovest God,
Dust, if thou lovest dust.

—Silesius.

We are stumbling in the dark, but we are facing toward the light—Helen Keller.

Let every occasion be a great occasion, for you cannot tell when fate may be taking your measure for a larger place.

We must go on and leave our past. Let us go as those whom greater thoughts and greater deeds await beyond.—Phillips Brooks.

The reward of one duty is the power to fulfill another.—George Eliot.

Some Sentences from Washington's Private Letters Showing His Belief in Providence

A. D. 1778:

The hand of Providence has been so conspicuous in all this, that he must be worse than an infidel that lacks faith and more than wicked that has not gratitude enough to acknowledge his obligations.

A. D. 1791:

The great ruler of events will not permit the happiness of so many millions to be destroyed.

A. D. 1792:

But as the all-wise Disposer of events has hitherto watched over my steps, I trust that in the important one I may be called on soon to take, he will mark the course so plainly as that I cannot mistake my way.

A. D. 1794:

At disappointments and losses which are the effect of providential acts I never repine because I am sure the alwise disposer of events knows better than we do, what is best for us, or what we deserve.

A. D. 1798:

While I believing that man was not designed by the all wise Creator to live for himself alone, prepare for the worst that can happen.

Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

Here we are in Mid-Lent; Easter still three weeks away. I hope that we are all bearing in mind our Easter offering, and endeavoring by little economies and self-denials to accumulate a generous offering on that great day for the extension of the Kingdom of God. Let us not wait as we did in former years till November and December and then have a great scramble and repeated appeals, just at the season when Christmas rightly claims so much of our money for gifts and attentions to those near and dear to us. Lenten self-denial is given a new purpose and meaning if it is made to bear the generous fruit of helpfulness to the Church of God. "Miserable aims that end in self" are justly scorned by moralists. Christian living must be like the Master's, who said, "For their sakes I sanctify myself." Let us practice self-denial, not merely to control our own desires and appetites, but also for the sake of helping others.

I hope that our Easter Offering may be the largest that we have had during all my rectorship. We have never made enough of the Easter Offering. It has never been held up as it should be, as the goal of Lenten self-denial and Lenten effort. Let us make it such a goal this year.

* * * *

At the Noonday Service on Ash Wednesday, I opened Lent with an address on the duty of weighing the messages of the preachers. The profit of a sermon, like the prosperity of a jest, lies in the ears of those who hear it. For my own part, the older I grow, the more do I value good sense. It is the peculiar glory of the English Church, that it had as one of its formative teachers the judicious Hooker, who defended Episcopacy on grounds of reason and insisted that religion should not be segregated from the other interests of our complex nature. It used to be a saying that a master of texts was a master of Theology, but the adage was coined in an age of Bibliolatry. With our modern grasp of the necessity of construing the parts in the light of the whole, we attach less importance to separate texts and sayings, and more to the general spirit of the Bible, and the guidance that a study of conditions must always exercise in the application of general principles. The texts enjoining us to feed the hungry do not apply to the ravenous appetite of the convalescent from typhoid, and the injunction to clothe the naked loses much of its force in the mild climate of the South Sea Islands. I believe in organizing the world for peace, but I am convinced that the injunction "Resist not evil" does not apply to policemen dealing with robbers, or to soldiers putting down lawless aggressors. Such cases call not for declamation, but for a weighing of conditions. The following words from Bowne's chapter on Fallacies are worth pondering: (He is discussing the fallacy of the abstract). "Even the virtues themselves depend in some degree upon the context. As abstract principles they may be affirmed, but in application they must be adjusted to circumstances. In fact the abstract principle (such as justice) may be so insisted on as to make society impossible. No perfectly just system of taxation is possible. The order of life itself seems unjustly partial. What could be more unjust than a world of heredity and social solidarity? With such facts abounding it is easy for the ideologist to heat his own and other weak heads. . . . . Here is where the ethical casuist, the religious disciplinarian and the social reformer all come short. They fall back on the abstract. The amateur sociologist falls back on some glittering generalities about man, and the golden rule, and possibly some theological doctrine."

Illustrations of these fallacies may be found in the argument of the pacifist, that war is wrong under all circumstances, and in the recent declaration of a prominent New York rector that the 18th Amendment and Volstead Act are contrary to the teachings of Jesus. When such gales of declamation are blowing it is well to remember the injunction not to be carried away with every wind of doctrine. At the present juncture of affairs in China, I hope that our Missionaries do not feel called on to preach the duty of submission to the Chinese. I agree with those who wish our country to induce the Nations of the world to forbid the shipments of the munitions of war to the Japanese.* It seems to me that it is important that the sacredness of treaties should be enforced by an embargo of this kind and by an even more extensive boycott, if necessary. The problems of life are too intricate to be solved by abstractions without a study of conditions. John Wesley long ago said that the great need of the world was the union of knowledge and vital piety. Neither can be dispensed with.

Cordially yours
Carl E. Grammer

*It is appalling to learn that nitrates are being shipped to Japan from America, and that the English government has acquiesced in the sale of munitions of war to those treaty-breakers.

A Letter Full of Instruction

Lancaster, Pa., Feb. 18, '32.

Dear Grammer:

I have read Wieman's Article, and his conception of God seems to me to be utterly lacking in dynamic power or comfort. I have never cared for his writings on the subject, and I take no stock in such an impersonal nonentity. Such a God would mean nothing to me. There is really no fatherhood nor personal relationship in it, as I understand such things.

I cannot imagine calling such a conception of God "Our Father who art in Heaven." Wieman does not seem to have even been born again into Jesus' view of religion. He may be clever, but his view will never help the world on to God.

I am glad that the women are doing something about the magazines. I am about ready to give my new pamphlet on "The Shamelessness of the Movies" to the printer. The state of the movies is deplorable, and why Christians all over the country don't rise en masse against this last going of the "limit in sexology," is hard to understand. *We are at a low stage of ethical endeavor, and that means that something is the matter with our modern grasp of religion. Religion without ethical application is as bad as ethics without religion. I am glad that the "Father of his Country" laid so much stress upon this latter point. We need a revival of his spirit.

Ever Sincerely Yours,
Clifford G. Twombly.

Girls' Friendly Society

At this late moment the G. F. S. takes the opportunity of thanking the congregation of St. Stephen's Church for their loyal support toward the Christmas sale and supper given on December 14th.

It was well attended and we are happy to report, our proceeds amounted to $111.00 clear.

One hundred well-filled stockings, fifty for girls and fifty for boys, also a case of oranges were sent to the Philadelphia General Hospital.

An illustrated lecture was given by Dr. Wm. H. Moore on one of his motor trips through the State of Colorado.

A large box of bottles was sent to St. Martha's Settlement House to aid in the distribution of medicine given to the poor. Also a large box of Christmas cards was sent to a hospital in India, and some to a chain of kindergarten schools in India, China and Japan, through a Mrs. W. L. Bath, of 930 West 39th Street, Los Angeles, California. She sends them, free of charge, through the Dollar Steamship Line. If anyone wishes to contribute cards for this purpose, we will be glad to receive them.

The girls are helping to refurnish two rooms at the Cape May Holiday House, one in memory of Miss Maria Wilkins, and the other called St. Stephen's Room. Miss Julia MacAllister gave a most interesting talk on Interior Decorating and showed a number of very beautiful materials, giving the ancient history of the weaving.

On February 1st a complimentary dinner was given to the members of St. Stephen's Branch by the President and Associates. Fifty girls attended and we had fourteen guests. We were honored by the presence of Mrs. Wm. Spiess, our Diocesan President, and Miss Laura Bell, one of our Honorary Members.

Several witty speeches were made giving all of us a hearty laugh, and with the singing, under the leadership of Mrs. David Wood, we all had a jolly time.

The Woman's Auxiliary

In the absence of the Secretary, for the first time in years, these notes are prepared by the President, who records that twenty members assembled at the meeting on February 18th, and after the opening exercises, when Dr. Kevin read Washington's prayer, the delegates made their interesting reports, some of which were encouraging, but all stressed the need of assistance in money and clothing, which requests were responded to so far as possible within the resources of the Treasury both last month and pledged for the following. An additional donation toward a missionary box was made, and all pledges for 1931 were filled, also clothing taken down to the City Mission.

Two letters were read from Miss Riddell, of the Kumamoto Resurrection of Hope, (a hospital for lepers in Japan) and it was a shock to hear that a cablegram had been received saying that she had died just a few days later than the date of her last communication, and since then calendars have been received from her. It will be remembered that St. Stephen's Auxiliary contributed to the permanent endowment of the hospital for its support for one day annually, St. Stephen's Day; this was accomplished chiefly through the effort of Miss Washington.

Miss Riddell was a fine type of Englishwoman, whose interest in the lepers was aroused during a trip for pleasure in Japan, and she felt herself called to devote her life to trying to ease and comfort these poor people in their forlorn condition, uncared for as they were until she put her whole energy and Christian love into this work, crowned with success by English and American supporters, and the recognition of the Emperor of Japan by a visit from him last year, thrilling the patients by such an honor. The buildings and grounds were inspected by his chamberlain, as it was not considered "appropriate," as was expressed by his representative for the Emperor to approach in person.

All those who had the privilege of knowing Miss Riddell will remember her as a splendid Christian woman who inspired others by her faith, and will rejoice that she has entered into her reward.

Her niece, Miss Wright, will carry on her work, and Rev. Dr. A. E. Clattenburg, Bala-Cynwyd, Penna., will be the American representative authorized to receive subscriptions.

Laura Bell,
President.

George Washington and the Presbyterians

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt.D.

[For some years Dr. James Hosmer Penniman used to sit in the North Gallery of St. Stephen's, and give the most marked attention to the message of the Rector. Invited to deliver one of the addresses at the Centennial anniversary of the parish, he prepared a paper of unusual erudition and wit, which was printed by the Vestry, and will long remain the best portrayal in a short compass of conditions in Philadelphia in 1823, the year when St. Stephen's was founded. Some years ago Dr. Penniman sent me the following paper in which, as he assured me in a private note, the evidence for Washington's partaking of the Holy Communion with Presbyterians is given with greater fullness than it has ever been stated before. I am sure that our readers will be particularly interested in its republication this bicentenary year. It was originally published in Forward, an illustrated weekly paper for young people by the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church. It is republished by permission.—C. E. G.]

"Patrick Henry was known to say that Samuel Davis was the greatest orator he ever heard. Davis went to England to collect money for Princeton and made a great name there as a preacher. In 1755 he established the first presbytery in Virginia. On August 17 of that year he preached a sermon to the volunteers of Hanover County entitled, 'Religion and Patriotism the Constituents of a Good Soldier.' Braddock had just been defeated by the French and Indians near Pittsburgh, where Washington had two horses shot under him and four bullets through his coat. Samuel Davis, in speaking of the great men of history whom God has raised up to accomplish His purposes, uttered these prophetic words: 'I might point to the public that heroic youth, Colonel Washington, whom I cannot but hope Providence has hitherto preserved in so signal a manner, for some important service for his country.' Not long afterwards, at the age of thirty-four, Samuel Davis succeeded Jonathan Edwards and became the second president of Princeton.

"On March 1, 1777, Alexander Hamilton was appointed aide-de-camp to Washington at Morristown. Rev. Hugh Knox, who had been Hamilton's instructor in boyhood, wrote from St. Croix, December 10, 1777, these prophetic words: 'The honorable post you hold under the Great General Washington, and so near his person, will give you a peculiar advantage for delineating his character, both in his amiable private virtues, and military abilities. And depend upon it, the very minutiæ of that incomparable man will be read with avidity by posterity. You know me too well, I hope, to suspect me of superstition; yet I feel myself, at times, under a strong impulse to prophesy, that Washington was born for the deliverance of America, that that Providence who has raised him up and trained him up for that very purpose, will watch over his sacred life with a paternal and solicitous care; will shield his head in every day of battle—will give him to see America free, flourishing, and happy—and will adorn his fame, among latest posterity, with a Garland of Laurel, more verdant, blooming, and enviable, than ever adorned the brow of a Marlborough.'

"Washington's army was at Morristown from January 6 to May 28, 1777, and from December 7, 1779, to June 7, 1780. Washington was a regular attendant at the Presbyterian church during both winters, and became an intimate friend of Timothy Johnes, who preached independence from his pulpit. Washington and Parson Johnes both attended the meetings of the New Jersey Council of Safety which were held in the parsonage. In 1777 two hundred and five of this parish died of small pox, diphtheria, or dysentery. The Presbyterian and Baptist churches and the courthouse were used as hospitals. Parson Johnes's congregation worshiped in private houses, and when the weather permitted in the orchard back of the parsonage, where benches were arranged in a semicircle. The Lord's Supper was celebrated twice a year. The account comes direct from Doctor Johnes of Washington's riding up on his magnificent charger and, throwing the reins to Billy Lee, with stately tread going up the porch steps and giving a short rap with the knocker on the door. The good Doctor received the most distinguished man in the world with courteous benevolence, and in reply to his inquiry if an Episcopalian might partake of the coming Communion, said, 'It is not the Presbyterian table; it is the Lord's table.' At the service Washington was sitting in a chair which had been brought out of the house, but gave it to a woman with a child in her arms.

"Dr. James Richards, pastor in 1851 of the First Presbyterian Church, and whose father in 1794 succeeded Dr. Johnes, said that he often heard his father tell of Washington's receiving the Communion, and that he had obtained his information directly from Dr. Johnes. Jared Sparks, who talked with many persons who lived with Washington, had no doubt of this important event. Albert Barnes, another pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, always considered that the evidence was conclusive. Charlotte Morrell Brackett, a great-great-granddaughter of Dr. Johnes, wrote May 19, 1902: 'It is not a matter of tradition only, but of pure authentic history—in fact a part of the history of the First Presbyterian Church of Morristown—as it was the first pastor of the church, the Reverend Doctor Timothy Johnes, who administered the rite to Washington. It has always been a matter of family history.'

"Mrs. Ford, whose house Washington occupied, was a daughter of Dr. Johnes. Her home remains unchanged and is now a museum. On January 22, 1780, Washington wrote to General Greene, 'Eighteen belonging to my own family and all Mrs. Ford's are crowded together into her Kitchen and scarce one of them able to speak for the colds they have caught.' The winter of 1779-1780 was the most severe ever known. For two months sleighs used the Delaware River as a road from Trenton to Philadelphia. Teams crossed on the ice from Hoboken to New York. Snow was from four to six feet deep.

"On account of the mutiny of some Pennsylvania troops, Congress left Philadelphia for Princeton late in June, 1783. Washington with his army was at Newburgh, but being summoned by Congress he moved his headquarters to Rocky Hill. The house, the last headquarters of the Revolution, is still standing.

"On Wednesday, September 24, the commencement exercises of the College of New Jersey were held in the First Presbyterian Church. Congress was meeting in the library room of Nassau Hall, the northeast room of the third floor, since divided into several rooms, but adjourned to attend commencement. Dr. Ashbel Green was valedictorian, and in his autobiography gives this account of the closing exercises:

"'The church in Princeton had been repaired during the summer (1783) which preceded the commencement at which I received my bachelor's degree. An extended stage, running the length of the pulpit side of the church, had been erected; and as the President of Congress was a trustee of the college, and the president of the college had recently been a distinguished member of Congress, and that body itself had been accommodated in the college edifice, an adjournment to attend commencement seemed to be demanded by courtesy, and was readily agreed on. We accordingly had on the stage, with the trustees and the graduating class, the whole of the Congress, the Ministers of France and Holland, and Commander-in-chief of the American army. The valedictory oration had been assigned to me, and it concluded with an address to General Washington. I need not tell you, that both in preparing and delivering it, I put forth all my powers. The General coloured as I addressed him, for his modesty was among the qualities which so highly distinguished him. The next day, as he was going to attend on a committee of Congress, he met me in one of the long entries of the college edifice, stopped and took me by the hand, and complimented me on my address, in language which I should lack his modesty if I repeated it, even to you. After walking and conversing with me for a few minutes, he requested me to present his best wishes for their success in life to my classmates, and then went to the committee-room of Congress. I never took a copy of my valedictory oration, but carelessly gave the original, at his request, to Shepard Kollock, who then printed a newspaper at Chatham, in Morris county. It was published by him in October, 1783. I have made several efforts to find the paper which contained it, but hitherto without success.'

"The Presbyterian Magazine, which published an article on Washington and the Presbyterians in 1851, made every effort to rescue this 'literary treasure from oblivion' and called in vain for the aid of antiquarians and the secular press. It is here published for the first time since 1783, having been sent to me by Mr. George Mann Peck.

"Let us picture young Ashbel standing before that illustrious assemblage and thus addressing the General who sat near by in his blue-and-buff uniform: 'Nor in that day, illustrious and magnanimous chief, shall thy actions and thy exploits be unrecorded. Some future bard, whom all the muses love —O that it might be some happy son of Nassau Hall—shall tell in all the majesty of epic song, the man whose prudent conduct, and whose gallant sword, taught the tyrants of the earth to fear oppression, and opened an asylum for the virtuous, and free to all the world— But adventurous bard, whoever thou art, beware! Leave poetic fiction and ornament to those whose themes require it; the greatest panegyric of my hero is his true character.'

"The trustees requested Washington to sit for his portrait, and it was painted by Charles Peale. The background represents the battle of Princeton and the death of Mercer. It was in this battle that Washington said that he was in the greatest danger of his life."

Washington's Prayer

Almighty God: We make our earnest prayer that Thou wilt keep the United States in Thy holy protection: that Thou wilt incline the hearts of the citizens to cultivate a spirit of subordination and obedience to government; and entertain a brotherly affection and love for one another and for their fellow citizens of the United States at large * * * And finally that Thou wilt most graciously be pleased to dispose us all to do justice, to love mercy, and to demean ourselves with that charity, humility, and pacific temper of mind which were the characteristics of the divine author of our blessed religion, and without a humble imitation of whose example in these things we can never hope to be a happy nation. Grant our supplication, we beseech Thee, through Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen.

Confirmation Class

Bishop Taitt will visit St. Stephen's on March 13th, the fifth Sunday in Lent, at the morning service to administer the rite of Confirmation.

St. Stephen's Aid Society

The Aid Society has resumed the usual Lenten sewing on infant garments, which are distributed by the Parish Visitor in her work among the people of our Parish. These garments are much needed as the supply has been exhausted during the winter. The cooperation of the women of the congregation is earnestly solicited. Those desiring to take garments home may apply to Mrs. Higham at any time during Lent.
